Tomorrow—A Full Page, The War at Home

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—"The Hearst newspapers are doing a particularly fine thing in presenting the series of gripping pictures of the World War horrors so that the American people will not too easily forget. Unfortunately, there have been renewed evidences of old-time "peace at any price" propaganda abroad in our land. This, if allowed to develop, will lead to a wholly false sense of national security. It is comparable only to the legendary action of the ostrich hiding his head in the sand when he feels danger is near.

"What America needs to avoid a repetition of the days of 1917 and 1918 is an army and navy second to none. A full strength army and navy is the most economical and at the same time the most effective insurance against war that was ever devised."—

Baby Killing Denied By Enemy No. 1; May Call Flier

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—A United States government agent who has been working on the kidnap slaying of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., ever since that tragedy, arrived in Chicago today by airplane and joined in the grilling of Verne Sankey, South Dakota bad man.

Through hour after hour of questioning by federal agents today, Sankey, "America's Public Enemy No. 1," steadfastly denied all knowledge of the Lindbergh baby, but freely admitted staging two other sensational abductions.

While cloaking the progress of their inquisition in utmost secrecy, Department of Justice operatives said they regarded Sankey's capture as vital to the Lindbergh case investigation.

The authorities began a searching investigation of the former South Dakota rancher's whereabouts when the infant son of Col. Lindbergh and Anne Morrow Lindbergh was snatched away from the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N. J., in March, 1932.

QUIZ BY LINDY HINTED

In New York reports were current that Col. Lindbergh would go to Chicago to participate in the questioning of Sankey.

At the headquarters of the New Jersey state police in Trenton it was said that Sankey had long been sought as a suspect in the Lindbergh case and that in all probability some one familiar with the details of the crime would be sent to Chicago to question him.

Captured here as he reposed in a barber chair, Sankey readily admitted the $60,000 abduction of AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 1.—The bodies of a young Austin physician and the wife of a nationally known psychologist were found lying across a bed in an Austin hotel today when the door was broken down after repeated knocks brought no response.

The couple, Mrs. F. A. C. Perrin, wife of a widely known University of Texas professor, at one time a member of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Claude Mattingly, had been dead 12 or 15 hours, it was believed.

On the table in the room was a hypodermic needle and a quantity of narcotics. Dr. Will Watt, one of the first persons to arrive, expressed the belief that the couple had divided about 45 grains of the dope between them.

'SUICIDE PACT'

Police said the couple apparently had entered into a suicide pact to die through over-injection of the narcotic, and Justice of the Peace Tom E. Johnson said he probably would return a double-suicide verdict.

Dr. Mattingly had lived here only a short while, but had built up a wide practice.

HENRY NOW HEAD OF VOTE BUREAU

He took over the office at noon, succeeding Maj. William T. Rees, who resigned after months of bickering with his superiors, the County Commissioners, over the vote machines.

Announcement of the selection of Henry, who was defeated for the Democratic mayoralty nomination by Mayor McNair, was made by Commissioner C. M. Barr.

Henry was last in the news two weeks ago when he accused Mayor McNair of giving him the "political double cross" in naming a public safety director. Henry, an Independent Democrat, charged that McNair had agreed to submit his name to Council for the job.

Thus the man who lost the $8,000 city job today won an $8,000 county position.

Selection of Henry apparently was made yesterday when he conferred privately with the Commissioners.

Maj. Rees' status remains in doubt.

DEMOCRATIC 'HARMONY' MOVE FAILS

Bonniwell to Fight Slate; Guffey Foes Up in Arms

By MARK SHIELDS

The "harmony" Democratic slate, framed at meeting yesterday in Philadelphia, has failed to bring peace to the Democratic party, as it prepares for the May primary.

Judge E. C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, in Pittsburgh to canvass sentiment for his own gubernatorial candidacy, today said the slate was a studied effort to fight him, but that he was ready for a battle.

In Greensburg, friends of Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, said they would push for indorsement of Copeland next week in Harrisburg, and would continue the struggle for his nomination, no matter what the verdict of the Democratic State Committee.

The slate arranged yesterday reads:

For United States Senator—Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh.

For Governor—George H. Earle, III, Philadelphia.

For Lieutenant Governor—Thomas Kennedy of Hazleton.

For Judge of the Superior Court — Representative Chester H. Rhodes, of Monroe County.

VAN DYKE WITHDRAWS

The slate was framed after State Chairman Warren Van Dyke had withdrawn his gubernatorial candidacy, confirming several reports that the Van Dyke boom had been a smokescreen from the strat. These are some further suspicions that Guffey, while a

New Speed Record Claimed by Flier

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—A world speed record for an international flight was claimed today by Paul Mantz, Los Angeles pilot, after his return yesterday from a dash to Balboa Panama, to bring a passenger to Palm Springs, Cal.

Mantz said he flew the 3,600 miles from here to Balboa in 21 hours, 40 minutes actual flying time, an average of 166 miles an hour, making only one stop between Tapachula, Mex., and Balboa.

Armstrong Reported In Critical Condition

HARRISBURG, Feb. 1.—(INS.)—State Inslrance Commissioner Charles F. Armstrong, 68, of Leechburg, who has been in ill health for the past two years, has taken a turn for the worse and his condition at his residence here was "very critical" members of the family said today.

Reports at the Capitol were that Armstrong's physicians had given up hope that his lfie could be prolonged more than another month.

A Navy Second to None

NOW YOU'RE TALKING!—says the country to Congress, as news is borne to it of the approval by the House of Representatives of the greatest naval building program ever presented in peace time.

As a matter of fact, it is not "talking" which the country means to say, but ACTING—and with a vigor, point and sweep which the people have long implored of Congress and now at last witness!

The bill was passed with a mighty chorus of ayes. A roll call was not needed. Sponsored by Chairman Vinson of the Naval Affairs Committee and assured of the approval of the administration, the bill calls for the construction of 102 new warships and 1,184 fighting planes.

It contemplates the expenditure of 570 million dollars!

It will make the United States Navy just what IT OUGHT TO BE and just what the people long ago determined that it should be—SECOND TO NONE that sails the seas, in tonnage, scientific perfection and effectiveness measured by the most modern standards.

THE PERSISTENT indifference to the Navy's needs shown by three Republican administrations and the years of inexcusable neglect which have had their natural result in a steady decline of the Navy's strength, are now abruptly ended.

Neglect of the national security has ceased to be an American policy,—thanks to an administration which is alive to the country's interests and able to read correctly and to reflect promptly the mind of the American people.

The action now at last taken by Congress marks the fruition of sustained and earnest labors on the part of the Hearst newspapers. It is naturally a source of gratification and deep satisfaction.

Ever since the outbreak of the World War, when it became apparent that the neutrality which the United States wished to observe lacked the force behind it to make it respected by the belligerent powers, the Hearst papers have advocated a Navy at least equal to the strongest.

BEFORE THE war had ended, the last Democratic administration was firmly committed to a program of naval building that would have made the American fleet the strongest on the seas.

That program was already well advanced when it encountered a fatal check and suffered a treasonable reversal in the disarmament conference held in Washington in 1922, which will be forever a source of mortification to Americans.

It was at this conference that the then Secretary of State, Charles Evans Hughes, made the sorry offer, which was greeted with such acclaim by England, France, Japan and Italy, to scrap the rapidly growing naval ascendancy of the United States and to voluntarily sink thousands of tons of recently built and modern naval shipping, which had cost the American people hundreds of millions of dollars!

With all the vigor at our command, the Hearst papers protested against this fatuous and suicidal blunder, but without avail.

We have never ceased to characterize this act as one of inconceivable stupidity, and we have striven ever since to open the eyes of Congress and to awaken our people to the vital importance of retrieving so ghastly an error of policy by the resumption of naval building.

The fight seems won!

WE SHALL have a Navy of adequate cruising range, speed, power and accuracy of gun-fire, together with sufficient auxiliary vessels of all

Walkout in Wm. Penn Leaves Diners Stranded

One hundred or more waitresses, waiters, chambermaids, cooks, kitchen help and service men dropped everything in the William Penn Hotel at 10 a. m. today and walked out on strike.

Forty-five minutes later they were back at work. F. L. Andrews, the manager, agreed to meet representatives tomorrow and discuss the differences.

Spokesmen for the strikers contended that tomorrow, pay day, their wages were to be reduced without warning. The employes are members of a union.

Meanwhile seven new waitresses had taken the places of six who walked out at the Penn-McKee Hotel, McKeesport, according to R. C. Furlong, manager. They didn't want to split tips with Hazel Lineberg, who refused to serve liquor in the grill room, it seems. She remained on duty when the others quit and still has her job, Furlong said.

Walsh Son's Auto Wrecked; Man Hurt

Heavy Trading Marks Advance; Bonds Strong

NEW YORK, Reb. 1.—(AP.)—Uncle Sam's new—and cheaper—dollar made its debut today amid boisterous applause from the stock market.

Shares swept $1 to $9 higher under successive waves of buying, which embraced all the major groups, putting the industrial average at the highest point since September, 1931. Rails and utilities rallied, too, while some of the largest gains occurred in metal stocks.

DOLLARS ADVANCE

Meanwhile, high confusion ruled in the foreign exchange market. Dollars, opening fairly steady against the leading currencies of Europe, soon began an advance which was contrary to what might have been expected in view of the momentous step President Roosevelt took yesterday when he devalued the currency at a level to conform to the new gold price of $35 an ounce.

Exchange dealers attributed dollar strength partly to European demand for American securities, but a more potent influence seemed to be the banks' inability to begin transactions in gold pend-

SEWICKLEY RO[illegible] STIRS PRIES[illegible]

The Rev. Father William P. Curtin, of St. James' Catholic Church, Sewickley, had directed a bitter verbal attack today on J. C. Chaplin, banker and president of Sewickley Council in the police chief controversy.

In an open letter the militant priest assailed Chaplin as "the old master cracking the whip" to obtain approval of the appointment of Roy Barclay, reputed former Ku Klux Klansman, as chief of police. Father Curtin contends that Barclay, under oath, admitted "he had been engaged in many lawless escapades" and was unfit for the post.

He concludes:

"To date the Burgess has not entered the Chaplin cabal, and Miss Margaret Shearer, the only woman member of Council, d[illegible] not seem to have been intimidated either by his frown or whip.

"The day is not far off the old master and his whi[illegible] have disappeared from life in Sewickley and new [illegible] of initiative and independence will cause the press of Pittsburgh to withdraw their sneer about 'Sewickley's one-man Council.'"

VETERANS' FUND RESTORATION VOTED

Senate Committee for Replacing Most Of Slash

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.) —The Senate Appropriations ommittee today reversed its sub- mmittee on the independent of- s bill and voted 12 to 10 that rans' appropriations legisla- would be in order as a rider the measure.

After rejecting by a single vote proposal for full restoration of he 15 per cent federal pay cut, the committee also approved its subcommittee plan for returning one-third of the cut effective today and another third starting July 1.

Senator Townsend (Rep.), of Delaware, moved for full restoration of the government pay slash, but lost, 11 to 10. Republicans voted solidly for the more liberal amendment, supported by two Democrats—Copeland, New York, and McCarran, Nevada.

The merits of the many veterans' proposals were not decided, this being deferred until tomorrow.

The sub-committee yesterday had voted 5 to 4 that hte veterans amendments would constitute new legislation on an appropriation bill and therefore were not in order.

Republicans on the full committee voted solidly today against this decision. They had the support of several Democrats. The roll call was not announced.

WOMANMISSING, CITE GUARDIAN

SEATTLE, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—The mysterious disappearance a year and a half ago of wealthy Mrs. Sarah E. Smith-Scollard, known as the "Hetty Green of La Salle street," was attributed today to the late Reese B. Brown, Yakima capitalist, in a petition filed in Superior Court. Brown died last Saturday night near Yakima when his car crashed into the rear of a truck.

The petition was brought by Benton G. Burdick, Portland attorney. Seeking the appointment of a guardian for Mrs. Smith-Scollard, he charged that Brown, after gaining control of her property, placed her in hiding and that she is "still secreted and held there."

The petition recited that Mrs. Scollard's first husband, "Hecla Jim" Smith, left her an estate valued at more than a million dollars upon his death in Chicago, in 1908. A number of years later she came to Washington State to live. She met Brown in 1928.

KIN WAGE SUIT WON BY SISTER

A family argument reached a ax in Common Pleas Court with an award of $400 to otte Wally, West North ave- , in a suit against her brother.

Miss Wally sued W. N. Wally, of Etna, for $2,200 she claimed was due her in wages as housekeeper for the brother. She said he agreed to pay her $100 a month after his wife died in 1925, but paid her nothing. W. C. Wally, another brother, testified for the plaintiff.

The jury brought in a verdict of $400 after Judge Ralph H. Smith had told them they might compute the amount on the basis of a weekly wage if they decided for the plaintiff.

COCOANUT OIL TAX OPPOSED

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 1.—Deluged with protests from all sections of the United States and from the Philippine Islands, the House Ways and Means Committee had a proposed five-cents-per-pound excise tax under reconsideration today, according to word received in San Francisco.

Approval of the proposed tax by the committee aroused a storm of objection on grounds that it would destroy the cocoanut oil and domestic industry in the nation and seriously cripple shipping.

San Francisco and the Bay Region, with extensive interests involved, is actively engaged in the fight to prevent the ruinous tax from becoming law.

The tax, leaders in many industries pointed out in telegrams to Washington, would throw thousands out of work by closing down Bay Region soap factories and copra crushing plants, and by cutting off entirely the imports of copra that make up 15 per cent of the port's incoming tonnage.

Pointing out that the price of cocoanut oil locally is two and one-half cents per pound, leaders of industry declared the proposed tax amounts to 200 per cent.

NO GARLIC, SAYS MAYOR TO MARY

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Mary Pickford likes garlic with her spaghetti; Mayor LaGuardia doesn't.

Mary dropped down to the City Hall to invite the Mayor to attend the Press Photographers' ball tomorrow night. She said:

"I hear you like spaghetti."

The Mayor replied:

"Yes, but I don't like garlic with it."

Mary said:

"Why, I eat it for the garlic."

LaGuardia declared:

As she left, Joe Barbera, a City Hall Park bootblack, flagged Miss Pickford, shined her shoes—which did not need it—and earned himself 50 cents.

MELLON TO OPEN NEW BANK

Another Mellon-owned bank is to be opened in the Gulf Building, Seventh avenue and Grant street, within a short time, according to individuals connected with the Mellon interests.

No date has been set for the opening and many details of the organization are unsettled.

Part of the first floor of the Gulf Building was completely equipped for banking rooms over a year ago and the Mellons had plans nearly ready for the opening of the institution at that time. Uncertain business conditions which developed early in 1933 were responsible for postponing the opening.

Weather Conditions.

There is now a center of low pressure over Georgia and South Carolina over Eastern Ontario and over Alberta. The eastern lows are producing light snowfall over the northern states as far south as North Carolina, while the southern disturbance is attended by light to moderate heavy rain over the southern states. The northwestern low is causing cloudy weather and rising temperature over that section. The high pressure separating the eastern and western lows, covers the plains states and the Southern Rocky Mountains. It is causing a considerable drop in temperature over the plains states and the Upper Mississippi Valley. This change to colder weather will spread over this section tonight and Friday.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 2.7 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.7; Pittsburgh, 12.3; Dam No. 4, 7.0; No. 6, 8.4; No. 10, 8.8, and No. 12, 10.6. The dams are down, but a few of the upper dams will probably be raised today. There is still considerable floating ice in the Ohio below Pittsburgh. At Pittsburgh the rivers are nearly clear of ice, half full at Dams Nos. 6 to 12, and full at No. 13.

Hearing on Sales Tax In House Held Certain

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.) Probability of an airing on the use floor for the controverted es tax question increased today at least one proponent polished his arguments in preparation. eviously voting come tax [illegible] by man and wife in eight states and listening to Treasury proposals to apply this rule to all states, the committee yesterday reversed itself and struck out the provision entirely.

The committee did approve a co-ordination of all revenue collecting activities and a provision that the original refiners of gasoline and oil should pay taxes on them in order to make the collecting job easier.

Crowther's sales tax proposal, not radically different from suggestions that have split both parties in the past, would apply a 2½ per cent tax on all manufactured articles except food and clothing. He contended it would replace the so-called nuisance taxes [illegible] $400,000,000 . n-

SENATE BACKS FLOOD CONTROL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.) —The Senate today adopted a resolution requesting President Roosevelt to present a "comprehensive plan" for the guidance of Congress in enacting legislation for a nation-wide system of flood control, navigation, irrigation and power.

The resolution, presented by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, was an outgrowth of a conference with President Roosevelt yesterday in which many other members of both Senate and and House interested in waterway improvement participated. A similar resolution is expected to be offered in the House.

The information sought would be gathered from government surveys of the nation's principal rivers.

The idea behind the move is to develop for each section a system of waterway improvement similar to that undertaken in the Tennessee Valley.

Dr. Perrin, husband of the dead woman, is co-author of the book "Psychology—Its Principles and Methods." He is about 50. According to Who's Who, Dr. Perrin and his wife, the former Rhea Burgess, were married in 1921. She was an attractive brunette, about 35.

The body of Dr. Mattingly was fully clothed. Mrs. Perrin was partialy disrobed.

A short will was found in the room, made out by Mrs. Perrin. Its contents were not made known.

Mrs. Perrin's husband was an assistant professor of psychology at Pitt from 1912 to 1917. His first wife, a Pittsburgher, died some years ago.

BIG NAVY BILL DELAYED BY BICKERING

Senate Hits House On Clause Which Limits Profits

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—A minor controversy over shipbuilding profits today threatened an indefinite delay in final enactment of the administration's 580 million dollar program for construction of a full treaty strength navy.

The bill's prompt passage by the Senate was retarded by a decision of Senator Trammell, (Dem.) of Florida, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, to hold hearings on the measure, just passed by the House. His committee previously reported a similar senate bill favorably.

Trammell explained the delay was due to the House's action in writing a 10 per cent profit limit on the gross cost to shipbuilding firms and in dividing the shipbuilding work between private and public yards. He said his committee had not passed on these questions and would meet "within a few days" to consider the House bill.

Administration leaders were provoked by the delay. They pointed out the independent offices appropriation bill would be reported to the Senate today and consideration started tomorrow. This measure will include two distinct battles over elimination of federal pay slashes and restoration of pre-economy benefits to World War veterans. Once these issues are settled, a flood of appropriation bills will pour into the Senate.

As a result of the Navy Committee's delay, the Naval Bill will be caught behind these two legislative contests. Its consideration will be postponed until next week, when it must be sidetracked again to make way for other appropriation bills.

The bill, as passed by the House and approved by the Senate committee, would spend 485 million dollars on a five-year ship-building program and 95 million dollars on a five-year naval aircraft program. It would include from 96 to 102 warships and 1,184 new fighting Navy planes.

FOE IN CAPITAL, LONG GUARDED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Senator Huey Long galloped through the lobby of a local hotel today and disappeared in the direction of the Senate Office Building.

The Louisiana "Kingfish" was surrounded by four men who straight-armed all interference.

Huey's guards and his speed apparently were motivated by the presence in the same hotel of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans, former soldier and football player and contemporary political foe of Huey.

The Mayor purposely registered at Long's hotel with the avowed intention of "thrashing" the "Kingfish" if their paths should cross.

Once safely in the Senate, however, the Louisiana "Kingfish" won a major victory when the Privileges and Elections Committees ruled the charges, filed against him by his political enemies, were "insufficient" to justify an investigation.

U. S. Attorneys Get Senate Approval

The appointment of United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld, who took office August 31, succeeding Louis E. Graham, has been confirmed by the Senate, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington. Dumbauld is a veteran Democratic leader of Fayette County and formerly practiced law in Uniontown.

Appointment of Charles D. McAvoy as United States Attorney for Eastern Pennsylvania also was confirmed.

types, necessary to give the maximum effectiveness to our fleet as a whole.

In short, we shall have a Navy fully up to the strength authorized by the London naval treaty.

This is as far as the United States can go at the present time, and it will bring us up to the full measure of strength permitted under existing international agreements.

If these quotas are subsequently revised, or if the London treaty fails of renewal, or if some power more ambitious than others seeks to disturb existing ratios,—why then the United States, with a justified composure and knowledge of its strength, will be able to take care of itself,—no matter what the game may be!

AND, ONE THING MORE IS CERTAIN—WE WILL NOT START, WHEN THAT GAME OPENS, AT A DISABLING DISADVANTAGE RELATIVE TO ANY POWER IN THE WORLD!

World Court Lobbyists Seeking To Raise Issue Again, Believing U. S. 'Glutton for Punishment'

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
Noted Author and United States Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administratons.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.

DESPITE the assumption that the World Court issue cannot be squeezed into the business of this Congressional session, there is a quiet boring going on by the old World Court lobbies.

Those Senators who have been bored have in many instances said: "Oh, yes, yes, yes," believing that the time to vote and the final "No" was far away.

It is inconceivable that this propaganda weed still raises its stalks unless it does so under the slogan—"Uncle Sam—a Glutton for Punishment."

No one in Congress can point to any excursion we have made into European politics which has not been disastrous not only to ourselves, but also to Europeans. The only profit to Americans can be found in a basketful of degrees and decorations for the heaving chests of our volunteer amateur statesmen and world-fixers.

JUST SUCH amateurs as these are telling us again today that the World Court is not political when all of us know that it is a creature of the League and that its decisions have reeked with politics.

Just such amateurs are saying to Senators and probably will continue to say that if we put our head in the noose, we are permitted by legal reservations to draw it out.

This is nonsense because most intelligent schoolboys know that withdrawal from international entanglements is not a legal question at all, but a dangerous political nose-ring, involving blasts of hatred from the controlled press of Europe and no end of a row in our own political structure in case we wanted to pull loose.

But what gives the whole subject warmth of interest for Congress at this moment is the possibility that the World Court might well extend its jurisdiction so that some countries which welch on debts could be asked to step before a world tribunal and tell their sad story to the judges. Let evidence be offered under oath. If honor is going by the board—it may as well go to the bottom.

HENCE, those European propagandists and their well-meaning allies here in America can do nothing better in their lost cause to put us into the World Court than to induce the European member or adherent nations to offer the World Court to us as an instrument for impartial and judicial findings on three simple questions.

Was the money we loaned borrowed on solemn promises?

Was it paid back?

Why not?

Not only should this procedure apply to intergovernmental debts of some eleven billions owed to us, but also to the seven billions owed to more than 500,000 Americans, some of them now in poverty, who loaned money to foreign municipalities and governmental subdivisions through our international bankers' cocktail bonds.

For this tip to the World Court lobby no gratitude can be expected. But a caution may also be given: There is grave doubt that the European statesmen who want us in the League and World Court will carry a spear in the burlesque show when, as, and if the World Court becomes a fact-finding sounding board for repudiation of international obligations.

PUSH BANK PLAN IN HAZELWOOD

Of 20,000 shares necessary to open the new Hazelwood bank, more than 18,700 had been sold today, it was announced following a mass meeting of Hazelwood Savings and Trust Company depositors in the Grand Theater, 4909 Second avenue, last night.

A total of 1,200 shares were sold at the meeting, Max Balsam, chairman of the stock selling committee, said. Speakers were Dr. Orlo C. Schlag, president of the new bank; David Morgan, vice president; the Rev. James J. O'Connell, pastor of St. Stephen's Church, and Balsam, who presided. More than 700 depositors attended.

Tentatively approved by the State Banking Department, the plan for opening the bank provides for a capital of $200,000; a surplus of $100,000 and an undivided profits account of $20,000.

CHURCHILL WINS BOROUGH FIGHT

Churchill Borough has won its first legal battle—a fight for existence.

The State Supreme Court today affirmed the action of Judge S. H. Gardner in approving incorporation of Pennsylvania's "baby" borough with a population of 75.

Wilkins Township fought the move against slicing off 1,500 acres of farm land and 46 homes to form the new municipality. It was contended that only a town or village may be incorporated.

The new borough, which contains the Edgewood Country Club, lies between Wilkinsburg and Forest Hills and is adapted for future realty development, its backers assert.

Dying Man Sounds Death Call Over Home Radio

OXFORD, Md., Feb. 1.—(AP.) —Herman Bringman, 79-year-old grocer, who in recent years had broadcast at 10 o'clock every night to his friends over his short-wave radio, has sent his last program. He broadcast a call for help last night and died before it arrived.

Bringman signed off as usual last night. But a moment later he spoke weakly over the air:

"Come to my assistance and bring a doctor."

A friend heard his call, summoned a doctor and hurried to his house. Bringman was found dead of heart dsease.

SEA MAIL DEALS TOLD PROBERS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Evidence showing that three ocean mail contracts were awarded to the United Fruit Company in order that a fourth subsidy might go uncontested to the Colombia Steamship Company was offered today before the Black Senate committee.

Walter F. Edge, then American Ambassador to France, was a director of the Colombia shipping line.

A $5,895,311 profit was made by the National City Company, of New York, in two underwriting operations involving United Aircraft and Transport Corporation stock, it was revealed.

J. P. Ripley, former vice president of the National City Company, revealed the existence of a "preferred list" of customers for the Aircraft stock.

Among the prominent men on the preferred list were Bernard M. Baruch, Percy Rockefeller and Col. Sosthenes Behn, of I. T. and T.

NUDISTS UNDER PHILA. BAN

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—(AP.) —No nudists in Philadelphia.

That is the edict of Theodore F. Wood, director of Public Safety, who says "Nudism will not be permitted while I am director."

Wood handed down his ultimatum at a conference with Dr. Henry Strong Huntingdon, president of the International Nudist Conference, and Ilsley Boone, its executive secretary.

Saying he was shocked by them, Boone wanted to know why burlesque shows were permitted, but nudists were forbidden the use of a gymnasium.

"That was last February. He confesses that he kidnaped Bohn, the son of a St. Paul refrigerator manufacturer, in June, 1932. He had nothing to do, he claims, with the William Hamm and the Bremer cases in St. Paul recently, or with any other kidnapings."

In Sankey's apartment hideout on the North Side, where police arrested a 28-year-old woman giving the name of Helen Mattern, federal agents found a small arsenal and $3,450 in currency.

2-YEAR SEARCH ENDED

Capture of the confessed kidnaper brought to an end a search that had been in progress throughout the United States for two years. The hunt was concentrated in Chicago several months ago when federal authorities learned he was in hiding here.

Three federal agents and three Chicago police officers seized Sankey as he lay back in the barber shop of William Mueller to have a four days' growth of beard removed.

Sankey's first intimations that his flight was at an end came when two officers pressed pistols against his head and ordered him to surrender. They said:

"We know who you are. Come along without making any trouble."

Startled, Sankey turned, made a feeble struggle and then gave up. He said:

"All right, you got me. I'm Sankey."

TALKS READILY

Readily, and almost cheerfully, the partially-bald fugitive began to talk. He had not been in custody more than a half hour before he admitted taking part in the St. Paul and Denver kidnapings. This willingness to unburden himself puzzled his questioners and raised a suspicion that he might be attempting to thus keep some other phase of his career secret.

Sankey explained that his beard was due to a recent bit of surgery he underwent for the removal of three moles on his face. These had served as one of his most prominent marks of identification. The operation had made his face sore he could not shave, Sankey clained.

BANKER KIDNAP GANG SILENT

International News Service.

ST. PAUL, MINN., Feb. 1.—Fifteen days since the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy banker, today found the victim's family still without word from either the missing man or his abductors.

Adolph Bremer, father of the banker, repeated his previous denials that any contact had been made with the gang which seized Bremer in his automobile in broad daylight. Family advisers likewise asserted that no communication had been received.

Despite the long silence maintained by the kidnapers, the $200,000 ransom money demanded on the day Bremer was seized was still available for delivery to the gang, it was reliably reported.

The elder Bremer, owner of the Jacob Schmidt Brewing Company, remained hopeful that his son will be returned safely. The kidnapers have consistently disregarded the aged brewer's plea that they communicate with the family and begin negotiations for his release.

JAFSIE MOVES KEPT SECRET

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Dr. John F Condon, the famous "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh kidnaping case, is "out of town" but his wife won't tell where he is gone.

Asked whether the Lindbergh negotiator, who passed $50,000 in bills over some bushes to a representative of the kidnapers, has gone to Chicago, where Verne Sankey, long-wanted as a suspect in the Lindbergh case, is held by the police, Mrs. Condon replied:

"I won't tell you where he went. He left town yesterday."

"When will he return?"

"I don't know."

General Here, Quotes Lincoln's View on Preparedness

What the United States needs is a great armada on the sea and in the air, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler today said when he arrived in Pittsburgh to address the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange weekly luncheon in the Keystone Hotel, and the Traffic and Transportation Association banquet at the William Penn Hotel tonight.

Gen. Butler referred to Abraham Lincoln in urging preparedness. He will speak to the veterans in Clarksburg, W. Va., on February 12, the Emancipator's birthday.

The former Marine commander said:

"As an instance of Lincoln's great wisdom and foresight—to say nothing of his tremendous sense of justice, read the paragraph from his letter of acceptance of ihs nomination of the Union party at its convention in 1864 in which he said: I am especially gratified that the soldier and the seaman were not forgotten by the convention as they forever must and will be remembered by the grateful country for whose salvation they devote their lives.

"What we need is a great armada on the sea and in the air, and controlled by a man of the humble wisdom of Abraham Lincoln. Then we will be ready to talk disarmament."

Tomorrow evening Gen. Butler will address a banquet celebrating the fortieth anniversary of Swift's mission boys brigade at the First Presbyterian Church, Arch street, North Side.

On Saturday, he will address a meeting of veterans at Connellsville, Pa.

DILLINGER GANG TRIAL SET

CROWN POINT, Ind., Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Indiana raised the curtain today on the prologue of its legal drama by which it hopes to send the state's most notorious outlaw, John Dillinger, to the electric chair within three months.

Identified by 22 witnesses yesterday as the slayer of Policeman Patrick O'Malley last month during the $20,000 robbery of the First National Bank of East Chicago, Dillinger was ordered arraigned today before Circuit Court Judge William J. Murray. Prosecutor Robert G. Estill said the trial would get under way February 13.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Feb. 1.—(AP.)—John Dillinger's three outlaw pals came back to Michigan City Penitentiary today under escort of 75 policemen armed with machine guns, rifles and riot guns.

As the caravan stopped at the portal of the penitentiary whence they escaped last September 26, Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley threw their overcoats over heads. Russell Clark, his head bandgaged, seemed to walk painfully, dragging his leg irons.

FAY STARVING ON $100 WEEK, SHE SAYS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Fay Webb is suffering from nervous exhaustion, secondary anemia, malnutrition, heart trouble and loss of weight—all on the $100 a week which Rudy gives her.

Fay's description of herself was given today in an affidavit filed with Supreme Court Justice Lydon in another round of her court fight with the crooner on the Eastern and Western fronts.

Another affidavit, filed by Fay's attorney, also charged that "Vallee well knows that he is largely responsible for his wife's ailments."

Rudy himself filed an affidavit as did Hyman Bushel, his counsel, and with them they submitted a photograph of Fay in evening dress about to start out for a large evening in Hollywood accompanied by two escorts, Jack Hartfield, Hollywood broker, and Pasquale de Cicco, husband of Thelma Todd.

FIGHTS RUDY PLEA

The picture, taken last May, is intended to refute Fay's claim that her weight has fallen off from a normal 125 to 98 and that she could easily play the deathbed scene in the third act of "Camille."

Bushel asked so that the court and the world could hear him, "Who is financing this litigation for such substantial loot?"—the "loot" being the $50,000 counsel fees, $7,450 a month alimony and $10,000 court expenses sought by Fay from her Rudy.

The affidavits were filed in behalf of and in answer to Rudy's motion to set aside Supreme Court Justice Lydon's order allowing Fay to withdraw her local suit in which she seeks only to break the agreement under which Rudy is now paying her the $100 a week.

CHARGES GAY LIFE

Fay, who wants to continue her California suit where they whack up marital litigants' property by splitting it down the middle, further claimed that seh is too ill to return to New York and continue her suit here. In substantiation of that she submitted affidavits from two physicians.

Rudy claimed that when Fay returned to California last September she was constantly going to "gay parties" and didn't live with her parents until he reminded her that that was her supposed reason for the trip. He also pointed out that during the "short period" of their married life she practically lived in a Pullman car, making six round trips and expressed great doubt that she is now unable to return to New York and fight it out on his home grounds.

RELIEF WORKER OUT IN CRASH

HARRISBURG, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—The State Emergency Relief Board yesterday accepted the resignation of R. H. Stroud, field director whose name was linked with a party of Westmoreland County relief workers which ended in a fatal automobile ride.

Two members of the party were killed.

Eric H. Biddle, executive director of the board, requested Stroud's resignation, he said, but he declined to discuss the case further.

Auditor General Frank Baldwin, a member of the board, said that reports of the Westmoreland case were discussed from various angles but that no action was taken other than the acceptance of Stroud's resignation.

RUMORS CLOUD INSULL FATE

ATHENS, Feb. 1.—The Greek cabinet went into session today with official assurance that a decision in the case of Samuel Insull would be forthcoming.

The former Chicagoan's return to America continued a matter of speculation as the whole affair involving his attempts to obtain a prolongation of his stay in Greece became a wildly tangled web of rumors.

From these rumors arose only one cold fact—the Greek government failed to keep its expulsion date with Insull last midnight.

Without yet having had his sojourn permit officially extended beyond that hour, Insull remained entrenched today in his apartment almost opposite the American consulate.

While the 74-year-old fugitive maintained silence so far as the public was concerned, it was reported he was trying to persuade the government expulsion as scheduled would be tantamount to extradition.

Life Terms Begun By Two Kidnapers

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 1.—(INS.)—Gail Swolley, Peoria saloonkeeper, and Frank Souder, of Benton, Ill., today began serving life sentences in the Illinois Penitentiary for the kidnaping of James Hackett, wealthy Blue Island gambler.

Members of the down state band of so-called "collegiate kidnapers," Swolley and Souder were denied a new trial by Judge Thomas J. Lynch. They were ordered removed to the penitentiary at once.

BLUE LAW JURY VOTES DAMAGES

A 1704 blue law jury of six persons today awarded six and one-fourth cents damages to a man arrested on Sunday in 1933.

The jury returned the verdict in Common Pleas Court where Frank J. Vatter, of Audrea street, had obtained a judgment on grounds of false arrest against William Nugent justice of the peace of Baldwin Township.

The jury heard testimony only to fix the amount of damages as provided under a Pennsylvania Colonial act adopted in 1704. The amount determined upon was the minimum fixed by law.

The trial was termed "an inquest." in 1704, so the jury was addressed as "the jury of the inquest." The six members were Mrs. Mildred Hoetzlein, Castle Shannon; G. W. Miller, Bellevue; Mrs. Barbara Hoffman, Firth street, Pittsburgh; M. L. Watson, Versailles Township; Albert Ortlieb, East street, Pittsburgh, and A. Marshall Dell, South Fayette Township.

Congressman's Son Cleared in Slaying

CLEVELAND, Feb. 1.—(INS.)—Britton D. Young, nephew of Congressman Stephen D. Young, today was exonerated in connection with the "Lover's Lane" shooting of Carl Meteling, farmer, in December. The Cuyahoga County grand jury refused to return an indictment.

Young told police he shot Meteling when the farmer attempted to drag Miss Ruth Beiter, a local college student, from their parked car.

NOTORIOUS RED NOT 'BITTER' OVER EXILE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Emma Goldman, a rather wistful old woman, hard to picture as "Red Emma," most notorious anarchist in America for a generation, returned to the United States today from exile.

She was reported in 1919 as a dangerous radical and she admitted today she had never expected the United States to lift the ban against her. It came, she said, wits a smile, as a "pleasant surprise." She is now aged 64 and has spent the past 15 years wandering and lecturing in foreign lands.

She refused to discuss public matters in any form, but she did say she had "not changed" her views.

It was these views which for 3 years caused her to be considere a dangerous firebrand responsibl through her speeches for ma violent outbreaks. Leon Czolgos who shot President McKinley 1901, said Miss Goldman's speech had influenced him.

FRIENDS UNTIL DETAH

Miss Goldman was asked if had seen recently Alexander B man, her companion for m years and, like her, was depo as a dangerous radical.

Berkman shot Henry Clay F in his Pittsburgh office over years ago and served a long pri term in the Western Penitenti

Miss Goldman replied:

"Yes, I saw Berkman in N France, the day I left there i December for Canada."

She added:

"Our friendship is the kind that ends only with death."

Miss Goldman was deported to Russia, and she went hailing the Soviet government. She was not there long before she called the Soviet a "greater oppressor" thar the Czar and fled from the country. She said today she had no changed her opinion of the Soviet but again her lecture contrac forbade explanation.

HOLDS NO BITTERNESS

She returns as a British citize because of her marriage durin the years of exile to James Colton, a Welsh miner.

When she would not answer questions and a reporter ventured that she would find America's viewpoint more liberal than wh she left here, she said:

"I am glad."

She was asked what thought of President Roos and of the new deal, but her ture contract forbade answer.

One thing she wanted unde stood. She came back "not bitt against anyone." She said:

"You see, I believe in the principle of letting people think for themselves so why should I be bitter."

4 ON ICE FL FEARED LO

BAY CITY, Mich., Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Hope waned today watchers on the shores of Saginaw Bay sought in vain for traces four fishermen borne out tow Lake Huron Wednesday on a crumbling ice floe.

Throughout the night coa guardsmen and volunteers led Charles King, father of two the marooned men, kept a vig on the shore, lighting flares at tervals in the hope that those the ice would find their ashore.

The four, marooned whe ice from which they were nets split away from were: John Swantek Abare, 60; Charles and his brother Law

The wind which Wednesday whippe of the bay into hi veteran sailors expr that the floe which bore away from shore cou through the night.

FISH BAIT GIVES STAR 'SHINER'

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. —(AP.)—The mystery of the black eye that Margaret Sullavan, new film star, is taking with her on a flying trip to New York is no mystery at all, her friends at the studio say.

Miss Sullavan, after a week-end in Arizona, returned with the black eye and a scratch on her cheek.

She said it was the result of her ambition to learn to cast for trout. A cowboy on a dude ranch near Phoenix was instructing her. The bait flew back and hit her in the eye, while the fishhook scratched her cheek.

German Physicist To Lecture at Tech

Prof. James Franck, Nobel prize winner and former professor of physics at Goettingen University, Germany, will deliver public addresses at the Carnegie Institute of Technology tonight and tomorrow.

The noted German physicist, who holds a professorship at Johns Hopkins University, will speak tonight on the "Differences of Photochemical Primary and Liquids." Tomorrow night he will discuss catalytic processes.

PWA ENGINEER STUDIES WORKS PLANS HERE

Allegheny County's plans for a 31 million dollar public works program financed through a federal loan have been scanned by a federal engineer, it was learned today.

K. A. Godwin, the engineer, was here Monday and returned to Washington, presumably to report to the Public Works Administration on his examination of the specifications for the proposed projects here.

Among the proposals Godwin was understood to have discussed with county officials was the plan for building a new vehicular tunnel under Mt. Washington. This plan would be an alternative to purchase of the Wabash Railroad bridge and tunnel.

There was no hint of Godwin's findings, and county officials declined to discuss his visit.

The county hopes to carry out the huge public works program under the Public Works authority created at the last session of the legislature. The request of Allegheny County officials for federal public works funds was among the first four received by the Public Works Administration in Washington.

The legal set-up for putting the authority in motion has been completed by Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank. It will be ready to function when the PWA acts on the county's request for the funds.

The new proposal for a South Hills vehicular tunnel provides for a bridge across the Monogahela river at Water street and Liberty avenue and a tunnel to a point the junction of Saw Mill boulevard and Banksville

LAZE AT PITT CATHEDRAL

Fire visited Pitt's Cathedral of Learning in Oakland for the second time in 14 months today. Sparks from a salamander fired two pieces of tarpaulin and a wooden scaffold before the morning classes began. Damage was slight.

Damage was estimated at not more than $100.

Boy Prote 'Flunks' Easy Baseball Test

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Thirteen-year-old Warren Bachelis was graduated from high school last night, one of the youngest graduates in the city's records. He plans to enter Columbia in September to study at the college of physicians and surgeons.

Interviewers asked him about Latin. He said:

"I love it. I anticipate teaching it."

What did he think of Macaulay's life of Dr. Johnson?

Did he know who won the last world series?

"No."

DEALERS HEAR CODE CHIEF

Dr. Kenneth Dameron, deputy retail code administrator, in a speech at the Chamber of Commerce last night, said the working day may even be made shorter under the NRA.

Speaking before 100 retailers and members of the Retail Code Authority of Pittsburgh, Dr. Dameron stressed the great amount of leisure time that NRA is bringing the American people. He said:

"The General (Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator) has whispered that the working day may even be made shorter."

He also said Johnson probably will mark up the labor price on retail goods in the next 10 days.

Objectives of the retail code and methods of enforcing it were explained.

Westinghouse Shifts Motor Work Here

A shift in the manufacture of industrial motors of more than one horse power from Springfield, Mass., to the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, will be begun soon, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Springfield.

Local representatives of the company said the transfer would be gradual and that the move would not result in employment of additional men here. Between 250 and 300 men were employed in the Springfield plant on production of this type of motors, it was said.

MRS. PINCHOT JOINS UNION

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, is a member of the Waist and Dressmakers' Union.

A card entitling her to membership was presented yesterday to Mrs. Pinchot by Elias Reisberg, manager of the union, after she sewed an NRA label on a dress manufactured in Philadelphia as several hundred girls watched. The Governor's wife took three minutes for the task.

Mrs. Pinchot said:

"This is the first time that Congress has officially recognized that the United States will not have prosperity unless we adopt the standards which do not permit sweatshops."

ICKES WARNS ON GOUGING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Contractors were warned last night by Secretary Ickes that if collusive bidding practices are restored to on public works projects the government might manufacture its own materials. He told the Associated General Contractors of America:

"No NRA code legalizes collusive bidding. If, one of these days, the government of the United States or the governments of the various states, great users as they are of such materials as cement, decide to go into the business of manufacturing that or similar materials those who are now violating the law and cynically and unpatrioticaly gouging the public will have only themselves to blame."

Ickes stressed two points. One, that the Public Works Administration would track down any charges of grafting on the part of contractors and, second, that no person has pull enough to escape prosecution.

Conductor Found Dead Beside Train

TILTONVILLE, O., Feb. 1.—Jewett W. Ray, 67, of Massillon, a Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad conductor, was found dead yesterday beside his freight train which had halted for water.

Mysterious Blaze Routs Rich Family

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—A mysterious fire swept through the Lake Shore drive home of William B. Storey yesterday, destroying furnishings worth $50,000.

The family, awakened by thick clouds of smoke, found exit by the front impossible and fled into the cold through a rear door. Storey recently resigned as president of the Santa Fe Railroad.

WEIRTON FEUD POLL SPEEDED

The National Labor Board today was expected to send a representative to Pittsburgh to prepare for a poll of the Weirton Steel Company employes to determine whether they are satisfied with a company union.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the board, said last night in Washington that the machinery for the poll would be set up at once.

President Roosevelt announced an executive order would be issued soon empowering the board to conduct the poll. He promised representatives of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers Tuesday that the sentiment of the workers would be canvassed.

E. T. Weir, chairman of the steel company, refused to comment on the proposed poll.

MINERS TO SEEK NRA PAY SCALE

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—The thirty-third convention of the United Mine Workers of America adjourned here yesterday after selecting Washington as the 1936 convention city and adopting the report of the scale committee which asked for authority to negotiate with the bituminous coal operators, through the NRA, for "the best contract obtainable."

The scale committee and the international officers were empowered to urge the adoption of the five-day week and six-hour day and to seek increased wages when they meet in joint conference with the bituminous operators and NRA officials in Washington February 12.

In recommending adoption of the scale committee's report, President John L. Lewis said it was incumbent upon the organization to approach the forthcoming Washington conference "in a spirit of co-operation."

Woman Breaks Ankle In Fall on Icy Walk

Mrs. Helen McKenzie, 34, of 7934 Susquehanna street, suffered a fractured ankle when she slipped on the ice at Penn and Highland avenues last night, according to police report. She was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Boys Seized, Store Robbery Thwarted

Surprised as one of them was lifting the other into a rear window in the drug store of Harry Reiser, 3459 Ward street, early today, Earl Williman, 16, of 93 Wyoming street, and Russell Betraglia, 16, of 137 Virginia avenue, were arrested, according to an Oakland police report.

The youths said they wanted money to "show a couple of girls a good time," the report said.

Musical Institute Gets New Teachers

George H. Wilkins, the first cellist to broadcast over KDKA, has joined the faculty of the Pittsburgh Musical Institute. Leo Allera, a violinist, is another new member of the institute's teaching staff.

Monday evening, February 12, Charles N. Boyd, head of the theory department, will present a program of original compositions by pupils in his division.

Gimbels Tells the Whole Truth

Major General Smedley D. Butler

U. S. Marine Corps (Retired)
In Our Book Department—Balcony

TOMORROW, 1 TO 3 P. M.

He will be glad to meet his many friends and autograph copies of "Old Gimlet Eye," his life story, as written by Lowell Thomas.

A TRUE Dress Story FOR WOMEN

Too often you women have been urged to buy dresses that were suitable for your daughter in her "teens." Not any more at Gimbels. Here you'll be a special consideration, and not at a prohibitive price, either. Sizes 36 to 44.

The printed crepe features the softly-draped neckline which is so flattering to a mature figure. The print is small, too. That's important.

The black dress features detachable white trimming. Launder it often to keep your dress fresh-looking. Also may be had in navy.

GIMBELS TELLS THE truth

This is no here today, gone tomorrow idea. It's neither a passing fancy nor "sales stunt." We think we know the Pittsburgh public. We're convinced you want to know the whole truth about the merchandise we advertise and sell. Gimbels is going to tell you the whole truth.

In the past we've told you the truth, but not all the facts. Sometimes we've closed one eye. We've seen the advantages of our merchandise and ignored its weak points.

Two weeks ago we advertised men's ties at 39c. The ad informed you that the silks were identical to those used in ties that sold at $1 before Christmas. That was the truth . . . so far as it went. But we failed to say that the 39c group were machine made, not made by hand.

Next time we advertise those ties, you're going to be told the whole truth. The same goes for silks, furniture, dresses, coats and everything. From now on you're going to know what to expect of Gimbel merchandise before you buy it.

COTTON HOUSE FROCKS 1.00

Wear these frocks around the house—they're meant for that only! But nicer house dresses you couldn't find at the price. Made of sturdy, printed broadcloths and percales in sparkling colors. Naturally, like all $1 house dresses, they'll fade and shrink some after a number of tubbings. Reach or stoop all you wish at your work—the firm seams will hold. And for the femininity you crave there are dainty trims of organdie, color contrast and cute styles. High necklines, V and surplice styles.

SENATOR HARRIS FETED BY 2,000 AT DINNER

A review of 25 years of public life was paraded before more than 2,000 persons who last night attended the testimonial dinner for State Senator Frank J. Harris. The review was of the 25 years' service given by Senator Harris and it was presented by a dozen leaders in Pennsylvania's civic and public life.

The banquet was one of the largest ever held in the hotel, with guests dining in all the many banquet halls on the seventeenth floor. United States Senator David A. Reed, who had previously wired that he would be unable to appear, was present and made a short address.

MANY SPEAKERS

Former Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia; John Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, and Charles F. Kelley, district attorney of Philadelphia County, also spoke.

Among the local people, who praised the honored guest and reviewed his work for social legislation in the Senate, were James H. Duff, general chairman; Leo G. Griffith, toastmaster; Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, past president of the Congress of Women's Clubs; Francis S. Guthrie, vice president of the Allegheny County Civic Club; Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh schools, and Mrs. G. B. Rowand, chairman of the Co-Operative Legislative Board of the Transportation Brotherhoods.

PRAISE FOR SENATOR

Each of the speakers was loud in his praise for Senator Harris. Former Mayor Mackey said:

"I have no gift of prophecy. I have no crystal globe into which I can gaze and see the future laid out before me, but I have thorough belief in sincere men. The times and the men and women of purposeful minds will demand the elevation in great places of usefulness of men like Frank Harris, who will be drafted like soldiers in wartime. They have no choice but to accept."

Mr. Guthrie told of his work with Senator Harris in election law reforms. He said:

"To my mind no individual in or out of the Legislature has labored as faithfully, earnestly and intelligently in behalf of moral, social and sound progressive legislation as has he."

HARRIS URGES CAUTION

Senator Harris in his address of thanks, declared that more and more it becomes apparent that there must be changes in governmental operation. He stated that the governments of the nation, state and local bodies will have to be placed on a scientific basis and administered according to well thought out and carefully arranged plans.

He said:

"There is a hue and cry for the reduction of oppressive taxation. This cry is justified and should be heeded—but there should be no hurried, haphazard or thoughtless slashing of expenses without first knowing what the ultimate effect is going to be upon the whole economic system."

AIMEE'S JUDGE GETS THREAT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Investigation of threats against the judge presiding over the trial of the $240,000 breach of contract suit against Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton has been ordered by District Attorney Buron Fitts.

The threats, contained in a typewritten letter, were received by Judge Leon Yankwich shortly before court convened yesterday. Attached to the missive was the printed literature of an organization known as "The Silver Shirts."

Fitts said the organization had been under police investigation several months. The letter said:

"Don't try to get in the good graces of Aimee's followers. Remember Richfield. And don't run for re-election. You know why."

The jurist remarked:

"In the trial of every important case judges receive letters from cranks. Usually I pay no attention to them.

"This letter, however, is different. It comes accompanied by the literature of an organization which is seeking control in our midst. It is a direct attempt at intimidation."

'Anti-Lynch Hearing Invites Rolph, Ritchie

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Chairman Van Nuys announced today that Governors Ritchie, of Maryland, and Rolph, of California, would be invited to testify before his judiciary sub-committee considering the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill.

Justice League Blames Overlapping Costs In Government for High Taxes and Deficits

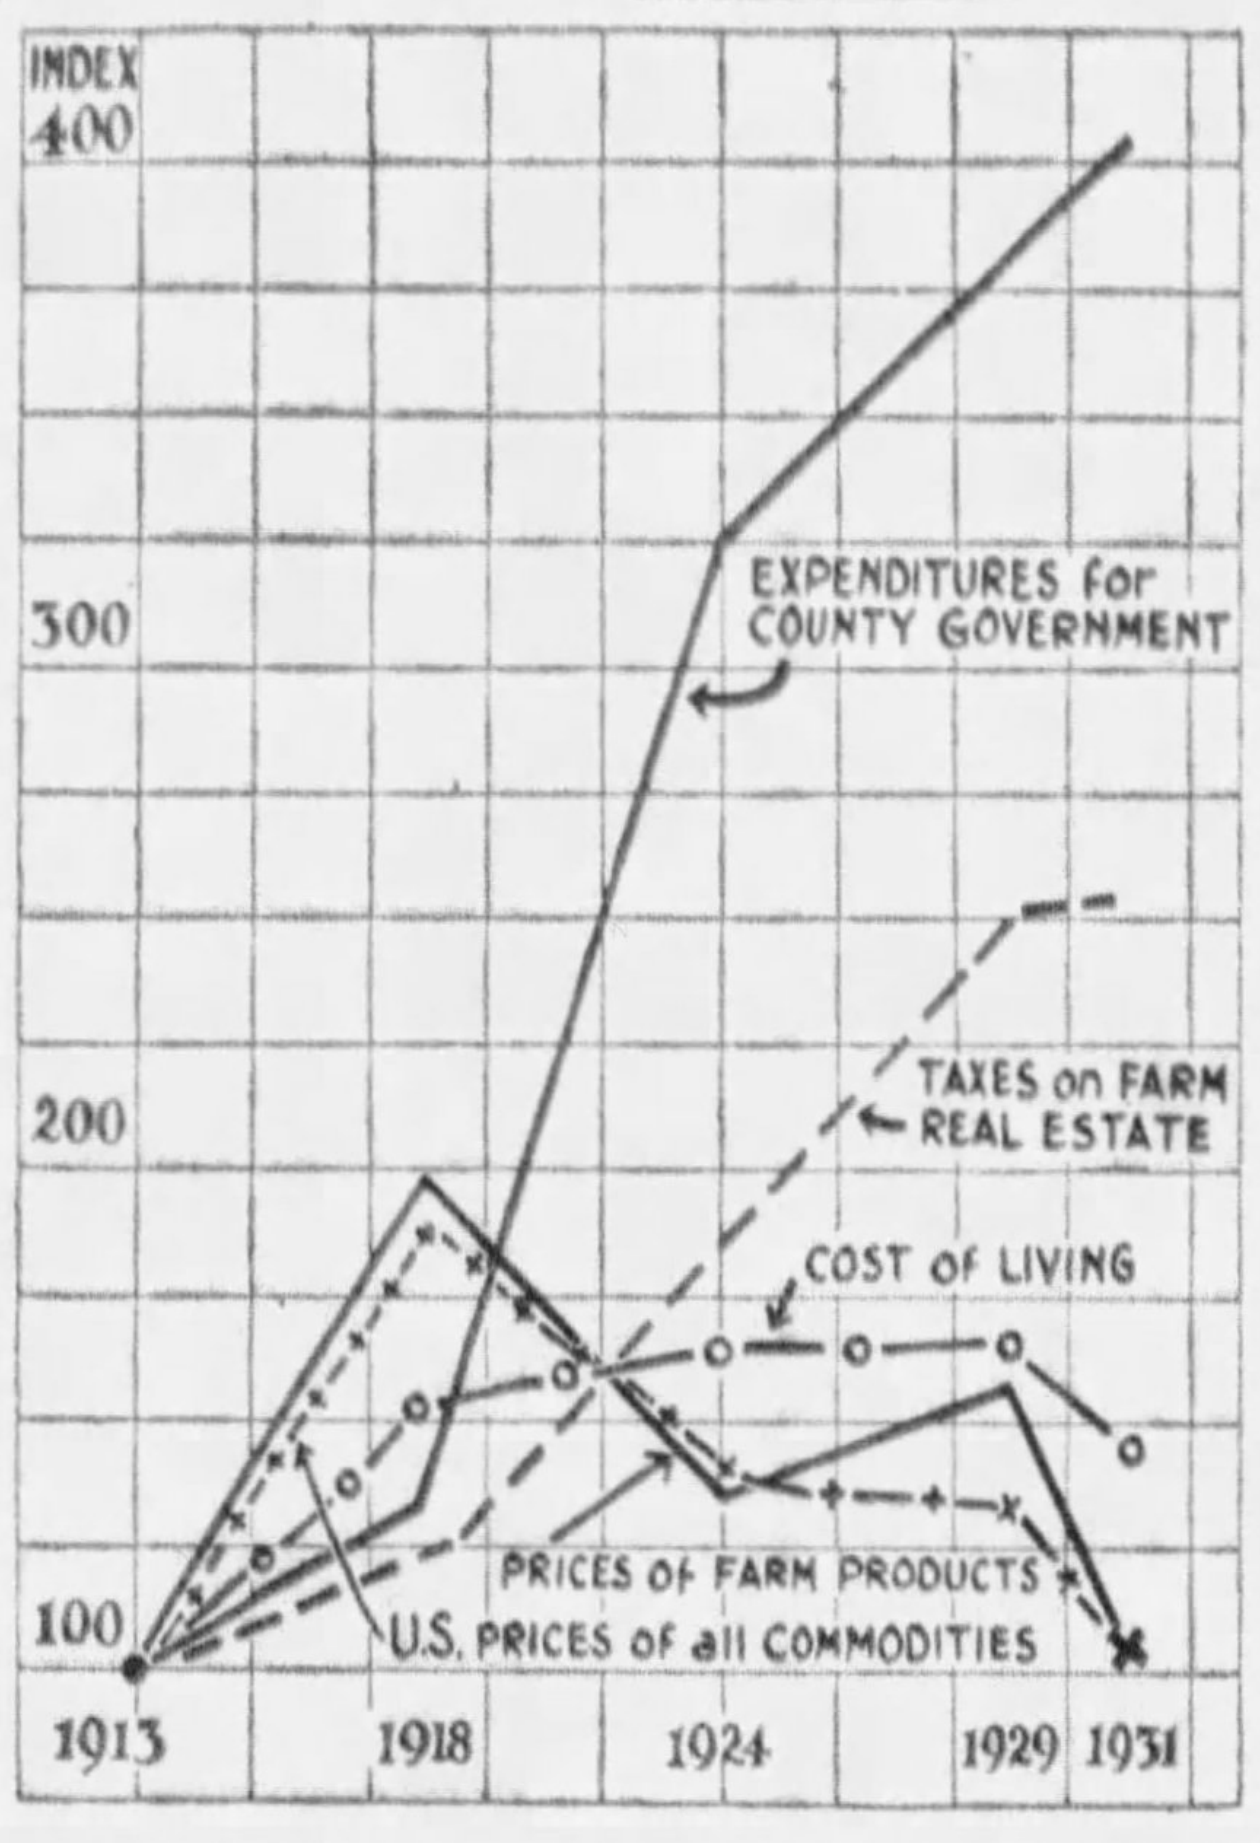
Leaders Map Plan To Cut Wastes In State

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 1.—Overlapping of governmental functions was given as one reason for the raising of taxes beyond reasonable bonds, at a meeting of the executive committee of the Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania here yesterday. Members of the executive board declared thousands of persons are unable to pay their taxes because of the condition brought about through waste and overlapping in governmental functions.

The organization laid plans for a state-wide membership drive to be started immediately. The league disseminates information through its official paper, "The Tax Justice League." Charles S. Kniss, of Altoona, was elected secretary and editor of the publication yesterday.

The aims of the league are lowering of taxes. It was suggested at the meeting here that members of the league refuse to pay their taxes. One executive member pointed out that this would result in court action, but before property could be taken away from the delinquent, "he could pay his taxes with a devalued dollar."

The Tax Justice League is active in more than 50 of the 67 counties. Allegheny County has several branches. In Harrison Township, it was stated, there are more than 5,000 members, and Tarentum and Brackenridge have more than 1,000 each. The membership in the state is reported at more than 700,000.



A graph for comparison of taxes on farm real estate in 26 counties in Pennsylvania, the cost of county government in 13 counties, the prices of 20 farm products, the prices of all U. S. (wholesale) prices of all commodities, and the cost of living in the U. S.

Thousands Reported Unable to Pay This Year

The league has taken a stand to oppose any bond issue that is not self liquidating and favors municipally-owned public utilities. The league also supported the old age pension legislation.

Last September the league, at its annual convention at State College, approved a program which called for the reduction of governmental costs and salaries to a 1913 level, and the abolition of all unnecessary governmental bureaus and offices.

The executive committee planned to wind up its business in one day, but it is likely that additional conferences will be held in the near future. The league leaders gave most of their time to the discussion of waging their membership drive and the problem of spreading their publication into all territories to make the program of the league known to all organizations.

Among those from Pittsburgh who attended the meeting were I. Leonard Aronson, president, and C. V. Shoup, executive secretary, of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League.

candidate, may not ask the state committee in Harrisburg February 10, to indorse his candidacy, though the others designated yesterday will be offered.

In yesterday's conference, in addition to Van Dyke and Guffey, were Sedgwick Kistler, national committeeman, and foe of Guffey; David L. Lawrence, chairman of Allegheny County Democrats, and Mike Boyle, committeeman from Cambria County. Kistler's friends here said they had not been consulted about the slate.

GUFFEY-KISTLER FEUD

Democrats outside of the Guffey-Van Dyke-Lawrence organization have been storming at a ticket headed by Van Dyke and Guffey. They were cheered that some ground had been gained through an initial break in the ranks, but still were dissatisfied with Guffey as a senatorial candidate.

Kistler has been on the outs with Guffey since the state committee meeting of 1932, when Kistler's choice as state chairman, John Collins, of Coudersport, was ousted by the Guffey-Van Dyke forces. Kistler was permitted to remain as national committeeman, but has been outside the breastworks, so far as patronage is concerned.

Logue was a Smith delegate to the 1932 convention, and sided with Kistler. His selection and the retirement of Van Dyke are regarded as bids for the Smith following in the state, and reports from the Philadelphia conference were that Kistler had agreed to the indorsement of Guffey if Van Dyke withdrew and Logue was given a place on the ticket.

DEFEATED BY BONNIWELL

Kennedy is secretary of the United Mine Workers of America and Rhodes is an anti-Guffey Democrat who has been a follower of Judge Samuel Shull, of Stroudsburg, who was defeated by Bonniwell in 1926 for the Democratic nomination, after Shull had been indorsed by the state committee.

Earle, minister to Austria, is a Philadelphia banker. According to Judge Bonniwell, his father was the Penrose Republican candidate for Mayor in 1911, and was defeated.

Bonniwell said:

"This ticket is a Joseph's coat of many colors. Any ticket headed by Joe Guffey is doomed to defeat. The other candidates, with the exception of Kennedy, are amiable gentlemen without a shred of political strength. Placing two Philadelphians on the ticket is a studied effort to block me. There will be plenty of fighting, during and after the state convention."

BACKING FOR COPELAND

One of the backers of Judge Copeland said:

"Perhaps the Van Dyke-Guffey combination will control the state committee, but the elimination of Van Dyke makes our task easier. There are a good many committeemen who like Van Dyke but don't like Guffey. I am confident Judge Copeland will be a candidate in the primary."

Nothing came out of the Philadelphia conference about the demand that Van Dyke, because of his position as collector of the port, should retire as state chairman. It would not be surprising, however, in view of President Roosevelt's attitude, for Van Dyke to quit the party post. In that event it is predicted that Lawrence would head the state committee.

McNair 'Lends' Visitor Marble Key to City

An "economy measure" in the matter of giving costly keys to the city to visiting celebrities was introduced today by Mayor McNair. Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of [illegible]delphia, a prospective Dem[illegible]tic candidate for governor, [illegible] a marble key, but it had a "[illegible]ng" on it. The Mayor told [illegible]isitor he would have to give [illegible] before he left.

[illegible] the administration of the Mayor Charles H. Kline [illegible]ent visitors got gold[illegible] keys.

[illegible]yor McNair explained that [illegible]eforth visitors would be pre[illegible]d with the heavy marble key [illegible] marble base, but each one must return it. He told Judge Bonniwell:

"It's kind of an Indian gift, but you know I'm Scotch."

While news cameras were focused on them, he inquired:

"Ever been photographed much, Judge? Well, I have, and I'm beginning to like it."

Judge Bonniwell visited the Mayor in his office. He will be in Pittsburgh until next Wednesday and will attend a Henry George Club luncheon tomorrow.

About 25 visitors, awaiting the Mayor outside his office, were called in and introduced to the Judge.

INCOME SEIZURE FOR TAX LOOMS

The city will make a vigorous effort to collect delinquent taxes, and may even seize income if necessary, according to J. W. Bamford, chairman of a special committee authorized by Council.

The committee met last night at the office of City Treasurer James P. Kirk.

Lists are to be compiled of persons and corporations owing large amounts of delinquent taxes. According to Kirk, the campaign is not to be aimed at small delinquents.

Bamford, who suggested the committee as a means of collecting a possible increase of $2,000,000, last night said:

"Where the taxpayer can pay, he'll be forced to pay."

Others serving on the committee are Councilmen William A. Magee and John M. Huston, City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully, City Controller James P. Kerr, J. W. Cree, Jr., and James C. Chaplin.

Ear Muffs Defend M'Govern From Money Pleas

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern appeared at a meeting of the Commissioners yesterday with a pair of ear muffs—the old-fashioned kind.

When Nevin Woodside, deputy county controller, asked the county for $500,000 or so, McGovern put them on and commented:

"Take my advice, boys, and get yourselves a pair of these. They're old-fashioned, but you can put them on when you leave the courthouse and never hear a word until you get back."

He approved Woodside's petition for transfer of the money, however.

Mdivani Charges Face Court Ouster

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1.—(INS.)—Motions for dismissal of charges accusing the Princes Serge and David Mdivani from misappropriating $30,747 from the Pacific Shore Oil Company, which they organized and formerly headed, today were to be ruled upon by Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron.

The motions were presented by defense counsel, who previously scored a victory in having the court dismiss two of the 14 charges of the indictment against the princely brothers.

BAN 'STOLEN' TOWEL LABELS

"Stolen from Allegheny County."

Commissioner C. C. McGovern is for it.

But Commissioner William D. Mansfield is against it also.

So Director of Supplies Ray Sprigle must have the "stolen from" stamped off 40 dozen of the towels, leaving a black smudge above the words "Allegheny County."

McGovern commented:

"That's a good idea."

Barr broke in:

"I don't want the county to infer that anyone who has a towel is a thief."

McGovern chuckled and said:

"If the others don't want them, put them in my room."

British Bank Shut, U. S. Citizens Hit

ST. RAPHAEL, France, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—A number of American residents of the Riviera were hit by the closing today of the W. F. King Bank, British-owned banking and real estate concern, which was widely known to tourists.

The amount of American money tied up was not revealed.

SLUMP SAVED U. S. IN CRISIS, BRILL SAYS

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Dr. A. Brill, the noted psychiatrist, peered inside the cranium of Homo Americanus today and found there an emotional hangover plus a yearning for a big, strong father to lean on.

Then he looked toward the White House and saw signs leading him to declare that Franklin D. Roosevelt may be the father who will satisfy the yearning.

Dr. Brill—whose description of Abraham Lincoln as a Schizoid manic personality raised a memorable controversy in 1931—said the depression saved the nation from destruction, but left it bewildered and shocked its confidence in its leaders.

EMOTIONAL HANGOVER

The emotional hangover, Dr. Brill said, was brought on by "too much prosperity and too much relaxation of the moral standards which are the assets of civilization." Dr. Brill continued:

"Millions of young people, in whom the primitive impulses were held in check by religion, morality and ethics went to the World War, and there all those standards were let go. Human life became cheap. To kill became a virtue.

"In addition we got prohibition, and by its non-enforcement bred general laxity in law observation.

"Then came unprecedented prosperity in this country. Poor men became millionaires. Millionaires piled up more millions. Now, whenever people have a lot of money, they realize their wishes to a high degree. They spend it usually on luxuries.

DEPRESSED FORTUNATE

"But there is no limit to the gratification of wishes. Once you begin and can continue, it leads always to destruction. People die from fatty degeneration of the heart, they over-eat and die, they get into all sorts of sex troubles. Prosperity has ruined the greatest nations. Fortunately, there came the depression."

Dr. Brill declared that the present "fermentation, upheaval, revolution" represent the transition "between lawlessness and irregularity back to the co-operation and regularity of civilized life." But the average citizen, his confidence in leaders destroyed ("leaders like Jimmy Walker who represented the pleasure principle of life") needs a "strong father" who can control him and inspire him with confidence in the struggle "with grim reality," the struggle that improves mankind.

18 in Crowd Fighting Eviction Arrested

Eighteen persons, 17 of them Negroes, including two women, arrested late yesterday after they were said to have threatened deputy sheriffs evicting a Negro family from a house at 6 Beebe street, were to be arraigned in Center Avenue Police Court today.

After the deputies had carried the furniture into the street and left, a crowd moved it back into the house, police said. A call was sent to the Sheriff's office and the deputies returned and again moved out the furniture. Police were called and made the arrests.

STOCKS SOAR ON DOLLAR SLASH

WALL STREET SURPRISED

The President's announcement, made an hour after New York markets had closed on Wednesday, caught Wall street a bit off balance. Stocks had declined under heavy profit-taking yesterday and brokerage circles were talking "reaction." But the decision to reduce the dollar's gold value to 59.06 per cent of former parity made the unit slightly cheaper than Wall street had anticipated, and huge buying orders poured into commission houses over night.

The opening recalled some of last summer's busiest days, for it took blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares to handle the accumulated transactions.

Many domestic bonds were strong and scores of issues reached their best prices in two years or longer.

Commodities, however, were less aggressive. Wheat opened moderately higher but met realizing.

U. S. on Gold Bullion Standard—Morgenthau

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Secretary Morgenthau today described the new United States monetary situation as a "1934 model of a gold bullion standard."

Meanwhile, Prof. Irving Fisher testified before a House Banking subcommittee today that the existing Federal Reserve system "will now be lucky if it escapes destruction altogether."

He made this comment in indorsing proposals for a federal monetary authority with sole currency issuing powers.

The bill before the committee for establishment of the monetary authority, the Yale professor held to be "a splendid step toward the goal which President Roosevelt has set before us."

POLITICAL REASONS

For "political reasons," he asserted, the Federal Reserve system with 12 regional instead of one central bank was established in 1913. He continued:

> "Only a loose and ineffective co-ordination was attempted through the Federal Reserve Board. The result has been chaos and internal dissension."

In his first press conference since President Roosevelt's devaluation proclamation, Morgenthau answered a number of questions about the new money situation, but declined to say anything about operation of the stabilization fund.

Morgenthau expanded the gold purchase regulations to specify that the New York Federal Reserve Bank will buy imported gold bars. It is acting as the Treasury's agent.

Asked whether abandonment of the gold standard by France would mean a world embargo on gold shipments, Morgenthau's only reply was that such developments would be taken under advisement.

Morgenthau said the advisors in guiding the dollar would be a "flexible, shifting group."

ADVICE OF EXPERTS

Advice of different experts will be sought from time to time, he pointing out that yesterday's White House conference included himself, Gov. Eugene Black, of the Federal Reserve Board; Gov. George L. Harrison, of the New York Reserve Bank; Profs. George F. Warren and James H. Rogers and Herman Oliphant, the Treasury's general counsel.

Morgenthau was unable to give any exact estimates of the flight of capital back to this country or how much profit might be made by those who purchased gold standard currencies prior to devaluation.

In other administration quarters, it was said that in its monetary actions, the United States wanted the whole world to go along and share in any recovery which might develop. It was emphasized there was no bitterness against any nation and that money policies would be directed with the desire of aiding the whole world.

Roosevelt Calls Move 'Higher Mathematics'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt had a ready answer for questions as to why the gold weight of the new dollar was set at 59.06 per cent of its old level.

"Higher mathematics," he said.

He went on to explain that the new price of gold was set first at $35 an ounce to obtain a round figure to simplify Treasury bookkeeping on future gold transactions. Then by figuring the relationship of this figure to the old statutory gold price of 20.67 the percentage figure was reached.

GOLD VALUE UP 8 BILLIONS

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Reckoned on the new gold value of the dollar, the world supply of monetary gold has jumped from some $12,000,000,000 to more than $20,000,000,000.

The United States monetary gold supply becomes about $6,800,000,000, in contrast to roughly $4,030,000,000, on the basis of the old dollar. American gold remains about one-third of the total world supply.

The next biggest hoard is that of the Bank of France, amounting to one-fourth of the world supply. The French Central Bank's reserve of yellow metal, according to its weekly statement, was $5,108,000,000, calculated on the new parity of 6.63 cents for the franc, although the franc has failed as yet to get up to that level.

HIGHER PRICES U. S. GOAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—The man-in-the-street with a dollar in his pocket needn't look at it any differently today because of its revaluation at 59.06 per cent of a former gold equivalent: The effect should be looked for elsewhere.

President Roosevelt hopes the devaluation will be shown first in the list of commodity prices. That is, that the same dollar wouldn't buy quite as much as it did before; the theory being that higher gold prices mean higher commodity prices.

Even so, the administration does not look for such a projected dollar "shrinkage" in terms of buying power to leap into effect so quickly as to bring an instantaneous change in prices.

JEWISH GROUP ELECTS FALK

Leon Falk, Jr., was elected president of the Federation of Jewish philanthropies of Pittsburgh at a meeting of the organization last night in Beth Shalom Synagogue, Squirrel Hill.

The formation of two more Jewish federations—one for religious activities and the other for educational and cultural lines—were suggested by the federation's executive director, Dr. Ludwig B. Bernstein.

Other election returns were: Mrs. Joseph Jackson and Stanley Kann, vice presidents; Max Blum, treasurer; Charles J. Rosenbloom, assistant treasurer, and Miss Minnie Affelder, secretary.

Directors chosen were: Richard Blum, Robert Frank, Edwin May, Mrs. Louise J. Reizenstein, Harold Obernauer, Bennie Neiman and Irwin D. Wolf. Judge Benjamin Lencher previously had been elected a director.

EXPO BUILDING PLAN AWAITED

A tentative plan of a proposed building on the old Exposition grounds at the Point will be presented by the Greater Pittsburgh Exposition Society to the City Planning Commission next week.

Council suggested the action yesterday to P. M. Chamberlain, representing the society, after Councilman P. J. McArdle had expressed fear the society's plan might prove a "white elephant" to the city.

Council also adopted a motion to request copies of the county's plans for a new bridge and South Hills tunnel near the Point from the County Commissioners to aid in determination of whether the proposed building could be constructed without interfering with traffic improvements.

MONETARY GOLD THING OF PAST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Gold certificates are a thing of the past except for padlocked Treasury and Reserve bank vaults.

All the gold certificates, as they trickle into the banks, are being sent to the Treasury for destruction. The new gold certificates now being printed are intended only for the Federal Reserve banks, replacing the gold the government took from them.

Likewise, gold coins now are history. The "1934 gold bullion standard," as Secretary Morgenthau describes it, contemplates the use of gold only in bullion form.

Stabilization Fund Assistants Approved

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—(INS.)—Appointment of 10 assistants to aid Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau in operating the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund provided in the gold devaluation bill was approved by the House ways and means committee today.

The committee incorporated a provision in its new tax bill permitting Morgenthau to pay salaries of $10,000 a year to the new assistants. The present limit is $8,000 annually.

French Gold Flow To America Starts

NEW YORK, Feb. 1,—(INS.)—The expected rush of gold from Paris to New York got under way today with the booking for shipment to this country of 80,000,000 francs, or $5,000,000 of the metal.

The gold is expected to leave Saturday on the Bremen, the fastest ship sailing from that side this week. Further bookings of the metal also are expected before Saturday.

DOLLAR STILL 10 DIMES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—The dollar in its new 59.06 per cent dress will still make as much change as before.

But if President Roosevelt's managed currency plan succeeds, it eventually will buy less. That is, it will take more dollars to buy a bale of cotton or a bushel of wheat.

This is another way of expressing the theory that commodity prices follow gold prices, that by making gold more costly in terms of dollars, other commodities will become more costly and producers, especially the farm population, will get more for what they sell.

Except as prices react, the dollar that's carried around in pocketbooks won't change at all. It still contains 10 silver dimes, four quarters, 20 nickels. What President Roosevelt's proclamation did was to reduce the amount of gold in the gold dollar as defined in the statute books.

AMY MOLLISO , JUDGE CLAS

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. eb. 1.—(AP.)—County Judge Bo H. Anderson, who fined Amy Jo son Mollison, British aviatrix, $5 and costs on a reckless driving arge Monday, yesterday offered re-open the case and s u bm the facts to a jury.

Mrs. Mollison, discussing affair at Palm Beach was quo d as saying she was not allow to testify for herself.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Cla, the arresting officer, said he di ayed his badge and papers of i tification when he first stopp Mrs. Mollison after she had pass him, he said, Sunday night at estimated 70 miles an hour.

Mrs. Mollison had been uoted as saying two men had opped her and because they we too "harsh and discourteous" to be police she drove off. She dded: "Police don't act like angsters in England."

MRS. KAUFMANN HEADS HOSPITAL

One of the few women ever to hold such a position in a large hospital in this country, Mrs. Edgar Kaufmann was elected president of the Montefiore Hospital at a meeting of the board of directors yesterday.

Although hospital officials prior to the last decade generally were women, because the field was considered definitely a woman's work, rarely have women in recent years been accorded the honor won by Mrs. Kaufmann, it is pointed out.

Mrs. Kaufmann's association with the Montefiore covers a number of years as a member of the board and in various other capacities. Included among her other interests is the Emma Farm Association, child welfare organization, of which she is president. She is the wife of Edgar Kaufmann, president of Kaufmann's store.

Other officers named by the board yesterday are Charles Dreifus and Edwin C. May, vice presidents; Max L. Blum, treasurer; Max Rothschild, assistant treasurer, and Karl J. Kaufmann, secretary.

"—if I don't someone else will have my job"

HOW? "Well, I learned years ago that work . . . wear and tear . . . takes something out of men and women—particularly those who work indoors.

"Good food and fresh air at night are most valuable, but I found that the so-called simple tired feeling—'let down' some call it—comes from overtaxing one's strength.

"I tore down those precious red-blood-cells faster than my good body could rebuild. A friend told me the story of that grand medicine S.S.S. Now at 4 P. M. I am fit to still 'carry on'."

One of the really sad things in life is the pushing aside or "shelving" of the weak . . . someone is always ready for your job. Why not reason sensibly that when you begin to "let-down" then it is time . . before it is too late . . . to build back your vitality?

Of course, if you suspect an organic trouble, consult a physician or surgeon. But if you feel weak . . . lack a keen appetite . . . or if your skin is pale . . . try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite . . . your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, we recommend S.S.S. because its value has been proven by generations, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. It is sold by all drug stores in two convenient sizes . . . the larger is more economical.

There is no substitute for S.S.S.

Secure S.S.S. from your own druggist . . . with few exceptions druggists are ethical and conscientious, and will not suggest a substitute. No medicine has the same formula as this time-tested Blood Tonic . . . nor does any other concern gather the same roots with their own trained collectors and extract the active medicinal principles, unchanged, in their original fresh state—this is the secret of S.S.S. . . . there is no substitute. Thousands of people have a low red-blood-cell count and don't recognize it. S.S.S. is useful in promoting a keen appetite and restoring deficient red-blood-cells and their hemo-glo-bin content which are so necessary for sound health. © The S.S.S. Co.

BY "KAYNEE"

Santa was busy making nice toys for good boys, while "Kaynee" was looking ahead to Spring. Each one of the "Kaynee" helpers was trying to out-do the other by seeing who could make the prettiest wash suits, while Big "Kaynee" stood on guard to be sure that each stitch was just so.

One little helper shouted, "Ha! Ha! I've made 436 of the $2.95 ones!" Another shouted, "I made 612 of the $2.45 'uns." And the third little helper said—"Mine are $1.95 'uns an' they're real bargains, too." Louder and louder they shouted when in walked the big bad "Behr"* and bought all of those fine "Kaynee" wash suits and took them to Rosenbaum's Spring Sale.

So, good children, tell Mother to run as fast as she can to get some of these suits. Now go to sleep, so you can get up early and come along with Mother. She'll let you pick out the ones you like best.

DON'T GIVE UP! :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Middle Age Is No Handicap Unless We Make It Such

The woman who is middle-aged and has been married for many years to a nice, wholesome man who has shoveled in the bread and butter and has always furnished a sizable roof.

The woman whose children are now grown up, and either married and have homes of their own, or are out in the bustling world making their own contacts.

The woman who now finds herself shivering in the emotional cold of a new loneliness.

That is the woman I am thinking of.

Ugh, how bitter it is for her. And how she bemoans her fate. True, there are other middle-aged sisters here in Pittsburgh who are awaiting the Sheriff, and who need a pair of shoes.

Yet they could not be so miserable as she.

What is she going to do, any way?

Lie down and die for the sheer pleasure of dying? At least that will give her one last orgy of flowers and all her family taking a day off to mourn for her.

Or is she going to brace up and be a sport?

Time plays pranks on many of us, and they are not always pleasant ones. Life, no matter how we mold it, and how unselfish we think we are, and how many loving services we embroider into it, often back pedals on us. And the thing is to be ready for it. Or if not, to adjust ourselves quickly. Never let the cat out of the bag. Never let everybody know we have been worsted.

MANY CHANGES

Children have a way of growing up, and not needing their mothers. It is nature. Look at the birds. Who ever heard of a robin red breast groaning because her fledgings had learned how to fly!

The trouble is no one's life today can keep on moving in the same old grove. It can't be done. Look how the skyline has changed in downtown Pittsburgh. Political shakeups come along, and new faces appear in the newspapers. Kings are shot at, and their sons are enthroned or a republic is made. We use airplanes instead of stage coaches.

Nations rise and fall, and men like Roosevelt are born among us.

And yet some of us women are unreasonable enough to want our babies to remain needing us always, and longing for our husbands never to pass the stage of weeping in our laps.

And when our families no longer act to our liking, instead of being proud that we have accomplished the greatest thing in the universe, that we have done our part in making thinking men and women, we mope in a corner, and long to keep on serving the same people in the same old way. And we even plan ways and means to shove our ideas right down their throats. We have become obsessed with ourselves as sculptors and do not want to give up the job.

EXPERIENCE VALUABLE

Of course, we have done a great deal for these people. We have given our years, and our own individual ambitions. And where are we now? Out in the cold, that is all.

But where is our old-time stamina? Where is our backbone? There are interesting events scheduled daily. People are making good who didn't even have a breaking chance with us.

And yet we are allowing these very people to say we are losing out.

Middle age is no handicap in these days, unless we make it such. Experience is what is always getting the pay increase.

And so, my women, having been a good wife and a good mother, and having made real men and real women out of those who once were weak, right about, face!

Don't let whitening hair take a too early toll with you.

Be somebody else other than you were. Get busy, and try the rejuvenating process, mental as well as physical.

Mother Nature does this very thing with the whole world every spring.

Be like her!

FAY-KING

By FAY KING

Romantic youth imagines that its chances for happiness are less because it does not bask in the spotlight of the world.

Youth despairs because it is obscure and unknown and cannot mingle where it might meet and marry the more famous.

Youth's chances for happiness are in reality greater. Though the young are denied the applause and apparent popularity which are a part of a successful worldly career, they also avoid the pitfalls and misery which are not an unknown quantity in that same glamorous environment.

Have they not observed the pr choices for happy marriages made by those who seem to have ch an enviable choice?

There is little peace or conte where insatiable ambition is never satisfied with any amount of ccess!

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis Agrees to Keep Out of Marital Picture

Again a warning rang deep in my consciousness at the little speech of Avis Arlen, concerning her Uncle Phil's being so "set upon" her being a bridesmaid for Mary. When Phillip Veritzen had exacted the promise from Noel and Mary that Avis should be a bridesmaid as a favor to him, in exchange for his agreement to change the elaborate honeymoon plans he had made for them, he had said that the girl never had had the opportunity to serve as a bridesmaid, but was "wild" to be one. Yet from his speech I could conclude—

I brought myself up with a round turn. Whatever lay behind that request by Philip Veritzen, it was now impossible of fulfillment. I knew that no consideration of offending his father or of anything else in the world would sway Noel in what I was sure would be an iron resolve to keep Avis from being any part of the wedding picture.

If indeed there were any wedding picture! For a panic-stricken second I remembered the scene I had left in my study, with Mary, defiant and resentful, saying she was "not so sure" that she meant to "change her last name" upon the morrow.

My present problem, I saw clearly, was to manage this bridesmaid thing so that Philip Veritzen would have no chance to blame Noel and Mary for the sudden withdrawal of Avis.

DOUBTS GIRL

I gave Avis credit for cunning enough to realize that she had no possible chance now to appear in the wedding procession, and to shift bases so rapidly and adroitly as to make it appear to the farm household that her failing to appear was her own choice, not the irate mandate of Noel.

I gathered my wits together, and gave her an assurance I was far from feeling.

"I am sure he won't be angry if he thinks you do not care much about it," I said. "As I understand it, his reason for wishing you to be a part of the procession was that you never had been a bridesmaid."

She hesitated for an instant, then answered glibly.

"Yes, yes, of course, he is always so thoughtful, Uncle Phil. But I don't feel as if I could tell him the real reason, about tonight."

Again intuition warned me that her speech was not entirely sincere, but I hastened to agree with her.

"You surely would not wish anyone, even your mother, to know of that scene in the study tonight," I said smoothly. "And yet, if Mr. Veritzen finds out about it from you—he cannot possibly know from anyone else—I shall have to take back my promise to you, Avis, and let every single person in this house know every detail of that scene in the study."

SUPPLIES EXCUSE

She sat up suddenly, her face flaming.

"Surely you could not be so despicable," she cried.

"Your adjective would be the only one to describe such an action," I told her. "But in this case," my voice hardened, "I must fight fire with fire. Take your choice, Avis. Make some plausible excuse to Mr. Veritzen about not wishing to join the wedding procession, and I will keep your secret. Tell him the truth, which you realize as well as I—that Noel would not now permit you to walk in it—and I tell everyone what happened tonight. What is your answer?"

She was silent for several long minutes, then she spoke, slowly, sullenly.

"I have no choice. I must do as you say. I will not tell Uncle Phil the truth. But what excuse can I give him?"

My answer was ready. I had been conning it in the back of my brain for several minutes.

"Tell him you just couldn't wear that unbecoming bridesmaid's gown," I said, "and that we could not let you wear the green and silver one."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Tuberculosis Called 'The Enemy of Youth'

Is it true that all children at sometime or another have tuberculosis? This is a question frequently asked and difficult to answer with absolute certainty. But it is the opinion of leading authorities that at one time or another some variety of tuberculosis is present.

Dr. Copeland

If the natural resistance of the body is good, no particular damage results. Unfortunately, many children and adults lack this power of resistance and they are in danger of severe forms of tuberculosis.

The child showing signs of tuberculosis can be guarded against the severe form of the disease. Special attention to hygiene and proper care will give relief.

What are these precautions?

To be on the safe side it is well to assume that all children who suffer from malnutrition, underdevelopment, chronic cough, persistent high temperature and loss of weight, should be suspected of having a touch of tuberculosis. They should be subjected to the "tuberculin test," and the X-ray.

If the tuberculin test is positive, or the X-ray picture shows evidence of tuberculosis, do not be alarmed. Bear in mind that early discovery means early recovery. It is neglect that is dangerous and may prove exceedingly serious.

Rest, fresh air, good food, plenty of sunlight and moderation in all things, are the protective measures that make it possible to ward off tuberculosis. In them lies, too, our means of cure. When tuberculosis is recognized in the early stages and proper measures are taken for its control, complete cure is possible. This treatment permits e young sufferers to develop to strong and sturdy in-ividuals.

How different this is from the be and cure offered to the ung victims of this disease cy 25 years ago. But the dger, the real menace, of tubculosis must never be overlked.

'uberculosis results from the gm known as the "bacillus tubculosis." This particular germ isver present in our midst.

he germs are carried from o person to another by kissing orcoughing, or by using the sae towel, silverware or glasswe. The germs may be spread byn individual who does not knw he has the infection.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Choosing the Right Bid

Sometimes the contracts undertaken by expert players appear daring in the extreme to the less experienced, while, on the other hand, occasionally an expert will seem to temper his bids almost to the point of timidity; but if the student will search long enough he will usually find a sound reason in the one case for what may appear to be over-boldness and in the other case for what may look like undue timidity. Of course, I do not mean to say that experts do not make mistakes. As a matter of fact, they probably make more mistakes than average players because they reach out after bigger things and it is as true of Bridge as of life that the person who is seeking to do something is most likely to err.

North, Dealer.

	♠ A Q J 9
	◇ A Q J 10 7 6
♠ 8 5 3 2	North	♠ K 7 4
♡ 8 2	West East	♡ A K 10 7 6 4
◇ 8 4		◇ K 9
♣ K Q J 10 2	South	♣ 8 4
	♠ 10 6
	♡ Q J 9 5
	◇ 5 3 2
	♣ A 7 6 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	1 ♡	1 N T (1)	Pass (2)
3 ♠ (3)	Pass (4)	3 N T (5)	Pass
Pass	Double (6)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—While ordinarily under these conditions South should not make a free bid, he realizes, holding what is almost sure to be two trump tricks if the hand is played in hearts, that he must show these stoppers at once. He has three small cards of his partner's bid suit and can, of course, stand the play of the hand at that contract. A Double is the other alternative, but, as a matter of fact, an unsatisfactory one as East would probably make one heart or, at worst, be set one.

2—With partner strong enough to overcall and an almost established suit, West is rather anxious that the game contract be undertaken.

3—North wants to force South to a choice of a game contract in spades or diamonds.

4—There is too great danger of a heavy set should East bid again.

5—South is unwilling to raise the diamonds with only three small ones. Notrump appears the safest road to game.

6—East feels sure that both the King of spades and the King of diamonds are good for tricks, and the prospect of establishing the long hearts seems good enough to justify the Double.

West opened the club King, and South permitted it to hold. He then continued with the Queen of Clubs, and this trick the Declarer was forced to take, even at the risk of a big set. If he failed to take it then the contract would be automatically defeated as East had two heart tricks and his Double indicated that both the diamond and spade Kings were in his hand. Thus to permit the second club trick to be made automatically would defeat the contract at least one trick as it would be impossible to shut out both the spade and diamond King. South studied the possibilities of his hand and observed that the great difficulty which confronted him was that he held no re-entries to make his Queen and Knave of hearts. On the other hand, he could not afford to concede a spade and diamond trick as these, in addition to the one club and two heart tricks, would defeat the contract. West seemed to be marked with five clubs and thus East must have but two. However, in spite of the fact that East probably could not lead clubs, to finesse the diamonds on the third lead meant a sure penalty as East could play the Ace and King of hearts and return another diamond, which South would have to take and lose a spade trick in the end.

The only possibility for success in the play of the hand was to prevent East from returning a diamond, which could be done if he held but two as was actually the case. The Declarer therefore refused the diamond finesse, winning the first diamond trick with the Ace and returning the Ten. East was thus put in the lead, and his play at this point was immaterial. Had he played a small spade South would have won it with the Ten and returned the heart Queen. If East refused to take this trick, South would have the required nine tricks. On the other hand, if he won the Queen of hearts, he had no satisfactory lead to make.

As the hand was actually played, East made South's task as difficult as possible. He took the fifth and sixth tricks with the Ace and King of hearts, expecting then to play a small spade, which he hoped would have to be taken in the North hand, in which case he could later make the spade King for the setting trick. South, however, was prepared for this play. He discarded the Knave of spades from Dummy on the King of hearts, and once more East was defenseless. A heart lead was out of the question and a small spade equally ineffective. Also, the lead of the spade King could accomplish nothing.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Sympathy

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know if it would be proper to send a bouquet of flowers, with a card, to a mother whose son committed suicide last year? We would like to send her something on that date, or in some way express our sympathy.

The son happens to have been my husband's employer's son, although he was just like a brother to us. He was really one of the family. We don't like to do anything that would look like a "teacher's pet" act, yet he meant so much to us, we know it would make his mother happy if we would remember him in some way.

He was cremated, so we cannot very well take any flowers to his grave. K.

Please do, I urge you, carry out your sweet and thoughtful plan. There cannot possibly be any misinterpretation of any thought so generously conceived and of course this mother will be deeply touched by your goodness and by your wish to bring her comfort by your friendliness, and by your kind remembering.

Instead of sending a card with your flowers, I do wish that you would consider writing her a letter of understanding and comfort. Your letter to me was so especially gracious that I am sure that this letter to this sorrowing mother would be a priceless spiritual treasure to her. It needn't be a long letter . . . just a few sentences of sincere expression of your thought of her and of your devotion to the memory of her son, who was such a dear friend to you and your husband.

Mourning Stationery

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Mourning stationery is correct, if you wish to use it, but nowadays very few people do this. If you do use it, be sure to choose the letter paper with the very narrow black border.

WERRENRATH TO 'WED' WIFE

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Reinald Werrenrath, noted concert singer, will be a "bridegroom" tomorrow. He is going to "marry" his wife, Verna True Werrenrath.

In an unusual ceremony at the home of his friend, Brayton Withherell, of Winnetka, the Werrenraths will be reunited as man and wife in a ceremony which the singer calls a "reaffirmation of marriage."

Six years ago on February 2, in the mayor's office at Weehawken, N. J., the Werrenraths were married in a civil ceremony. There were no orange blossoms, and none of the trappings of a church wedding.

Now, they are going to reaffirm that ceremony by being remarried by a minister, as an organ plays traditional Lohengrin, in a solemn setting. Werrenrath said:

"I presume our civil marriage was legal and all that, but I jokingly tell my wife that perhaps we have been living in sin, so we decided to make it even more binding."

FIRST SEA HOP PILOT DIES

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Walter Wellman, 75, explorer and first man to attempt a flight across the Atlantic Ocean, is dead. He had been ill for three months when death came yesterday.

Although Wellman made four attempts to reach the North Pole, twice afoot and twice by air, he was best known for the attempted flight to London. It was made in 1910 and ended after 79 hours about 375 miles off Cape Hatteras. Wellman and his crew of five were rescued from the dirigible America by the steamship Trent.

The first feat which brought Wellman into the public eye was finding and marking the exact spot where Columbus landed on Watling Island, or San Salvador.

In addition to Mrs. Wellman, who was his second wife, two sons, Walter, Jr., and Francis, and a daughter, Elsa, were with him when he died. His first wife was Miss Laura McCann, of Canton, O., whom he married in 1878. Five daughters were born to them.

Police Learn 'Bomb' Is Birthday Cake

Lawrenceville police rushed to the residence of Walter Thomas, Negro, of Rutherglen street, early today after Thomas telephoned that there was a bomb on his front porch.

Capt. Thomas Lyons, observing something smoking on the porch, kicked a box down the steps into the street, where, upon examination, he found it to be a cardboard birthday cake bedecked with four candles.

Preacher Fined In Auto Violation

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 1.—The Rev. Will W. Orr, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, was fined $10 and costs by Alderman D. D. Garvin. A highway patrolman charged the pastor drove around the safety gates at a street crossing.

Barbara, Alexis Continue Tour

There are more nudists than that in the African jungles now, up in the trees, and, although they do have the decency to wear fur, that does not help Africa's civilization.

It is what you do inside of your head, not how you decorate the outside of your body, that makes you useful or otherwise. You could not possibly think going around naked except to think how silly you must look.

OGDEN L. MILLS, Secretary of the Treasury under President Hoover, tells Kansas Republicans that the goings on under President Roosevelt alarms him. Says he:

"We have to run back many centuries to the days of absolute autocracy, to find so great a power. The lives of millions of men lie in the hands of a single, fallible human being. Silence is not a virtue."

This country is doing things brand new, but the average American will reply that something had to be done, and inevitably "a single fallible human being," had to do it. This country had experimented thoroughly with the policy of doing nothing.

AND, WHILE it is true that many billions are being spent, some, perhaps, not with the wisdom of angels, at least, all the money is staying in the United States, spent in stores, feeding families, relieving distress and depression. It isn't being sent to Europe.

IMPORTANT GOLD strikes in the Kalgoorlie region of West Australia have brought thousands of foreigners. Australia's motto is "Australia for Australians." Foreigners are not liked or wanted, and several were killed, many buildings owned by foreigners burned in riots yesterday.

Each people may do what it likes about its own country, but Australians, living close under the shadow of sixty million Japanese in their overcrowded islands, may wish some day that they had made white population more welcome. They are only a handful now, and their territory is tempting.

Don't take calomel!

HERE'S NEW HEALTH FOR YOUR LIVER

Now banish bad breath, pimples, constipation; feel like a million!

That tired, frowsy feeling in the morning, that "dark-brown" taste in the mouth—if you would banish them and win back buoyant health, don't expect relief from salts, mineral oil, or candy and chewing-gum laxatives.

For such remedies only move the bowels. While chances are, you're one of the thousands suffering from sluggish liver, which does not yield sufficient bile — causing pimples, blemishes, headaches, bad breath and a general run-down feeling.

What you need is something which acts thoroughly but harmlessly upon the liver. And in Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets you will find that "something," which stimulates the bile flow.

A successful substitute for calomel, these famous tablets are compounded of pure vegetable ingredients, and have been praised for years by millions.

To get and keep the bile flowing freely—correcting constipation, skin troubles, and win back that "fine-and-dandy" feeling of youth—go to your druggist for Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets today. 15c, 30c, 60c.

STATE BATTLES U. S. RUM TAX, AIDS AGENTS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania is both co-operating with and fighting the federal government in the enforcement of liquor revenue laws.

State officials conferred with Department of Justice agents on co-ordinating enforcement yesterday while the commonwealth was obtaining an injunction to prevent seizure of 1,000,000 gallons of state-owned liquor for non-payment of taxes.

WAR ON BOOTLEGGERS

The co-ordination conference laid plans, in the words of the State Liquor Control Board, "to eliminate the bootleggers and confine the liquor business to the channels prescribed by the Legislature." Representatives of the control board, the Revenue Department, State Police and Highway Patrol met the Justice Department agents.

In obtaining the injunction in the Dauphin County Court, Attorney General William A. Schnader argued that the liquor is owned by a sovereign state and therefore is not subject to the floor tax of 90 cents a gallon which the government seeks to levy.

MILLION AT STAKE

He similarly contended the state liquor stores—sole outlet for liquor in Pennsylvania—need not pay federal license fees. Schnader said he had reports the internal revenue agents might close the stores unless the tax were paid by tomorrow.

Nearly $1,000,000 is at stake.

Meanwhile the Control Board is preparing to distribute to municipalities approximately $1,700,000 obtained from 6,200 retail liquor licenses. These licenses permit only the sale of liquor from opened bottles in hotels and eating establishments.

Two Held in Liquor Raid at McKees Rocks

Police Chief M. F. Matsey, of McKees Rocks, today reported raiding a place in Olivia street, finding a 125-gallon still and arresting Charles Kress, 29, of Island avenue, and Joe Zehr, of Locust street, McKees Rocks. Matsey said four gallons of moonshine and 20 barrels of mash were seized.

Last Liquor Store Opens Doors Here

The last of the city's liquor stores opened its doors for business today at 12 East North Diamond street, North Side.

PILES SUFFER NO MORE!

No more pain! No more itching or scratching! No more torture when you sit or walk! No more torment at the stool! The relief of Piles has now been solved. No matter what the form of Piles you suffer from—painful, itching, bleeding, blind or protruding—genuine relief for you lies in Pazo Ointment.

Pazo not only stops the pain and itching and makes defecation easy, but it tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole. This is because Pazo is threefold in effect. It is (1) soothing, (2) healing, (3) absorbing. Thus, it not only allays the inflammation and repairs torn tissue, but actually reduces the swollen blood vessels, which are Piles. The method of application makes Pazo doubly effective. Perforated Pile Pipe attached to tube reaches high up in the rectum and thoroughly medicates all affected parts. Get Pazo today at any drug store and see the relief it means. You will be more than amazed, more than grateful.

ROOSEVELT RUM BAN 'DISCREET'

Society Here Divided As to General Effect

Some See Vintages Replacing Whisky; Others Don't

Will the whisky ban in the White House sweep hard liquor out of the American home and substitute the light wines preferred by Mrs. Roosevelt?

The announcement by the first lady that distilled drinks are off the menu in the Presidential home has caused no little discussion in Pittsburgh social circles.

But there's no definite reaction. Most women agree that the serving of liquor is a personal problem to be decided entirely within the home.

One society leader here said:

"Mrs. Roosevelt merely settled for her family the same matter that has been settled in every home affected by repeal. It seems to me she has acted discreetly, but I doubt that her action will have a general effect on the nation's drinking customs."

Mrs. Wallis Tenner, social registerite and personal friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, expressed a contrary opinion:

"I think she is setting a splendid example on this occasion as on many others. The tendency nowadays seems to be to ignore hard liquors in favor of light wines, and I believe Mrs. Roosevelt will do much to develop this tendency.

"Her idea of preferring American wines is also admirable. I subscribe to it wholeheartedly."

Mrs. Harold J. Dorrance, of the East End, said:

"Though Mrs. Roosevelt is very loyal in preferring domestic wines, I do not think she will influence those who would rather have the imported product. To my mind American wines are not yet comparable to those made abroad."

MRS. D. B. FRAMPTON

California's wine is praised by Mrs. D. B. Frampton, of Squirrel Hill, but she has little hope that it will be accepted throughout the country as a result of the First Lady's stand. She said:

"After all, it's up to the individual. The problem differs according to the home. Mrs. Roosevelt decided for the White House, but I doubt that the decision will be felt outside the President's home."

And so it goes. Some women who were questioned felt that whisky should be drunk and not talked about. Most agreed it's a personal matter.

$186,900 RUM TAX PAID CITY

Pittsburgh's first share in liquor revenue since repeal of the prohibition laws was announced today by the State Liquor Control Board. It amounted to $186,900.

The money comes from license fees of retail liquor dealers. A total of $1,693,000 was allocated to cities, towns, boroughs, first class townships and second class township school districts, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

The fund represents receipts from 5,910 licenses issued since December 2. Philadelphia received $670,000.

Other cities in the Pittsburgh district to receive a share in the revenue were:

McKeesport, $12,650; Duquesne, $5,300; Kittanning, $600; Beaver Falls, $1,800; Aliquippa, $3,150; Ambridge, $4,650; Clairton, $4,350; Greensburg, $2,200; Washington, $3,500; Monongahela, $1,450; Uniontown, $3,650, and Connellsville, $1,500.

HIGHWAY OPEN AT NADINE

The long-delayed Nadine "bottleneck" of the Allegheny River boulevard was opened temporarily to traffic at 7 o'clock this morning. Traffic was light in the early hours of the new thoroughfare's use.

Opening of the 1,300-foot stretch was made possible after four years' bickering by the county agreeing to pay $135,000 for removal of Pennsylvania Railroad tracks and construction of a coal conveyor for the Pennsylvania Water Company, whose pumping station is at that point.

RUM GOUGERS UNDER PROBE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Complaints received by the Department of Justice against the alleged efforts of certain distilleries to peg prices of whisky at high levels were under investigation today by government agents.

No details were disclosed except that collusion among some distillers was suspected.

Chairman Joseph H. Choate, Jr., of the Federal Industrial Alcohol Control Administration, declared there was substantial competition in the liquor industry, giving prospects of lower prices. He said the most recent price lists of the distillers showed some reduction.

"'REGULAR' PAIN? MY DEAR, THAT DATES YOU. LET ME TELL YOU WHAT TO DO!"

"Regular" pain is out. So is even discomfort at this time. That's a fact, and it's just too bad for the girl who hasn't learned how she can keep her dates, and keep comfortable.

Just watch the calendar. Before your time, take a Midol tablet and drink a glass of water, and you may escape the expected pain entirely. If not, a second tablet should relieve it in seven to ten minutes. That is how rapidly this remedy works, and Midol relieves even those who have always had a difficult time. Relief is such that two tablets should see you through the worst day. Yet they contain no narcotic, nothing injurious. They're as harmless as the aspirin you take for an ordinary headache. But don't be fooled by ordinary pain tablets offered as a specific for such suffering! Midol is a special medicine, for this special purpose. Your druggist has it on the counter—or just ask for Midol.

WOMEN STORM EARL CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—They had to call out the police yesterday to help Earl Carroll maintain his reputation as a picker of feminine pulchritude.

He was supposed to have selected 11 Southern California beauties to appear in a motion picture with the 11 young women he brought from New York.

When the New York theatrical producer appeared in the forecourt of a Hollywood theater to do the picking, 700 ambitious beauties nearly wrecked the doings, scrambling for places in the tryouts.

Traffic was blocked for nearly a half hour.

After several hours, Carroll succeeded in thinning the ranks down to about 100 and told them to appear later.

CLERGY TO JOIN ORDINATION

Leading clergymen of the Pittsburgh and Erie dioceses, Protestant Episcopal Church, will attend the admission into the Order of St. Barnabas, of H. Willard Gilpin, of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, tomorrow in St. Barnabus Free Home, Gibsonia.

Bishop John Chamberlain Ward, of the Erie diocese, will administer holy communion. Bishop Alexander Mann, of the Pittsburgh diocese, will also be present. The Rev. Dr. William Porkess, rector of St. Stephen's Church, will preach the sermon. The candidate will be presented to Gouverneur P. Nance, the brother superior, by Charles H. L. Pennington, master of novices.

STERILIZATION CHARGES FILED

International News Service.

DETROIT, Feb. 1.—Charges that young boy and girl inmates of the Wayne County Training School were forced or tricked into submitting to sterilization, were before the Attorney General at Lansing yesterday.

Edward H. Williams, county auditor, presented Attorney General Patrick H. O'Brien with a transcript of the evidence taken at a special inquiry by the board of auditors. Williams precipitated the investigation when he charged that the training school inmates were being sterilized "with less respect for human decency than in Hitlerite Germany."

The inquiry was adjourned until February 8, pending possible action at Lansing.

JUVENILE HOME PLEA RENEWED

Board Leader Urges Federal Loan For Project

Immediate erection of a new Juvenile Court detention home for Allegheny County was urged today due to the overcrowding of the dingy, poorly equipped and insanitary quarters at 3336 Fifth avenue.

The board of managers of the home, of which Mrs. J. B. Roessing is chairman, recently petitioned County Commissioners to erect a new home on the present site to house all departments under one roof. Three buildings now are used in Oakland, and Judge Gustav L. Schramm's office and the home's welfare department are in the courthouse downtown.

Mrs. Roessing said money could be borrowed from the PWA without interest for five years, and that 30 per cent could be obtained as a gift. Approximately $350,000 would be necessary for an adequate building. The County Commissioners are also members of the board of 11.

Mrs. Roessing added:

"The condition of the present building is deplorable. It is not fireproof and not sanitary. Overcrowding is frightful. We need adequate room."

Jutige Schramm commended:

"The work of the court would be greatly improved by having a modern and adequate Juvenile Court home for the children, staff and court. This would eliminate the present difficulties of bringing these three phases of the court work into a harmonious unit."

A. L. Wills, superintendant of the some, said:

"Our present enrollment is more than 50 boys and girls. We can take care of 20 boys comfortably. The present structure was not built for this purpose. Proper supervision is not possible."

Ex-Sleuth Found Injured in Street

Homicide detectives today were investigating the injuries of a former city detective, Patrick Delehanty, 65, of 5720 Rippey street, who was found unconscious in South Sheridan avenue last night with his head badly cut.

Needs No Cooking! Big Saving!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made gives you four times as much cough remedy for your money, yet it is far more effective than ready-made medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous as a healing agent for throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Dinner Observes 50th Anniversary

A family dinner followed by a reception to friends marked the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Moran at the home of their daughter, Mrs. John G. Watson, of 6929 Greenwood street, last night. Mr. and Mrs. Moran were married in Old St. Patrick's Church by the late Archbishop J. F. Regis Canevin, then pastor of the church.

Attending the dinner were Mrs. Watson and three other daughters, Mrs. E. B. Rhodes and Irene and Antoinette Moran; two sons, Frank and John, Jr.; 10 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

BANK CREDIT

"Bank Credit," how you may, or why you may not, borrow, is discussed over WWSW tonight at 7:30. John H. Lucas, credit manager of a downtown bank, is the speaker.

Rudy and (Guess Again)

At a glance it looks like Fay Webb, but the lady is Lenore Ulric, who is heard on the air with Vallee tonight at 8 o'clock, over WCAE.

Radio-News Agreement Effected

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—An agreement between the radio broadcasting chains and the American Newspaper Publishers Association, covering the broadcasting of news, was announced here yesterday. The agreement becomes effective March 1.

A committee consisting of representatives of the press associations, the broadcasting chains and the publishers association will be set up to supervise the carrying out of the agreement.

A broadcast based upon bulletins from morning newspaper reports may be put on the air not earlier than 9:30 a. m., and another broadcast based upon evening newspaper reports may be put on not earlier than 9 p. m.

Occasional news bulletins of transcendent importance will be furnished to the broadcasters as a matter of public service from time to time at other than the stated periods.

Under the agreement the press associations will supply their reports to the committee handling the broadcasting. The broadcasting companies have announced their withdrawal from the news gathering field.

Harry Keck On Air Tonight

The Globe Trotter broadcasts over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 and over WJAS at 2:15 p. m.

Thrilling Sea Tale Dramatized

"The Silver Siren," true story of modern pirates who attempts to steal a shi's cargo of silver and use the stolen funds in a search for a huge hidden treasure, is dramatized over Altoona and Youngstown stations this afternoon and evening.

Based on a news feature appearing in next Sunday's American Weekly, big magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, "The Silver Siren" drama is broadcast over WFBG, Altoona, this afternoon at 3, and over WKBN, Youngstown, tonight at 8:15.

Overbrook V. F. W. To Open Post Home

A special program will be held by the Overbrook Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, tonight with a public opening of its new post home at 2339 Sawmill Run boulevard. Cards, bingo and other entertainment will be on the program. Frank J. Cunningham is post commander.

McIntyre, Rogers Comedy on Air

The third program in the new "Club Car Special" series, written for radio by Will Rogers, O. O. McIntyre and other Sun-Telegraph humorists and feature writers, is heard over WCAE and six other stations in the tri-state district today, on the following schedule:

WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15; WWVA, Wheeling, 5:15; WCAE, Pittsburgh, 6; WADC, Akron, 8; WHBC, Canton, 8:30 and WLBW, Erie, 9 o'clock.

Youngstown and Fairmont listeners hear the "Club Car Special" Friday, over WKBN at 1 p. m. and WMMN at 6:30.

How Alice Won the Catch of the Town
DISCOVERS FASTER WAY TO MAKE DINGY TEETH SHADES WHITER
YOU HAVE IT ON HER IN EVERY WAY EXCEPT TEETH—AND KOLYNOS WILL CHANGE THAT QUICKLY.
MONDAY
TUESDAY
WEDNESDAY
NOW THEY ARE SPARKLING—SHADES WHITER.
…ETHEART, I WANT …OU AND YOUR DAZZLING SMILE FOR LIFE.

Now don't let dingy, yellowish, ugly-looking teeth stand in the way of happiness. If you are one of those who have tried perhaps a dozen different ways to make your teeth attractive, we urge you to try Kolynos—the dental cream that acts differently from any preparation you have ever used.

You use Kolynos just as you would any ordinary toothpaste—with these two exceptions . . . use only half as much and put it on a dry brush. Don't wet your brush. You'll see results almost at once. Your teeth will gain a new sparkle, new lustre, new whiteness.

This scientific dental cream cleans and whitens teeth so much better and faster because it contains certain properties not found in ordinary toothpaste. It contains the finest cleansing and whitening agents known to science PLUS an important ingredient—an antiseptic that dental authorities say should be added to remove the "bacteria plaque" which makes teeth look so dingy and dull.

We say try Kolynos. See for yourself how its unique action brightens and whitens teeth. Get a tube of this amazing dental cream from your druggist today.

SCHENLEY RESEARCH INSTITUTE APPROVED

Dr. Alfred J. Liebmann, B. S., Ph. D.
Dr. Alfred J. Lasche, Ph. D., Ph. G.
Dr. S. L. Lieboff, M. A., Ph. B.

Examined by the Schenley Research Institute for purity, flavor and proof, Golden Wedding bears its unconditional O. K.

THERE are a number of distillers today—doing their very utmost to supply you with whiskey blends of really excellent quality. The makers of Golden Wedding are among those distillers. In Golden Wedding they are turning out a blend of straight whiskies without a single drop of alcohol or spirits added. They have retained a board of eminent analysts—the Schenley Research Institute—to pass judgment on each and every Golden Wedding ingredient—every step in its manufacture—as a guarantee of quality, purity and proof. If you wonder at the mellow smoothness of your Golden Wedding blend, remember that the makers of Golden Wedding had started accumulating a stock of well-aged whiskies for blending, years before you cast your vote for repeal! Ripe, cask-mellowed whiskies for blending have been aging in our warehouses for this very purpose—and when you taste your Golden Wedding you'll be glad!

GLOBE-TROTTING

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Tomorrow the energetic District Attorney will leave his hive of activity over at the Courthouse to come here to tell us about himself and his important office and what he has been doing to get his name blazoned across the front pages lately.

I was surprised to learn when I invited him that he has never made a radio speech. So be on hand during the 12:15 tomorrow to give "Andy" a warm welcome.

At noon we expect Cliff Montgomery, the captain and quarterback of the Columbia football team. Cliff is a Tarentum boy and the home town folks are giving him a testimonial dinner that night at the Brackenridge Country Club. It's a sure bet that Monday noon everyone in Tarentum will be tuned in.

That's not all, Lou Little the famous Columbia coach, is coming to attend the banquet and our contact man in Tarentum thinks that he can produce Lou Little for the broadcast, too.

ESTATE GAS RANGES

Just 42—The Factory's Entire Surplus Stock—And No More At This Price

We went direct to the Estate Co. and asked them for a super-value for this "Extra-Dividend Sale." They co-operated in great style, went through their entire factory and found these 42 ranges left from a special sales campaign staged last June. They made us a tempting offer—and here they are at $20 less than you would regularly expect to pay. Because we have sold Estate ranges for the last 25 years we can guarantee this value to be extraordinary. Rising costs of manufacture will make it impossible to duplicate this offer in the future. Buy now!

$59.75

Can't Duplicate Today for Less Than $20 More

A $6.00 down payment will deliver this famous range—balance payable over a period of months. Or a $6.00 payment will reserve your range until you have need for it.

Note These Estate Specifications:

CROWDS ATTEND POULTRY SHOW

The Mutual Poultry Association's annual show in Motor Square Garden—the third largest exhibit of its kind in the country—continued to attract crowds today. The show closes Saturday night.

Besides the elite of the barnyards, the show includes exhibits of farm products, wild life, home economics, game birds and tropical fish. A school poster contest is lending variety to the program.

With 1,367 entries, this year's show was adjudged the largest and best arranged by the association. Among the entries is Lamonas, a breed said to equal the egg-laying qualities of the White Leghorns.

POLICE SCHOOL STARTS WORK

The city administration's new police school was scheduled to open today in the Mayor's conference room, with 10 police lieutenants as pupils.

Newly appointed Police Magistrate J. W. McGowan, professor of sociology at Duquesne University, will be instructor. Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall will attend the opening.

Today's modest session is the start of what city officials hope may develop into a potent force in increasing efficiency of the police.

Sponsors of the program, Mayor William N. McNair, Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, Marshall and McGowan are agreed its primary purpose will be to give police a more exact understanding of their duties and powers under the law.

PRUDENCE PENNY FAN HUNTS CHEESE CAKE RECIPE

Many Letters Ask For Unprinted Menus

In addition to the hundreds of recipes Prudence Penny receives every day to put at the disposal of her readers, come requests for certain dishes which have not as yet appeared in her prize list. Since one of the purposes of the Sun-Telegraph recipe contest is to supply housewives with new and different recipes, Miss Penny always tries to answer all requests, either from her private cooking file or by appeals to women readers.

Today she is sending out a call made to her by Mrs. A. D. McKean, of Charleroi. Mrs. McKean writes:

"I have been looking each evening for a recipe for cheese cake in your lists of tested recipes, but as yet I believe there has never been such a recipe published. I want a real cake, baked in a pan and somewhat like an angel food. It is as light as a pastry and a little moist."

If you have the recipe Mrs. McKean is looking for or any other one you know will appeal to housewives, send it in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, for entrance in her contest. Daily awards are a first prize of $5 and 10 prizes of $1. No recipes will be returned.

Spanish Goulash Formula Wins $5 Prize

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER

MRS. HAZEL McCORMICK,

SPANISH GOULASH WITH RICE

Take one pound lean pork, one pound veal, cut up in small pieces and fry in fat until brown. Then take three green peppers, six onions and one bunch of celery, cut up real fine and fry in fat on a slow fire until tender. Put this in with your meat. Then take two cans tomato paste, add about six cups of water to paste. Put this in with meat and vegetables, season with salt, pepper, little mace and a little hot pepper to suit taste. Cook over a slow fire for an hour and one-half. While this is cooking, cook one pound of rice, add a little salt after your rice is done. Then put your Spanish goulash over your rice.

TEN $1 PRIZE WINNERS

MRS. M. MIHLFRIED,
R. F. D. 4, Box 21, Seavey road, Millvale.

MOCK DUCK

Seven thick slices of bread.
Two large onions.
Two tablespoons butter.
One cup diced celery.
Eight cold boiled potatoes.
One teaspoon chopped parsley.
Three pounds round or flank steak.

Soften bread in water, squeeze dry. Add onions, which have been browned in butter, celery and potatoes, diced and parsley. Mix, and if too dry add a little milk. Spread mixture over steak roll and tie. Sear the outside, put in a moderate oven. Baste from time to time until tender. Place this on a serving dish, thicken gravy and pour over the steak. Time in oven 1½ hours oven temperature in 350 degrees F. Serves 12.

CATHERINE NESSLER,

RUSSIAN STUFFED LOAF (PIROSCHKY)

Two cups flour.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
One teaspoon salt.
Six tablespoons shortening.
Three-quarters cup milk.
One cup chopped cooked meat.
One hard boiled egg, chopped fine.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-half cup thin gravy.

Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening with two knives. Add milk to make a soft dough. Roll out one-quarter inch thick to make a long oblong three inches wide. Cut into pieces three inches long. Combine meat, egg, onion and seasonings. Moisten with gravy and work to a paste. Place two spoonfuls of the meat filling along center of each little square of dough. Roll up so as to seal the edge. Brush tops with slightly beaten egg white and bake. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in hot oven, 450 degrees. Amount—12 individual rolls.

VIRGINIA WHALEY,
912 Ditzler street.

PEACH WAFFLES

One-third cup shortening.
One-half cup sugar.
Two eggs.
Two cups flour.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One cup milk.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
One-half teaspoon lemon juice.
One and one-half cups diced peaches.

Blend shortening with sugar and eggs. Stir briskly. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, then add to the first mixtures alternately with the milk. Then add the vanilla, lemon juice and diced peaches. Cook on a waffle iron, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve hot. Or, if desired, serve with sliced fruit or whipped cream. Other fruits may be used in season.

MRS. J. K. WATSON,
301 Fifth avenue, New Kensington.

GRAPE CONSERVE

Five pounds grapes.
One pound seeded raisins.
Two oranges.
One cup English walnuts.

Pulp the grapes and cook the pulp and skins separately adding a small amount of water to prevent burning. Press pulp through sieve to remove seeds, combine with cooked skins add raisins, juice and finely grated rind of oranges and bring to a boil. Add nuts and cook 10 minutes longer.

ANNA L. HOBBS,
939 Warrington avenue.

MARTHA WASHINGTON BAKED HAM

If a very large regular ham is selected and salty (test with skewer), soak ham in cold water over night. Scrub and scrape it. Stick cloves in rind five inches apart. Cover with one-third sweet cider and two-thirds cold water, adding one-half cup brown sugar. Simmer slowly until tender. This may require the greater part of the day so put on early. When done let it stand in its own liquor until cold, then take up, remove the rind. Rub well with brown sugar, grate an onion over and bake in a covered pan until browned. This will require at least an hour as ham must heat again through. If a skinned ham is used, weight 10 to 14 pounds, soaking over night may be eliminated.

MRS. ELLEN ROSS,
Columbia avenue extension, West View.

HARLEQUIN SHRIMP SALAD

Two cups shrimps.
One cup chopped celery.
Three tablespoons minced green pepper.
One cup tomato jelly cubes or three medium tomatoes sliced thin.
One bunch watercress.
One cup salad dressing.

Prepare the cooked shrimps, canned or fresh, remove the black vein and let stand in ice water for 15 minutes. Drain and dry. Combine the celery and green peppers and mix with three tablespoons of salad dressing. In the middle of each salad plate place a heaping tablespoon of the celery mixture on a lettuce leaf and garnish with a dash of paprika. Surround with the whole shrimp. Place three or four small leaves of lettuce around the edges, garnish with the tomato (jelly cubes or slices) and place sprays of cress between them. At three equally spaced intervals between the tomato cubes put three rounded teaspoons of salad dressing. If tomatoes are used, place the dressing in the center of the slices. The shrimp and salad may be mixed with the dressing, but served in this manner the colors are better displayed than when mixed with the main ingredients.

MISS BETTY J. OVER,
459 Biddle avenue, Wilkinsburg.

FRUIT SPICE COOKIES

One cup brown sugar.
One egg.
One-fourth teaspoon cloves or nutmeg.
One and three-fourths cup flour.
Two tablespoons chopped nuts.
One-half cup sour milk.
One-half cup fat.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One cup raisins.
Threefourths teaspoon soda.

Cream fat, then add sugar gradually. Add slightly beaten egg and beat thoroughly. Measure and sift dry ingredients together, then add chopped raisins and nuts. Add dry ingredients and milk alternately to the first mixture. Drop on greased pan and bake in moderate oven 20 minutes. This recipe will make one dozen cookies.

MRS. C. O. LOWSTETTER,
Penfield, Clifford County.

CHEESE WAFFLES WITH GRILLED TOMATOES

Two cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoons salt.
Three egg yolks, well beaten.
One cup milk.
Four tablespoons melted butter.
Three egg whites stiffly beaten.
One cup of grated cheese.

Sift the flour once, measure and add the baking powder, salt and sift again. Combine egg yolks, milk and butter. Add to the flour, beating until smooth. Fold in egg whites and cheese. Bake according to directions given with a waffle iron. Place a slice of grilled tomato on each section. Makes five four-section waffles. Diced uncooked bacon may be sprinkled over the batter before closing the iron.

MRS. J. O. YOUNG,
50 North Bryant avenue, Bellevue.

POTATO PUFFS

Put one-half cup water and one-quarter cup butter in saucepan and bring to boil. When boiling add one-half cup flour and stir in quickly. Add two eggs, one at a time and stir thoroughly after addition of each. Have three medium-sized potatoes boiled and mashed; add to paste; also one teaspoon salt and one teaspoon baking powder. Drop by spoonful in hot fat and fry to golden brown.

MRS. PERCY JOHNSTON
1671 Hillsdale avenue, Dormont.

STUFFED DOUGHNUTS

One cup sugar.
Two eggs.
One cup milk.
One teaspoon salt.
Two level teaspoons shortening.
Ten level teaspoons baking powder.
Enough flour to make soft dough.

Have ready two boxes of dates, pitted and stuffed with English walnut meats. Cut soft dough into squares large enough to wrap around a stuffed date. Roll lightly between your hands until it is egg-shaped. Drop into deep fat until brown. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Duff Candidacy Recalls Burke's Canniness

Attorney James H. Duff, who has been mentioned as a possible appointee to the vacancy now existing on the Common Pleas bench, also is being urged by some Republicans as a candidate for county chairman when the county committee organizes after the May primary.

Mr. Shields

Mr. Duff was a delegate to the Republican national convention of 1932 from the Thirty-fourth Congressional District. He is probably the only Pennsylvania Republican delegate who ever saw his candidate hurled from the convention hall before there was a chance to vote for him.

The district represented by Mr. Duff in the presidential primary preferred former Senator Joe France, of Maryland, to Herbert Hoover, and Mr. Duff felt he was obliged to cast at least one vote for France, if no more than on the first ballot.

He did so. But before the balloting began France had been tossed out of the convention. He was victim of the canny strategy of the late James Francis Burke, who heard that France, attempting to gain the speakers' stand, intended to abandon his own ambitions and nominate Calvin Coolidge.

Duff Would Turn G. O. P. Reins to Young Hands

That would never have done in a convention which was but mildly enthusiastic about the then President, and harked back to the happier days of Coolidge.

So Mr. Burke and Chairman Bertrand Snell of New York instructed a corps of sergeants-at-arms to eject Mr. France, and these did so so thoroughly that he wound up in the hands of Chicago police in the special substation established in the stadium.

Mr. Duff is known to be of the opinion that the Republican party requires some reorganization if it is to get anywhere in the future in Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania.

He feels that younger men, some who have not established vulnerable political records, should be in positions of leadership. Mr. Duff, for example, is totally out of sympathy with the organization belief that Senator David A. Reed can be renominated and re-elected, and thinks his candidacy is bad for the party.

Mr. Duff has some influence in the Forty-fifth senatorial district, and has exerted it within organization circles. He has not, however, subscribed to the blindness of the recent Republican leadership, which is one reason he believes that some readjustments are imperative.

Harris, Mansfield Likely Duff Backers

Knowing his liberal position, a number of Republicans are insisting that he make the effort himself to furnish local leadership. His election would depend upon the Republican county committeemen and committeewomen elected in May.

Senator William D. Mansfield, Senator Frank J. Harris, and some of the Pinchot independents, as well as some organization elements, probably would co-operate in attempting to furnish the votes with which to elect Mr. Duff should he become a candidate for county chairman.

Of course, should he be appointed to the bench this plan for reorganization under Mr. Duff would have to be abandoned.

Guy E. Campbell, former congressman from the district which Mr. Duff represented in the national convention, intended to seek re-election. For eight terms he served in Congress, but was caught in the Roosevelt sweep in 1932, being defeated by Matthew A. Dunn.

In the coming primary election Mr. Campbell plans to seek nomination on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. He was originally elected to Congress as a Democrat, but with time became a Republican, though he often scooped up both nominations.

Pinchot Forces Resent Senators' Friendliness

The presence of Senator David A. Reed at the dinner last night for State Senator Frank J. Harris is understood to have angered some of those closest to Gov. Pinchot in Harrisburg. The two senators are old friends, but in light of the feud between Reed and Pinchot, and the probability that they will be candidates against each other in the coming Republican primary, the prominence accorded the senior United States Senator is not relished by Mr. Pinchot, it is known.

Mrs. Pinchot on a trip through the west not so long ago excoriated Senator Reed but praised Senator Harris, and the latter upon occasion acted as floor leader for the Governor in the Senate, especially in the effort to have the Public Service Commission confirmed.

It seems a bit vengeful that the invitation to Senator Reed to be a speaker should result in recrimination by the Pin hot forces.

The result may be a strain on the pleasant relations which have existed between the Governor's camp and Senator Harris recently. That, however, is something the Senator previously had discounted. It would not be amazing, should the Governor bow to the advice of some of his friends, if some of the projects in which the Senator is interested, and which require executive approval, should go awry. Mr. Pinchot, however, is not always so impulsive as some of his advisers in Harrisburg.

MILLION TO BE SPENT ON FLINN HIGHWAY JOB

JUDGE GIVES 8 SENTENCES IN RACKET

Jurist Links Politics In Lottery Laid to Slain Garavini

Judge Frank P. Patterson ignored a plea for parole in behalf of eight convicted associates of Andy Garavini, slain racketeer, today declaring the numbers lottery had given rise to "vending of political power" and was not to be tolerated.

The court imposed jail terms and fines on eight of nine Rankin youths who had been found guilty of operating a lottery, the reputed head of which was Garavini, killed at the Grant street entrance of the William Penn Hotel in a pistol duel with Iggy Swartz.

A ninth member of the group was ill and could not be present for sentence, the court was informed.

Attorney Louis Bowytz made a strong plea for parole, saying it was the first offense for all of the defendants and that jail terms would "blight their lives."

Judge Patterson replied:

"It is the activities of such men as these that make possible the prosperity of such men as Garavini. A new order of things has arrived. It is necessary that we realize this in order to restore public confidence."

"The number lottery has given rise to vending of political power. The evil flows out of it through the collection of tribute from the rackets. Any racketeer who comes before this court must be punished in a way that will serve notice on others."

Sam Ecker, William Ferguson, Sol Horr, Antonio Rubo were fined $100 each and sentenced to four months in jail; Victor Bonacci, $100 and three months; Charles R. Zamal, $100 and 30 days; Daniel Pastor, $50 and 30 days, and Ted Putz, $50 and 30 days. The ill member of the group is Ralph Cucura.

Two other students in the car were killed and two others injured.

Sunny South Seeing Sunrise Of Prosperity

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Down in the sunny south they know that everything is all right. Was talking to a man in Savannah and he says prosperity has come back.

His explanation was simple. He said everybody had quit their jobs and was working for the CWA.

The ones who weren't working then took the vacant jobs. Even if they didn't arrange the thing in alphabetical order, they managed to get the ball rolling.

It shows some kind of action, and action is what we want, as the monkey said when he grabbed the lion by the ears.

COUNTY RELIEF HEAD NAMED

John Lawrence has been named chairman of the Allegheny County Relief Board following the resignation of Augustus K. Oliver yesterday, according to a report today from Harrisburg. Oliver will continue as a member of the board.

The State Emergency Relief Board also announced the resignation of Mrs. Enoch Rauh and John F. Casey from the local board. The board named Southard Hay, new welfare director in Mayor McNair's cabinet, to succeed Mrs. Rauh.

Allegheny County's share of the $4,480,814 state fund in February was $1,185,867.71 the board announced.

Half of Victims Die Within First Year

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPTER II.

CAYENNE, French Guiana—In all the world there is only one medieval convict ship still in use. It is the grim black "Martinier" in which the dishonored of France travel to the fever-infested land of the four D's—dishonor, despair, disease and death.

That's Devil's Island.

The only prison on earth from which the dead are fed to sharks.

The only prison on earth where the white man jumps at command of the black.

Well, folks, here we are in the penal colony to see and hear and smell what it's all about. And I think we're going to see plenty.

But first let's go back to Miami and climb aboard a trim clipper ship of the air for a flight down the Spanish Main in search of romance and adventure.

It was a setting rich in the promise of romance. Fleecy clouds, bright sun, important people, a shiny ship and all that.

Myself and a German chemist had to go through the third degree with the tax collectors of Uncle Sam's new deal. We reported no income. The clerk pawed through a lot of papers and came up with some dope on me.

"Didn't you write a book?"

"Yes; two books."

"Published in America?"

"Yes."

"Well, what earnings did you have from them?"

"I forget—but I know that 8 per cent was deducted for taxes."

He wrote all this down and gave me a paper.

Outside the barge a girl screamed. We went out and found a plump Spanish senorita hopping around like a dancer with the hives. She shrieked:

"My camera! It cost hundreds of dollars . . . Juan, what will Juan say?"

Her camera and a whole box of extra gadgets had fallen into the sea. We could see it on the coral far far below.

Airway workers were long on service. They stripped off clothes and plunged deep into the coral retrieving one by one the elaborate gadgets.

Then we climbed out on the roof of the ship, let ourselves down a ladder and looked around while the motors droned. There were 5,006 of us bound for the West Indies—5,000 baby chicks; five men and the senorita. Inside were 12 seats and two beds.

The girl and the German grabbed the beds as we soared into the blue and sped for Cuba.

On the way we ran into storms, went over storms and ran around storms. It was fun watching squalls zoom this way and that.

We saw sharks. Thousands of sharks, and thousands of pelicans. We were met by puny little soldiers all festooned with black revolvers.

We chewed gum, ate sandwiches and drank tomato juice as the chickens chirped and the motors roared.

It was after dark when we bumped down in Haiti, the land where some experts insist, voodoo is the rule of the day and dead men actually work in the cane fields. I don't believe it; you don't believe, but thousands of intelligent humans really and truly do.

Arrogance, Not Magic

What we saw was not black magic, but arrogance, for this runt republic is owned and ruled by superstitious sons of darkest Africa.

They pawed through our clothes, tossed them this way and that and demanded tax from those staying over. Nobody was staying so we climbed

Dead Are Thrown to Sharks From Penal Colony

A Texas oil man and I were pushed into a bare board room without windows. A buck-toothed fellow demanded:

"One night, 50 gourdes. Pay in advance."

"What's a gourde?"

"Twenty cents."

"But that's ten dollars."

"Yas, man, ten dollah. Pay in advance."

"But that's preposterous. Ten dollars for this dingy little biscuit box? You must be mad."

He shurgged his shoulders and stood waiting.

We each peeled off a five-dollar bill.

He boomed:

"Not enough. Ten dollah each fella."

We chorused:

"You're crazy. Send the manager. You must be insane."

The manager shuffled in. He was sleek and sweaty.

"Some trouble here, gentlemen?"

"Yes. Your rates. This man demands $10 for two of us to share a bed in this ratty little biscuit box."

"That's right."

"Well, I, for one, won't stay. I can be a sucker up to a point, but this is far, far beyond that point."

But I did stay. The rascal knew I'd stay. He knew he had me. It was sleep in that sweat box or out in the open with a

BRENNAN GETS WELFARE POST

Joseph C. Brennan, defeated for the Legislature on the Democratic ticket last November in the Second Legislative District, has been named chief examiner in the City Welfare Department.

Brennan succeeds Louis Shoop, who was appointed provisionally following the death of Joseph I. McDonough. Shoop probably will be retained in the department, according to Director Southard Hay, who announced the appointment.

Brennan formerly was connected with the United States Treasury Department as an auditor. His new position pays $3,250 a year. He lives at 1245 Jancey street. Director Hay has said he will ask Council to change the name of the position from examiner to chief clerk and accountant.

The Civil Service Commission announced two appointments today. Henry Carlos, of 2061 Lowrie street, was named chief clerk in place of Joseph J. Lloyd, who resigned. Dr. J. Staunton Saling becomes the new medical examiner of the department to succeed Dr. L. M. Arons.

W. D. Stewart Opens Own Law Offices

Attorney W. Denning Stewart, who was associated with District Attorney Park in the prosecution of the late Mayor Kline and B. L. Succop, today announced his retirement as a member of the firm of Thorp, Bostwick, Stewart and Reed. He has opened his own office in the Law and Finance Building.

Record Contract Let For Rebuilding To Butler

Federal-state funds amounting to $1,000,000 will be spent in the next few months on reconstruction of the William Flinn highway between Bakerstown and Butler, Eugene L. Connelly announced today.

Connelly, secretary of the William Flinn Highway Association, that worked for the new road, said the new artery would be opened to traffic November 1. A large number of men will be given employment.

A contract for 11.99 miles of reconstruction from the county line to Butler has been let to the York Engineering and Construction Company of York, Pa., on a bid of $781,045. It is the largest single road contract ever let in the state.

This cost is in addition to $106,581 for a viaduct at McBride Station where the Bessemer Railroad Company will eliminate a grade crossing.

Meanwhile, work is already being rushed on the $109,298 contract held by the Holmes Construction Company, now building 1.62 miles of the Butler plank road near Butler, Connelly said.

Besides these the state and Allegheny County are shortly to award a contract for the elimination of a dangerous bottle-neck at Etna. It will be constructed in the early spring, and will connect with the section of Route 8 that was improved last year. Connelly said:

"When the project is opened to traffic the new highway is expected to have important results in the commercial, industrial and residential developments along the boulevard."

Joseph C. Trees is president of the association whose membership includes scores of Pittsburgh and Butler businessmen.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Everything is based on psychology, and I believe that Ogden Mills, as clever and as able as he is, picked a bad day to explain to the country that they were prostrate under a tax which they couldn't possibly be able to pay.

Will Rogers

Why, in 6,000 cities people had on that very day to lay aside Ogden's speech in order to dress in silks and plush, and enter expensive limousines to get to the ball.

No, Ogden, too many silk hats showed up that night to make a tax collector be misled by the cry of poverty. That speech just didn't harmonize with ermine and champagne.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

YEARNS FOR HER OLD MINE JOB

Clerking in Store Lacks Appeal, Woman Finds

For 10 years, believe it or not, Miss Ott was a miner.

She's been out of the mine for several years, but today she said she wishes for another job digging coal. Her present job, clerking in a grocery store, doesn't have quite the same appeal, Ricka said.

Ricka's mine, owned by her late father, was in the St. Clair district, now a part of the city's Sixteenth Ward. Not only did Ricka spend hours with a pick, but she tended the cattle and horses on her father's nine-acre farm.

The mine in which Ricka, who is 35, spent 10 years is closed.

He pronounced conditions in most homes he visited as an investigator "deplorable," saying:

"Charity has failed. What we need is justice and the single tax."

His recent pictures in the paper plus his knowledge of economics have made for an easy entrance to many places, he asserted. According to Wesoky, persons ofter swing open the door asking:

"What is economic rent?"

So:

"I give them the lowdown on the single tax. It only takes m a few minutes to convert the to the Mayor's idea."

Apparently unimpressed by persistent Wesoky, McNair yesterday he is still lookin the right man for the publ post.

WAR PICTURES HELD STRONG SERMON

War's price—the terrific cost of neglect—must never again be paid by this country, men and women prominent in many professions said today as they cited the Sun-Telegraph for its presentation of unconsored World War pictures.

The photographs, five more pages of which will appear in next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph, were termed "the most powerful sermon that could be preached against war" by Mrs. Enoch Rauh, who said:

"In publishing the series the Sun-Telegraph is peforming one of the greatest services any publication could possibly undertake. I consider any effort for peace the fundamental concern of every citizen in every civilized country in the world."

In the theory of peace it became a necessity for the Government of the United States to maintain an invincible defense on sea and land, Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, said, adding:

"The pictures are making war so horrible that the mere thought of sending a younger generation out into another conflict to be slaughtered is hideous and revolting to the human sense of the world."

William J. Best, commander, Department of Pennsylvania, United Spanish War Veterans:

"I hope the Sun-Telegraph continues publishing these pictures. They can't fail to have a definite effect toward maintenance of a strong national defense and elimination of war.

"People read about war—they saw casualty lists by the score—but the printed word can't hold the lasting impression of such pictures as these."

Nothing so encourages aggression as the reputation for weakness, Brig. Gen. Louis W. Stotesbury pointed out, saying:

"The pictures must, of course, create a revulsion against war. But wholly consistent with such revulsion and determination to avoid war, the most ardent devotee of peace must see in it all the necessity for preparedness.

"There never was a war in which we have engaged that could not have been avoided by preparedness."

WRITER LAUDS WAR PICTURES

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Faith Baldwin, one of America's best-known writers, praises the uncensored war pictures appearing in the Hearst newspapers, saying:

"One must consider the Hearst newspapers' series of war pictures as something of a two-edged sword. They at once take all the glamor out of war—war looks anything but romantic as the New York American pictures it—and they represent a most powerful argument for an adequate Army and Navy that will block a repetition of such scenes.

"War, except for the repulsion of an invasion, is a wholly stupid thing that cannot be justified in any way from an economical standpoint. Common sense will dictate that it is by far cheaper to build up an effective fighting force and keep it on hand than it is to wage a war at the cost of millions of dollars a day.

"With an adequate defense available at a moment's notice, our chances of becoming involved in hostilities are held at an almost irreducible minimum. The greatest nation in the world certainly deserves the greatest fighting force in the world—just as a safety check on the aspirations of more aggressive nations."

Play to Be Staged To Aid Boys' Camp

"The Divorce Question" will be presented by the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse in conjunction with Duquesne Council, Knights of Columbus, in the Catholic Boys' High School next Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Proceeds will be used for the summer camp of the Catholic Boys' Welfare Bureau.

COLDS

o Thru 3 Stages

and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days, and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal, which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete — it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is in ting trouble. Get Grove's Laxa Bromo Quinine at any drug t, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the name and refuse a substitute.

Make Meal of Hat

We were up before dawn and I found that cockroaches had eaten the sweatband out of my hat. You could quite believe at that hour that Haiti was the dark mother of mysteries where corpses walk in the moonlight.

With the first warm pinkish glow in the sky we zoomed south over Santo Domingo and lit like a tired bird in San Juan, Porto Rico. That town looked clean and brisk and busy.

But we only stayed 20 minutes during which I was photographed and interviewed as a big shot tiger hunter from India. It must be fame or my good looks or something.

The plump senorita left us there and we other four made a dive for her bed. We finally decided ownership through 40 bottle tops and a pack of greasy cards.

Each man got 10 bottle tops and we were to play poker until somebody had them all. Guess who won. Me! On a bluff at that.

I snuggled into that bunk and slept like a blissful babe while we cast a great dense shadow across the British West Indies. It was after dark and raining a torrent when we dropped with a bump into the harbor of Antigua in the Leewards.

A boy out in a canoe looked up in startled agony as the 'plane roared down, crashed his barge and tossed him neatly into the sea. The wireless man soon fished him up again.

Cat Finds a Pal

Antigua was dull and stuffy and damper than a baby's kiss. They still charged Rue de la Paix prices and I sighed for Imperial Airways service where hotel pirates empty your pockets more painlessly. On the British line your hotel bills are part of the fare.

It seemed but a minute before a toothless boy was shoving steaming sausages under my nose and shaking me to get up. But South Sea sausages were beyond my internal strength and I made friends with the hotel cat for life.

All that third day squalls clawed and hissed at us and as we hit the bumpety bumps I was glad I'd passed up the baby baloney. Sometimes we sped through drizzles; sometimes through torrents but the big silver bird dropped us in Georgetown, hop-off spot for Guiana gold fields, right on the tick of schedule.

All the Germans in town, keen to get the latest dope from the Fatherland, were down to meet their compatriot and I was invited to the feast. Again it was sausages. Big meaty sausages.

By this time we'd gone so far east we'd gained an hour of daylight and they shook us awake at 3 so you can imagine how much sleep we got in Georgetown. To make it worse a red-headed woman had come from nowhere to claim my bed, so for seven hours of the fourth day in the air, I looked below for that dreaded den of desperadoes, Devil's Island.

As if in keeping with the sinister reputation of the place, the whole countryside below changed from waving palms and shining coral to swamp and quicksand. Rivers were muddy; jungles were impenetrable. We saw neither houses nor roads nor grazing herds.

Devil's Island

Then the steward came along the catwalk. Pointing, he said:

"Royale, at the left, is where the dungeons are.

"Devil's, in the center, is the one they talk about so much, but see how small it is. You can walk completely around it while smoking a cigaret.

"The other is St. Joseph.

"This channel we are over is filled with sharks, but it's too muddy to see them. They feed the dead to sharks here—and the sharks know it. This thick, gooey mud by the shore is lightning sand, quicker and deadlier than quicksand.

"Back in the swale and swamplands lives the spider crab, whose bite is deadly, and the bushmaster, one of the only three snakes on earth which attack a man on sight."

The big silver bird swerved in the rain and swung gently down to a muddy river. Crimson parrots shrieked at us. We hit with a bump. I could just picture the sign:

"Abandon hope, all ye who enter here."

WORK ON SHELL TO FIGHT TANK

MONTREAL, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Men who mold the instruments of war look forward today to perfection of a bullet which may be sent by a rifle through the plated sides of the rumbling army tank.

Maj. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, chief of the general staff, told officers of the Canadian Grenadier Guards last night that a study of the effect of very high velocity light bullets on armor has suggested a special cartridge might be developed for use against tanks at short range.

Recently, the General said, a rifle has been brought out which has better shooting qualities—and a more efficient spike bayonet which will penetrate winter clothing and web equipment.

Then there is a new simple and sure method of attaching the bayonet and grenade discharger. There has been a general simplification of manufacture, he said.

Knocked From Train, South Side Boy Hurt

Knocked from the side of a freight car at South Twenty-first and Carson streets, Michael Hossack, 20, of 2320 Josephine street, was removed to the South Side Hospital with severe lacerations of the head and body, according to police. Hossack was stealing a ride on the freight, and was brushed off the side by a pole, police said.

Scranton Man Found Unconscious Here

Found unconscious on his bed in a hotel room, Edward Penworth, 26, of Scranton, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital today.

Penworth registered at the St. James Hotel yesterday and left a notice last night to be called at 8 a. m. Hotel employes, unable to rouse him, forced the door.

SOVIET PILOTS SENT TO DEATH BY ICE

By LINDESAY PARROTT

International News Service.

MOSCOW Feb. 1.—The first tragic details of the losing battle fought by three Soviet balloonists who lost their lives in a crash to the earth after setting a new world's altitude record with a 12.79-mile flight into the stratosphere came to light today.

A wireless message from the doomed craft, picked up by an amateur listener just two hours before the disaster, indicated that a heavy coating of ice forming on the balloon in a zone of damp clouds sent the balloonists to their death.

As reported by the semi-official newspaper, Pravda, this message, the last received from the aeronauts, read as follows:

"Attention! Stratostat speaking: We have struck a zone of damp clouds. The balloon is covered with ice. We are in a dangerous position and dropping. My two comrades are in very bad condition."

FOG BLOCKS RESCUE

It was not certain whether the message was broadcast by Paul Fedeseemko, commander of the ill-starred expedition, or by either of his two assistants, Iiya Oususkin and Andrey Vasenko. All were killed when the sealed gondola of the craft broke away from the balloon and crashed to earth in an isolated spot southeast of Moscow.

The message was picked up by a radio fan living at Gomel, near the border between Soviet Russia and Poland. It was received on Tuesday afternoon, while a fleet of Russian scouting planes were streaking through the heavy fog in an effort to locate the balloon and guide it safely to earth.

TWO EXPLOSIONS

The fact that the balloon was heavily coated with ice led to the belief the cables holding the gondola might have become weakened and snapped, throwing the heavy metal sphere to the ground while the gas bag floated away. Persons living near the scene of the crash reported hearing two explosions.

The official commission appointed to investigate the tragedy has not made its report.

Soviet newspapers today published a memorial to the aeronauts, signed by high military, naval and air chiefs, which read:

"Feelings of pride over Soviet enterprise and technique are mingled with our grief over the death of these young enthusiasts who laid their lives on the altar of Soviet defense."

Karl Radek, noted editor of Pravda, said:

"The crew fully gained the honor of burial in the Kremlin Wall, since they lost their lives in a struggle to build Socialism and the Soviet defense.

"The stratostat's ascent was not only for abstract scientific reasons, but was prompted by a desire to safeguard the Soviet against attackers."

Elaborate ceremonies are planned for the time when the bodies of the three victims are brought to Moscow for burial.

William Holmes McGuffey and His Famous Readers—Dr. R. U. Johnson Is Suspicious of Russia

By Edwin C. Hill

THAT sentimental streak in Henry Ford—the link which binds him to his boyhood on a Michigan farm, to ice-skating, square-dancing, old furniture and the things of the good old days—crops out again in the news. For Mr. Ford has taken an option on a rambling farmhouse which has stood outside of Washington, Pa., since Revolutionary days. And if, as expected, he exercises this option, the old farmhouse will be restored and the country will have a shrine to one of its most deserving sons—to one, indeed, who more greatly influenced the minds and character of millions of boys and girls than probably any other American teacher.

For William Holmes McGuffey, who was born in the old farmhouse, was none other than the McGuffey who gave to America the book which influenced its development more than any other book ever published, except the Bible. We say book, but like the Scriptures themselves, it was really a series of books—the McGuffey Eclectic Readers, six of them.

To Henry Ford and to millions of his fellow-Americans, including myself, the word McGuffey is a magic sesame which opens the floodgates of memory. It brings back the little red schoolhouse on the hill. It conjures up spring and violets by the wayside, barefoot boys and pig-tailed little girls, the old road and the 9 o'clock bell.

His Readers Studied By Millions

I HAVE no doubt that a hundred million American boys and girls, between the years 1836 and 1905, first drank at the well of knowledge sunk by William Holmes McGuffey out in Oxford, O., almost a century ago.

The man McGuffey is far less known than his famous readers, from which so many men and women, famous or obscure, good and bad and rich and poor, first learned the delights of reading. His people were Scotch and his father, Alexander McGuffey, was one of the best of the Indian scouts in the early Northwest Territory. From his father and mother he learned the three R's, but it was an itinerant preacher, a circuit rider, who detected young McGuffey's urge for learning and put him through college.

From college and the Presbyterian ministry, William Holmes McGuffey went out to publish McGuffey's First Reader. The wisdom of the world was condensed in its 74 pages, with illustrations wonderful to young eyes. The alphabet first, then simple words: A-X spells ax, and the picture alongside to prove it. B-O-X for box, and another picture. The drawing of the dunce and the admonition: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." The sad, story of Frank Brown who played hookey and was drowned. All were there, with hundreds of others. And no matter how our elders spoke it, we youngsters in Indiana were cautioned to pronounce C-O-V-E-R-E-D as covered, and not kivvered, and O-I-L as oil and not isle.

Reader after reader followed McGuffey's old First, as childhood minds were shaped to receive the growing knowledge—McGuffey's Second Reader, his Third, Fourth, Fifth and finally the wonderful Sixth. Obedience, piety, kindness, temperance! Surely it was not Dr. McGuffey's fault if we failed to acquire those virtues or to hold them. It was he who first showed us Patrick Henry before the Virginia Assembly, taunting George the Third and crying out:

"Give me liberty or give me death!"

Homespun religion, patriotism and homilies were to be found in plenty, but also the best in poetry, rhetoric and literature. Many a man went to Congress, and more than a few to the White House because of the spark kindled within them by the words of great men which McGuffey put in his readers as examples and inspiration.

Well, times change, as Cicero said. McGuffey went out of style just about the time that Henry Ford's horseless carriage came in. Education for children seems to have discarded much of the old-fashioned and the simple. Pedagogy is as standardized as a motor car assembly line in one of Mr. Ford's own factories.

We who knew the great McGuffey and drank of the golden fountain have only sympathy for the youngsters who knew him not, nor his well of knowledge. How in their mellow years will they be able to say as fervently as we say tonight: "How dear to our hearts are the scenes of our childhood."

Says Life Needs Imagination

IT is a pleasant thing to record that a gentleman with a great gift for the right word in prose and poetry, and in the ordinary business of living, has come in excellent health to the age of 81. I refer to Dr. Robert Underwood Johnson, whose tranquil genius has added so much to the luster of American civilization. He has written many books of verse and some years ago he was our Ambassador to Italy. He is also Director of the Hall of Fame of New York University.

Entering his eighty-second year, Dr. Johnson tells us that American life needs imagination more than anything else—something to offset the materialism which finally brought on the hard times from which we are just emerging. And the way to acquire imagination is to read the best poetry.

He himself has written a new poem as a tribute to President Roosevelt, calling it "The Conqueror of Delay"—a salute to a President who goes to work and does it. He has another poem called "Recognition," which he wrote before our government recognized the Soviet government of Russia.

Dr. Johnson, like all good Americans, bows to the President's will and action in the Russian matter, but he says very frankly that the Soviets for years have been engaged in undermining our institutions, and that they must constantly be watched against the spread of Communistic propaganda by people who are subtle and never keep faith.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Whenever some long anticipated event is over, everyone dreads the possibility of a dearth of social activity. But always something bobs up on the social horizon to interest folks.

Now that the Presidential Ball is over, and the Colonial Dames' parade of historical fashions, the social calendar would be fairly empty if it weren't for the Stage and Play production coming on February 7 and a benefit bridge and tea Tuesday, February 6.

Miss Mason's Alumnae Benefit Is for Home

Miss Mason's Alumnae Association will give a bridge Tuesday in the College Club for the benefit of the association's work in the occupational therapy department at the Harmarville Convalescent Home for Women and Children at Harmarville, Pa.

Mrs. Grant D. Wainwright is general chairman for the bridge; Mrs. William C. Reitz II is in charge of tickets; Mrs. J. George Kahl and Mrs. Harold Miller, of tables.

There'll be aides of course, to include Mrs. J. Reid Kennedy, Mrs. R. C. Oehmler, Mrs. Charles B. Steffey, Mrs. Howard Callahan, Mrs. Dirce Simon, Mrs. Percy D. Siverd and Miss Laura Schroll.

Mrs. Walker Attendant At Eastern Nuptials

Mrs. Joseph W. Walker was among the attendants at the wedding of Rita J. Maffitt, daughter of the Robert S. Maffitts, of East Orange, N. J., and Howard Arthur Bellows, of Akron, O., son of the late John Bellowses, of Richmond, Va., which took place Monday night in the East Orange Christ Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Charles E. Hutchinson, the rector, officiated. After their wedding trip, Mr. Bellows and his bride will live in Akron.

The L. Hays Gotts, of Dalzell place, announce the engagement of their daughter Elizabeth Dalzell Gott to John Breakenridge Templeton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Templeton, of Hinsdale, Ill.

Cathedral Scene Of McCafferty Nuptials

At 9:30 o'clock this morning Miss Anne McCafferty became the bride of Edward Kossler in St. Paul's Cathedral. Officiating was the Rev. Clarence Sanderbeck.

The bride, who is the daughter of Edward McCafferty, of Darragh street, wore a princess gown of powder blue angelskin lace with a small matching hat and nose veil. She carried a muff of peach satin with tea roses. Miss Helen Egan, as maid of honor, wore peach colored crinkled crepe and carried Talisman roses. The bridegroom, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Kossler, of Tyndall street, had John Snaman as his best man.

New York Girl Marries Man From Dublin

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The marriage of Miss Marion Philomena O'Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. O'Connor, of 260 Riverside Drive and Drumhierny House, Leitrim, Ireland, to Aodogan Owen O'Rahilly, of Dublin, took place Monday morning in the Church of Notre Dame, Morningside Drive and 114th street.

The Rev. Thomas J. Wheelwright, of West End, N. J., half-brother of Eamon de Valera, President of the Irish Free State, performed the ceremony and was the celebrant of the nuptial mass that followed.

The bride wore a white Florentine satin gown and a veil of Venetian point lace, which has been in the bridegroom's family for more than 150 years.

Mrs. Neil J. Cohalan, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Virginia Hagerty, Camilla Cowan, Gladys Molinelli and Margaret Corey. Neil J. Cohalan was best man for Mr. O'Rahilly.

The ceremony was followed by a reception and wedding breakfast for members of the bridal party at the Central Park Casino.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Rahilly will sail today on the Manhattan for Dublin, where they will make their home. Both the bride and the bridegroom attended University College in that city. Mr. O'Rahilly's father, who was known as The O'Rahilly of Dublin, died some time ago.

Duquesne Guild Tableholders Announced

Mrs. W. C. Eichenlaub, president of the Women's Guild of Duquesne University, has announced a partial list of tableholders for the card party to be held in the Library Building of the university, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The guild party will be followed by a complimentary tea, given to the guild members by senior girls of the university.

The tea will also be given in the Library Building and guests will be served from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock. Miss Catherine King is chairman of the senior girls' committee in charge.

Guild tableholders are Mrs. J. A. Donohoe, Mrs. O. B. Hannon, Mrs. W. C. Eichenlaub, Mrs. J. Frank McKenna, Mrs. J. L. Fritsch, Mrs. Albert A. Munsch, Mrs. L. P. Collins, Mrs. J. F. Mohan, Mrs. A. J. Loeffler, Mrs. Henry J. Wesling, Mrs. J. L. Cisneros, Mrs. G. M. Sixsmith, Dean M. Gertrude Blanchard, Mrs. Gilbert J. Trageser, Miss Gertrude McCaffrey, Mrs. Charles A. Poth, Mrs. Stephen Flood, Miss Catherine Kerner and Mrs. W. H. Connell, Jr.

The annual Interfraternity Ball, sponsored by the Interfraternity Council of Duquesne University, will be held in the Hotel William Penn Friday night. Henry J. Weinberg, president of the council, is general chairman.

Examinations were held throughout the past week in all departments of the university. Registration will be conducted the first three days of next week, classes resuming for the second semester February 8.

Federation of Girls' Schools Luncheon Attended by 375

Three hundred seventy-five members of the Federation of Girls' Schools Societies—alumnae of the different finishing schools for girls—met for their annual luncheon yesterday in the Hotel Schenley.

Each school group had its own table for the luncheon—so it was a luncheon of many reunions.

Besides electing officers for the new year, the Federation heard reports on the work being done at the Harmarville Convalescent Home, which the Federation assists, and reports of the various officers.

Mrs. George Singer Ebbert, who has been president for quite a few terms, will be first vice president this year, and Mrs. W. Eugene Gary will be president.

Miss Suzanne Anderson will be second vice president; Mrs. William M. Duff, third vice president; Mrs. Paul B. Ernst, recording secretary; Mary Priscilla Burnett, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Theodore F. Smith, treasurer, and Mrs. A. Neilen Otterbein, assistant treasurer.

Mrs. James I. Marsh will be chairman of the house committee at Harmarville, with Mrs. William J. Powell as assistant chairman, and Mrs. J. George Kahl, chairman of occupational therapy.

Huston Family To Leave for Wedding

Dr and Mrs. A. F. P. Huston, of Federal street, North Side, and their daughter, Mrs. C. C. Rafferty, of Perrysville avenue, and son, William B. Huston, leave tomorrow to attend the wedding of their son, Dr. A. F. P. Huston, Jr., of Uhrichsville, O., to Miss Charlotte Lentz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Lentz, which will take place in Glen Rock, Pa., on Saturday.

Miss Margaret Lentz is to be her sister's maid of honor, and William B. Huston will be his brother's best man. Dr. Huston, Jr., is a graduate of Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia.

Through the Spyglass & VIEWING THE NEW

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . and you will be answered promptly!

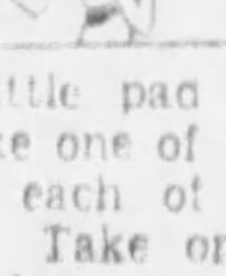
Here's the time when your taste isn't ALL in your mouth . . . it's ON your lips! In other words . . . your lipstick will go a long way toward showing if you have good taste . . . and one of the stores has a clever affair which allows every woman to actually try four different shades herself, before buying.



There's a little pad of tester blanks . . . take one of them and dab a bit of each of the four shades on it. Take one of the tissues supplied, some of the lip lotion, and REMOVE your own lipstick. Then, dipping your finger into the lipstick you've dabbed on the tester blank . . . try it yourself . . . all four shades! An easy and efficient way of finding out the RIGHT lipstick for you!

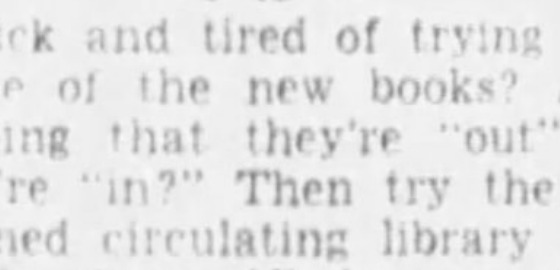
June Geraniums . . . even if it's February! Flowers are about to bloom in your bathrooms . . . provided you heed these words! For one of the country's most famous cosmeticians has put out a set of wash cloths treated with June geranium soap (which many of you have already used) . . . and now the scrubbing hour will be a delightfully lathery one! Each cloth good for three baths . . . three cloths in an oiled silk envelope (waterproof) for 75c.

* * *



Sick and tired of trying to get some of the new books? Always finding that they're "out" when you're "in?" Then try the newly opened circulating library in one of the shops. All the newest books . . . nice clean ones (not dog-eared and dirty) . . . prices, 10c for the first three days, 2c per day thereafter. Why, they even had Sinclair Lewis' new book two days before it "came out!"

Of all the places where we have gone a-clipping, this one store has the best assortment of clips for $1. In fact, we always find ourselves asking "how much?" in reference to some glitterers in the show case, thinking that they are doubtless beyond us . . . only to find that they are $1 ones! Square set rhinestones . . . rhinestones in combination with black . . . pins, clips, duettes (pin made from 2 clips, you know) . . . and all looking like much more than their prices. There is even one which is a spray of flowers . . . quite large . . . and you'd never DREAM it was but A DOLLAR!

Allee samee hungry ladies will rise to THIS occasion! For when a whole dinner of chop suey, noodles and mandarin sauce comes packed into a box for the price of 79c in place of the customary one of 90c . . . then it's time to DO SOMETHING about it!

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Werlinich, of Wayne avenue, McKees Rocks, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marie Werlinich, to Walter F. Bittner, son of the late August and Augusta Bittner, of McKees Rocks. A spring wedding is being planned.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

After her finishing school lessons were over, she studied shorthand and typewriting, and then became the Junior League's secretary.

She has to be at the league every day, except Sunday, of course, and manages to do a lot of work, for the Junior League with its many activities has a lot to be done.

Of course she doesn't work all the time. She enjoyed the Presidential Ball enormously. The Junior League co-operated with the ball committee, you know.

Hervey Allen, former Pittsburgh boy, whose "Anthony Adverse" has made him and Pittsburgh famous, is in Florida, the guest of his aunt, Mrs. A. E. Rickmers, of Coral Gables and Pittsburgh.

Janet L. Grier Is Married In Home

Miss Janet Lindsay Grier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Grier, of Cheswick, Pa., and Richard A. Cimiotti will be married this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents.

Marcia Brink, small niece of the bride, will be her flower girl and only attendant.

The bride is a graduate of Margaret Morrison Carnegie College, Carnegie Institute of Technology, and the bridegroom, of Carnegie Tech.

P. C. W. Alumnae Giving Bridge, Dance on Friday

In order that the members might meet more frequently during the year, the Alumnae Association of Pennsylvania College for Women has planned bridge and dance for Friday evening February 9, in the College Club. Miss Elizabeth Stadtlander is general chairman for the affair to which, by the way, members will bring guests.

Greek Glory Paled in Florida

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—The glory that was Greece and the bedlam that was Babylon have nothing on the Florida playground in the incredible year of 1934 A. D. (after depression).

Bigger and better clebration is the order of the day, as the poor little rich girls and boys make merry all the night.

Dozens of new night clubs blossom weekly in the land of the cocoanut palms, and the Southern moon looks down on a great white way transplanted.

The town is full of wealthy Cubans who like to go places and do things. The younger Menocals, six-foot sons of that aristocratic little firebrand, Gen. Merion Menocal, ex-President of Cuba, are seen these days in the Miami bright spots.

Roxy, amazing little Napoleon of the Broadway world, who is no longer connected with Rockefeller Center, the motion picture cathedral which bears his name, keeps to himself and says:

"I'm just a tired man who wants to be left alone."

And Stephen Ames, ex-husband of Adrienne Ames, of cinema fame, adds color to the boardwalk with his sailcloth slacks of brightest blue.

Young men about the beach are blossoming out these days in colors that rival the plumage of the gaudiest tropical birds—slacks of orange and rust and Kelly green, with polo shirts of lemon yellow, indigo blue or scarlet.

And the girls have gone Mexican in a big way, with fringed beach trousers, gay bandannas and Buffalo Bill sombreros.

By MRS CHARLES M. BREGG

In introducing Miss Marianne Genet to the Woman's City Club audience yesterday afternoon, Harvey Gaul said she was the only woman composer in Pittsburgh who is writing with melodic vitality and that writing is to Miss Genet both a passion and a disease—a grand intoxication.

The occasion was the club's afternoon of Oriental music which Miss Genet presented with the assistance of Sara Jamison Logan, Charlotte Shallenberger Mulloy and Edward Dunbar, as soloists, and Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. Florence Gretton Eckhardt and Miss Edith Bane as orchestra.

The orchestral instruments were Oriental, a gong, drums, clappers, snake charmer's flute, donkey bell and what not and those that were not used for sound were utilized as part of the elaborate decorative scheme. Hangings, rugs, cushions and some odd little padded silk figurines all brought from the Orient by Dr. and Mrs. Gaul and Miss Bane combined to make a picturesque and colorful background for the very enjoyable program.

The program numbers were all of Miss Genet's own composition and each was given in authentic costume loaned by the Gauls. The composer prefaced each number with a talk descriptive of the music. The Arabs and Persians have the most elaborate scale system in the world and one famous singer had 21,000 melodies memorized, she said.

More than 100 persons, including several of the city's leading musical figures, attended the luncheon which preceded the program and fully twice that number came in for the afternoon.

Federation Leader Lives in Past and Present

As a member of the faculty of Goucher College, in the archeological department, Dr. Grace Hadley Beardsley, chairman of public relations in the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, has accomplished the feat of living very vividly in the past and the present at the same time.

Vassar College fellowships sent her to Johns Hopkins where she took her A. M. and Ph. D. degrees. War restlessness sent her temporarily into business, the research division of the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Guaranty Trust, in New York City. But she found her way back to the teaching profession through the Roland Park Country School in Maryland, and thence to Goucher. Her husband, Dr. Wilfred Attwood Beardsley, is also a member of the Goucher faculty, head of the department of Romance languages. They have a son, Billy, who is 11.

Travel in the Mediterranean countries has been one of Dr. Beardsley's chief delights. She spent some time in photographing for slides the less visited Roman ruins of Spain; and she says she has "at least looked" at the Roman and Greek ruins of Europe, North Africa and the fringe of nearer Asia.

Dr. Beardsley has been president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Baltimore and of the Maryland Federation; state chairman of international relations and leader of the 1932 Good Will tour; chairman of the committee on international study groups; a member of the committee on discriminations against women and of the faculty of "The Printed Page" of the Independent Woman.

The shadow of Holland seems to have an influence, too, for she raises thousands of tulips when she isn't collecting costume or native jewelry, traveling with her husband and son, or searching for relics in a really "good" ruin.

She says the turning point in her career must have come when her husband generously decided to help her follow a life of work outside the home.

East Liberty Club Drama Department Plans Play

THE ALL-WHITE BOUDOIR ROBE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WHITE GARMENTS for the boudoir and the lazier spreads at a breakfast table are a new note in feminine lounging styles. They are marvelous if white happens to become a girl, and as there are many shades of white, there should be one that becomes everyone.

Light-weight woollens are advocated for this 'tween season, when one may be North or South, and trying to outwit the capricious thermometer and the sniffles in either clime. Spongy, tweed weaves that remind one of the cuddly throws used for crib and pram covers are excellent for grown-up dressing gowns, and when they are combined with rich-tinted Alencon lace, appliqued at cuff and neck, they become quite sophisticated.

Heavy white silk, either flat crepe or in a raw silk weave similar to pongee, makes slick tailored coats and lounging pajamas, and when both are combined in one outfit, they provide a lot of warmth along with their attractiveness.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

The officials at the paper and those at the broadcasting studios are liberal enough, of course, and I should be edited, I know . . . For—a columnist and commentator is never that good an authority on what to omit . . . But at the studios the other night they thought it "was too much dynamite" and it might offend the new administration if I poked the hospital in town which took 55 minutes for its ambulances to get to the scene . . . "Mayor La Guardia," I yelled, "would want such a thing known. That's what he will stop as soon as he gets a chance to unpack!" . . . But they struck the sarcasm out of the continuity and I burned . . . The story dealt with orchids to Officer Fred Reicher, who heard a woman's screams the other middle of the night—and after investigating—discovered her alone and unattended in a basement on the verge of becoming a mother. It took the ambulance almost an hour to get there—and the baby was brought into the world by the trigger-minded policeman—bless him . . . They wouldn't let me add: "The ambulance got there in 55 minutes—thus establishing a new speed record for New York ambulances!" . . . For the first time I had no last flip crack, too. Not because they blue-penciled it—but because at the final moment someone recalled that Ed Wynn had used it recently . . . It was funny anyhow . . . About Ben Bernie—who became a nudist—and when the nudist colony threw their first fancy dress ball—Bernie stuck a raisin in each ear and went as a cookie!

Wonder why some radio sponsors, such as those featuring Will Rogers—think a quartet or a choir is easier on the ears than Rogers' amusing sallies? . . . It was aggravating no little on Sunday evening . . . Rogers was in a good humor, and his comments were very gay . . . You wanted him to continue indefinitely—and just as he said: "Now, I'll tell you about the gold—oop—they're pushing me away—my time's up." . . . It made you groan a little—and then louder when on came a group of orioles who offered: "Asleep in the Deep" . . . A cute song to keep you awake . . . They can bury all the good and bad canaries, so far as I'm concerned—when Will Rogers is going gay . . . And the niftiest of the swifties, I think, was Will's retort to some people who apparently had written him notes telling him that they didn't think he was so hot . . . He stifled them by replying: "I have no sympathy with anyone too lazy to turn a dial!"

Among other buried personalities—who belong in New York—is a stranger to me named Arthur Godfrey . . . I itemized about him the other day—but some shrewd radio showman should bag him for here to make some of the midnight programs breezier . . . Godfrey is stuck in Alexandria, Va., on WJSV—across the Potomac from the Capitol . . . Probably because he has to take what he can get . . . But he is big-time . . . He has a sort of Bernie droll and charm—but better! . . . His quips are sly—and his fly-talk is terrifically Broadway or Big Town . . . Apparently Alexandria, Va., is no longer a burg—for they "get" Godfrey there . . . I got a load of his stuff when he happened to be on an all-night show the other night . . . One of the Greenwich Village places could make great use of Godfrey—on the air, I mean . . . I don't know how he goes on a stage . . . At any rate—talent is at a premium—and I haven't picked a flop, yet . . . I expect to hear about him being signed for New York . . . His regular routine is from 7 to 9 a. m.—mixing his chatter of news and quips with local advertising . . . What an awful sentence for an expert at making people smile, and laugh—The poor man.

The war now being fought by the new Mayor against the regime he licked hasn't really started, I hear . . . The Welfare Island mess is merely an opening act . . . Another due soon will be directed at a local crazy house—where they say a newspaperman was framed and confined there in solitary—after being trapped jotting down notes on corruption and graft there . . . He wasn't on a paper at the time . . . He promoted a job, it seems, in the surgical ward and they caught him sending manuscript bit by bit to his publisher. As punishment and for fear his expose would ruin them all—he was adjudged nuts and still is there . . . That's the amazing tale being bandied among newspapermen, anyway . . . I'm turning the lead over to my boss .

It is the saddest story, I think, I ever heard in my career covering the Broadway front . . . He is a singer . . . And the gay place where he twitters features him down front off side near the wings of the stage—while the girls behind a scrim are seen in tableaux—but entirely peeled . . . First the poor chap sings the song . . . About his girl in Burma—he dreamed about her or something . . . Then he must cover his head, which he puts on the tall desk in front of him. He's an office clerk—and he's dreaming about those Eves in Burma . . . And while he is thus covered—a charmer comes on but with no clothes—and dances around his desk for a dozen minutes . . . She is a lovely figured thing and she chucks her hips and arms and stems hither and thither and then thither, again . . . All the time the poor chap is "sleeping" or making believe he is . . . Then she exits and he sings about her again—and this time he must face the audience and never turn his head . . . For in back of him are oodles of Eves without even fig leaves! . . . I told the producer, Billy Rose, that it was an awful thing to do to a guy—having him not see what the audience can look at . . . Then Mr Rose explained what happened . . . He said that during rehearsals the singer gave him an argument about something—so Rose made him go to sleep during his number when the girls were undraped—to get even . . . The fiend.

Langner Sees His Comedy In Nixon

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Lawrence Langner has been in town to see the road premiere of "The School for Husbands" in the Nixon Theater. Langner is the man chiefly responsible for this revival of a Moliere comedy 300 years after its first production. But that isn't the only thing Langner has done for the theater. He is a patent attorney with a large and wide practice, but on his farm at Westport, an hour's journey from Broadway, he has a summer theater of his own—where this Moliere adaptation was first shown. There he also put on a new version of "Die Fledermaus," melodious opera by Johann Strauss, rechristened "Champagne Sec." An original play on the quaint old custom of Bundling, "The Pursuit of Happiness," written by Langner and his wife, also was produced there last summer, and shortly afterward found its way to the Rialto.

Mr. Seibel.

Langner was born at Swansea in South Wales, and went up to London at the age of 14 to work in an office. Taste for the theater led him to choose the office of the Ben Greet Players. There his mother found him, sitting on a box which once had contained dynamite and still bore the label in large letters. When his mother arrived the explosion at once took place. Lawrence became a qualified and sedate patent attorney, until his profession brought him to America.

Pittsburgh was the second city he visited in America. He has been here nearly a score of times since, usually to look after the rights of some inventor.

FROM WASHINGTON SQUARE

Langner's connection with the New York theater began with the Washington Square Players group, from which sprang the Theater Guild. Philip Moeller, Helen West and some of the other pioneers are still pillars of the Guild, now a highly respectable and solid institution, doing splendid work for theatrical art, but also gathering in shekels at the box office.

It is likely that "The Pursuit of Happiness," when produced in the Nixon later in the season, will bring Langner to our city again. He considers Pittsburgh one of the best theater towns in the country. New plays of the Guild are often brought here for tryout. That was how we got the world premiere of Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness," with George M. Cohan in the principal role. Langner says:

"Pittsburgh audiences not only have discriminating taste, but are also proportionately larger than those of Boston or Philadelphia."

HE'S A ROMANTIC

Lawrence Langner shares with Maxwell Anderson a love of the beautiful in the theater. Both of them are always turning out costume plays, despite the superstition of managers that people want plays of today, dealing with present-day problems.

"The problems of Moliere," says Langner, "are the problems of every age. The passions depicted by Shakespeare are the passions of every age."

And he agrees that history did not begin with the reign of Roosevelt I.

Maxwell Anderson has talked the same way. That's why he goes back again and again to the age of Elizabeth and Mary of Scotland, writing poetic dramas gorgeous in rhetoric.

Poetic dramas in costume, it might be added, are just as successful as modern plays, considering the proportion they bear to the total output, just as Pittsburgh audiences are proportionately larger than the theater-going population of other towns. Of course, such plays must be written and put on by people with literary and artistic taste, like Maxwell Anderson and Lawrence Langner.

Punch Held Back Prevents Headline Trouble

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—Bob Richie is shuddering to think what the headlines might have been if he had punched before he looked the other evening.

The adventure began, like true melodrama, with the telephone ringing eerily in the middle of the night. Bob roused out of sleep to answer.

The person at the other end of the wire was Michael Farmer. He said that Jeanette MacDonald had been trying to get Bob for five minutes and that someone was breaking into her apartment.

Grabbing a robe, Bob dashed down two flights of stairs to find Gloria Swanson and Michael Farmer (coats wrapped around them) standing in front of the door. Just as Bob entered the apartment, he heard a noise in the kitchen.

Another dash, and he flung the door open. There, before him, he saw the shadowy form of a man. Bob hauled off to hit, but in a split-second change of mind grabbed for the light switch.

In a sudden glare was revealed Josef Von Sternberg. Behind him were Jeanette and several other people.

It was all a practical joke.

Bob still gets the jitters when he imagines the headlines:

"Bob Richie Knocks Down Josef Von Sternberg in the Kitchen of Jeanette Macdonald's Apartment."

A youthful driver, trying to make it to school by 9 o'clock, came through an intersection and banged into Ginger Rogers' car the other morning. Both machines were wrecked, but fortunately no glass broke. Ginger piled out of the car, bumped and bruised but otherwise uninjured.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Personal Appearance

"THE TEAPOT," over on Eighth avenue, is generally crowded. The food is fairly good, fairly plentiful, and cheap. For these considerations, the customers of "The Teapot" are willing to overlook such drawbacks as staineed tablecloths and dingy silverware.

Anna works in that little restaurant. She's a waitress there. For 10 hours a day, she carries her tray back and forth across the tiled floor. And at the end of a week, she has eight dollars in salary, numerous nickels and dimes in tips—and a pair of doggies that ache plentifully.

All of which is a pretty complete description of both Anna and the "Tea Pot." . . .

On one recent night, Anna rested against the bar of the "Tea Pot" and chatted idly with Joe, the counter man. There were only three or four customers in the place, for the weather was bad and the hour was early.

"Trouble around here, Joe," observed Anna, "is that we got too much competition. I keep tellin' the boss to get wise to himself, but——"

She stopped abruptly. Her eyes opened wide. A customer had entered the place, and was seating himself at a table near the door.

"Holy jumpin' baloney!" breathed Anna. "It's Bradford Biddleworth. Sure it is, Joe. It's Bradford Biddleworth, himself! Remember when they used to call him the Screen's Supreme Lover? That's who it is, Joe."

Joe nodded.

"Yeah," he agreed. "Right you are, Annie. That's who it is. Yeah."

But Annie wasn't listening any more. She had already approached Mr. Biddleworth's table with an air of diffidence. Her voice trembled as she gave out the inevitable "What'll you have?"

Biddleworth looked up to see the girl staring at him with eyes that were large and round. She smiled shyly.

"Don't get me wrong," she begged. "But you see, I—I recognized you right off the bat. You're Bradford Biddleworth, aren't you?"

The screen star nodded. He was pleased.

"That's right, my dear. I am indeed."

"I knew it the minnit I seen you," the girl went on. "You was always my favorite actor. You're swell, what I mean!" Then, as if remembering her position, she added: "Did you want somethin' to eat?"

"Yes," declared the actor. "But something very light. Let me have a swiss cheese sandwich and some coffee. I'm attending a banquet later, you see, and I merely want a bite. I used to eat here in the old days before I became—ahem, successful. And, naturally, I still retain my fondness for the old 'Tea Pot'."

"You still remember, eh?" marveled Anna. "Gee whiz!" . . .

She filled the order, and stood beside the screen star as he ate.

Biddleworth set down his coffee cup.

"I'm having difficulty finding the proper vehicle. And until I find one, I'm making a personal appearance tour through the country. I positively refused to continue my screen work until they give me the proper vehicle. Why should I accept the wrong offer?"

Anna nodded.

"I get you," she agreed. "You got ideals. You don't wanna let your public down by appearin' in somethin' that ain't worthy of you."

"That's it exactly," said Bradford Biddleworth. "You're quite correct. I can't let my public down."

Anna sighed.

"I'll never forget that one picture you was in. 'Passion's Playground,' I think it was. Gee, you was swell in that!"

"Yes," the actor murmured reminiscently. "I always felt that I did some of my best work in that vehicle."

He wiped his finger tips on the corner of his napkin.

"And now, my dear," he smiled. "I'll take the check. I'd like to eat more in this little place, but I must think of that banquet later. I really hate to go—but it's an obligation."

The girl tore a sheet from her pad.

"I know how it must be, Mr. Biddleworth. You movie stars have got to go to plenty of places you don't want to go—just because you're so famous. It's just like you said. You can't let your public down."

Biddleworth counted out the money to pay for the check. He fingered a dollar bill for a moment, thoughtfully. Then he handed it to the girl with a benign gesture. Anna spoke as if stunned.

"G—Gee," she stammered. "A whole buck for me! Thanks Mr. Biddleworth. And good night." . . .

Bradford Biddleworth's shoulders were hunched as he stepped from the "Tea Pot" into the sharp coldness of the winter night. He thrust his hands into his pockets and smiled wryly.

"Another dollar gone," he mused. "Only four left now, and no more in sight. I was a fool to make a gesture like that, but I just couldn't help myself. That girl admired me so! To her, I was still the great Bradford Biddleworth!

"And after all, as she said, you can't let your public down!" . . .

Inside the "Tea Pot," Anna leaned both arms on the counter and smiled at Joe. She caressed the dollar bill in her hand.

"Pretty good, baby," Joe laughed. "You're okay."

Anna grinned contemptuously.

"The poor ham!" she said. "Just as if I didn't know he was washed up years ago! But them birds is all alike. All you gotta do is spill a line about their 'public' and their 'ideals,' and you're bound to get a juicy tip. What a sap!" . . .

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

A "Hollywood premiere" has been arranged by the Warners for the first Pennsylvania showing of "Fashions of 1934," featuring William Powell and Bette Davis, in the Stanley tonight. The doors of the theater will close at 6 o'clock to reopen at 7:30. Prominent citizens have been invited to attend and to participate in a lobby broadcast. The showing of the picture, a comedy with spectacular scenes, will be preceded by a style show, with professional models, on the stage.

The Calvary Masquers, under the direction of Charles Wooldridge, Jr., is rehearsing "Here Today," comedy that will be presented in Calvary Parish Auditorium Monday and Tuesday evenings, February 12 and 13. Characters of the play will be portrayed by Herbert Osgood, Madeleine Moore, Ralph Radcliffe, Jr., Keth Sterling, Mrs. Henry Scott, Jr., George M. Rowand, Jr., Eda Szecshay and John Johns. This will be the third major production of the second season for the Masquers, who are governed by an executive committee including George M. Rowand, Jr., chairman W. Kirk Gilmore, Gordon Brown, W. W. Woodside, A. Brandin Vestal, Charles Wooldridge, Jr., and Eleanor Lewis Simpson. The only requisite for membership is a desire to further the work of the theater.

The Grand Duchess Maria Pavlovna, cousin of the late czar of Russia, who has been in New York, will act as technical advisor for "Thirty-Day Princess," Paramount picture that will star Sylvia Sidney . . . Miriam Hopkins, who came East to appear in "Jezebel," stage play that didn't last long, and who is doing a "personal appearance" in New York, will return to Hollywood when that's over . . . Kay Francis, Dolores Del Rio, Dick Powell, Hal LeRoy, Ruby Keeler, Al Jolson, Ruth Donnelly and Ricardo Cortez of "Wonder Bar" cast are announced to be among those attending the premiere of the picture in New York next week . . . "Her Master's Voice," comedy success of the current Broadway season, will be turned into celluloid with Mary Boland, as star, and Lanny Ross, recruited from the air waves, in the cast.

Miss Loos, Mr. Emerson Writing Film Tale

New writing contracts with John Emerson and Anita Loos are announced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Co-authors of such stage plays as "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and "The Whole Town's Talking," Emerson and Miss Loos have in collaboration adapted a number of plays to the screen and written several originals. They are now working on a screen original for Jean Harlow and Lionel Barrymore.

Now Keep Breath Sweet 24 hours a day

EASY TO GET RID OF BAD BREATH AT ITS SOURCE BY THIS IMPROVED, SCIENTIFIC WAY THAT DOCTORS ADVISE

Don't fool yourself into believing that you are secure simply because a rinse or gargle with a mouthwash leaves your mouth tingling with a clean, pleasant taste.

To get rid of bad breath and taste you must get at the root of the trouble. That's in your stomach if you're an average person. Excess acids ferment foods, form obnoxious gases that rise up into the mouth and cause embarrassment.

So naturally the easiest, surest way to get relief is to get at the root of the trouble. Doctors advise a teaspoonful of BiSoDoL in water morning and night.

This pleasant-tasting blend of six valuable digestive remedies works wonders. It swiftly neutralizes excess acids, soothes and heals the inflamed mucous membranes. And keeps your stomach so settled and sweet that you are sure of waking up in the morning with a clean, pleasant taste and certain of having a sweet, inconspicuous breath all day!

Don't forget that your breath is only as sweet as your stomach and nothing can keep the stomach any sweeter than BiSoDoL. Try it. Also when you have indigestion, gas, heartburn or any other distressing acid trouble take BiSoDoL. It's the improved, quicker-acting way to get rid of pain and discomfort that doctors have used for many years with success. All druggists sell BiSoDoL.

GIN AT ITS BEST!

pure, dry, smooth, enticing

Yet a FULL QUART costs only . . . .

$1.25

It is not necessary to mortgage the old homestead to get a bottle of fine gin. You can get gin at its best—the driest, the smoothest, the purest, the most enticing in flavor—for $1.25. Not a pint, not a "fifth"—but a full quart! 32 ounces! Just ask for DIXIE BELLE Dry Gin.

Of course, any gin as fine as DIXIE BELLE must have a great distilling history. DIXIE BELLE has. It's the product of the Continental Distilling Corporation, the largest in America—and that means the best in scientific equipment and method.

For gin at its best, ask for DIXIE BELLE. Any drink that calls for gin will taste better if made with DIXIE BELLE. You can get it in pints, too, 75c.

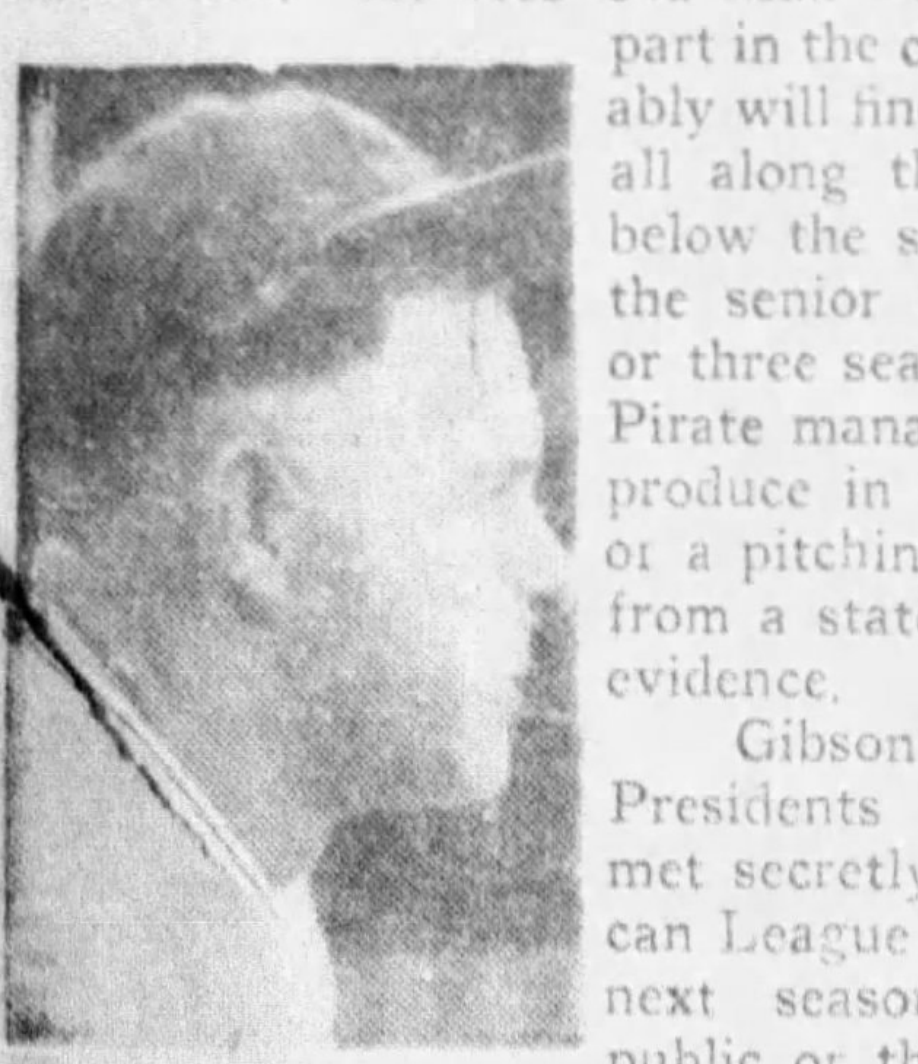
New Ball's Mental Effect. Gibson Sees Psychology. Different If Kept Secret. • Barrow Ranks Batteries. Mixed Styles for Yale. Forecasts Against Maxie.

Will the anticipated increase in hitting and decrease in pitching effectiveness in the National League this year be due entirely to the adoption of a livelier ball? George Gibson thinks not. He sees Old Man Psychology playing a leading part in the changed conditions that probably will find batting averages mounting all along the line and pitchers falling below the slab standards maintained in the senior league during the last two or three seasons. In the opinion of the Pirate manager, whatever the year may produce in the way of a hitting uplift or a pitching decline will result largely from a state of mind that is already in evidence.



George Gibson

Gibson believes that if League Presidents Heydler and Harridge had met secretly and agreed on the American League rocket for use in both loops next season, without informing the public or the players that the National League had changed its type of ball, things would have gone along in the older circuit just about as usual. The difference will come, he thinks, because the players KNOW the ball is livelier and because the extent of the change is being magnified and exaggerated in their minds by frequent discussion during the winter.

MENTAL STATE MAY AFFECT BOTH SIDES

It is Gibby's view that the batters will hit better mainly because they are going up there with the feeling that they are again the masters of the pitchers and that the ball will travel fast and far when they hit it, and that the pitchers will be less effective chiefly because their confidence and morale will be shaken by a mental hazard resulting from a belief that they can't do as much with the ball nor fool the batsmen as often as formerly.

If neither batters nor pitchers knew anything about the change in the ball there wouldn't be much difference in the game, Gibson thinks. Psychology enters largely into baseball. Many a batter or pitcher shows to advantage or disadvantage according to what he THINKS he can or cannot do.

BARROW DISPUTES GROVE-COCHRANE RATING

Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, agrees with John McGraw that Christy Mathewson and Roger Bresnahan formed baseball's greatest battery of all time, saying that those two were in a class of their own and that no other pair ever came close enough to permit of any argument. But Barrow disagrees with McGraw in the matter of ranking Lefty Grove and Mickey Cochrane second to Matty and Bresnahan. The Yankee official holds that the American League has seen several better combinations than Grove and Cochrane, and he puts that duo as low as ninth.

Ed Barrow

Barrow ranks Joe McGinnity and Bresnahan next to Matty and Bresnahan, with Mordecai Brown and Johnny Kling in third place, and lists other star batteries in this order: Ed Walsh and Billy Sullivan, Walter Johnson and Eddie Ainsmith, Bill Dineen and Lou Criger, Cy Young and Criger, Babe Ruth and Bill Carrigan, Grove and Cochrane, Johnny Clarkson and King Kelly, Mark Baldwin and Connie Mack, of the Pirates, and Grover Alexander and Bill Killefer. After Grove and Cochrane in strictly American League rating, Barrow puts Bill Donovan and Jim McGuire, Addie Joss and Harry Bemis, Carl Mays and Wally Schang, and Rube Waddell and Ossie Schreckengost.

The veteran is surprised at the little attention given to Ruth and Carrigan as an outstanding battery, and says that if Ruth had continued as a pitcher he might have become the greatest southpaw in history. Barrow picks Matty, Johnson, McGinnity, Herb Pennock and Eddie Plank as the best five pitchers, with little to choose for the next places among Waddell, Alexander, Walsh, Jack Chesbro, Young, Dineen and Joss.

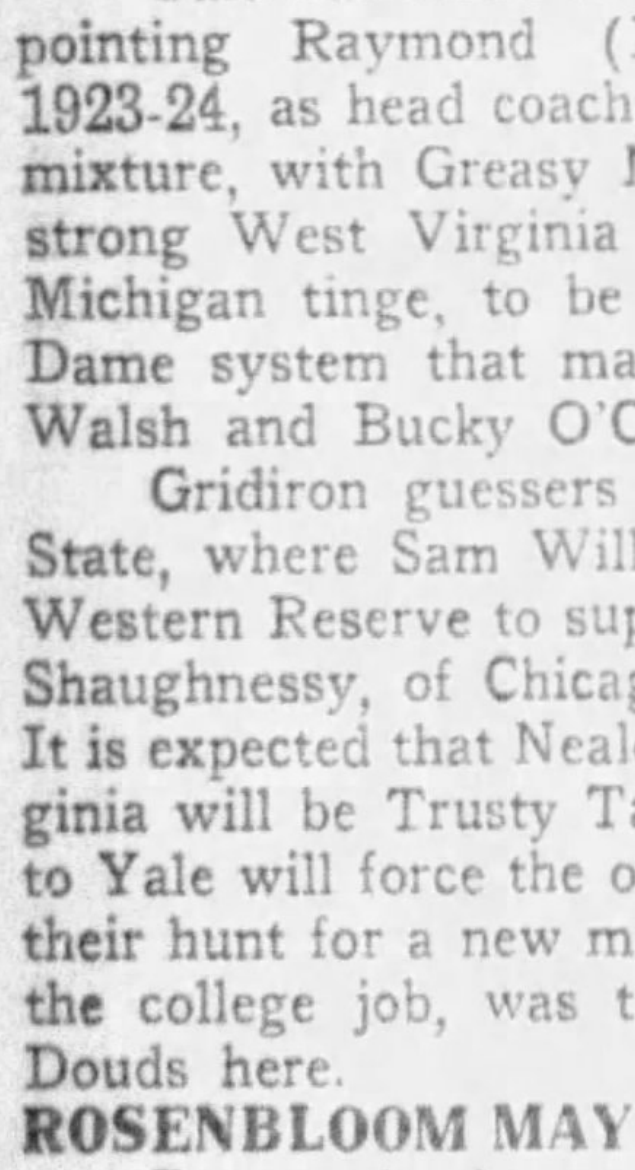
YALE'S COACHING STAFF ODD MIXTURE

Yale has stuck to the graduate system in football by appointing Raymond (Ducky) Pond, muddy field hero of 1923-24, as head coach, but otherwise the staff will be an odd mixture, with Greasy Neale and Denny Myers contributing a strong West Virginia color and Ivan Williamson adding a Michigan tinge, to be aded to any suggestion of the Notre Dame system that may linger after the departure of Adam Walsh and Bucky O'Connor.

Gridiron guessers can now turn their attention to Ohio State, where Sam Willaman has left an opening by going to Western Reserve to supplant Tom Keady. The name of Clark Shaughnessy, of Chicago, is the first that has been ventured. It is expected that Neale's successor as head coach at West Virginia will be Trusty Tallman, freshman coach. Neale's going to Yale will force the owners of the Pittsburgh pros to resume their hunt for a new mentor, as Greasy, if he had failed to get the college job, was to have stepped into the shoes of Jap Douds here.

ROSENBLOOM MAY FOOL DOPESTERS AGAIN

Because he dropped a decision to Joe Knight in a 10-round non-titular fight at Daytona Beach on March 18, 1932, Maxie Rosenbloom is being picked by many boxing critics to lose the light-heavyweight championship when he lays it on the line in a 15-round second meeting with Knight in Miami, Fla., next Monday night, in the bout postponed from tonight on account of rain. Admittedly, the challenger has got to be respected, in view of an impressive record, which shows that in 124 bouts he has scored 85 knockouts. Knight, 24 and a southpaw, is the son of a Cairo (Ga.) businessman, and has his native neighbors raving over him as they did over the late Young Stribling. Joe has six brothers and a sister, and, like the Striblings when W. L. boxed, the entire family attends his fights.



Maxie Rosenbloom

Knight's relatives and rooters in the Solid South are all set to see him crowned champion of the 175-pounders, but the average ring follower won't count Rosenbloom as dethroned until it has actually happened. Maxie's finish may come in any fight. He can't go on ignoring the training rules forever. But no doubt you've often noticed that beating Slapsy in a non-titular bout and beating him when his championship is at stake are vastly different propositions. Usually, when on the spot, he turns on enough extra steam to keep his title safe. That may be the case in his second encounter with his Georgia rival. That decision almost two years ago doesn't assure that Knight will win again this time, if everything is on the up and up. Conditions are different. Perhaps the time has arrived for Rosenbloom to be knocked off, but it might be well to wait until the jury comes in before marking it down in the books, though considerable so-called wise money is said to be down on Knight in the belief that the $15,000 guarantee which Rosenbloom is getting will cause Maxie to care little whether he keeps his title or not.

CHARLEY HYATT, OILERS FACE WILLIGS

THE LINEUP

WILLIGS.		TULSA.
Crum	F	Hyatt
Burke	F	Mullins
Siljander	C	Pickell
Rice	G	Carlton
Smith	G	Futhey

Officials — Yanz Wallace and Beggs Snyder

By JESS CARVER

Chipper Charley makes what figures to be a very triumphant return to the scene of what always will remain his greatest triumphs tonight.

Chipper Charley is Charley Hyatt, Pitt's greatest basketball figure and one of the greatest collegiate stars of all time. During his undergraduate days at the Oakland University, Chipper Charley made basketball history faster than a new copper can flip his mace. He was a star from Uniontown High School until he hung up his collegiate togs and hied himself to California, Los Angeles, to be exact, where he continued to set a sensational pace playing for and leading the Los Angeles Athletic Club team.

Charley Hyatt

STAR AT TULSA

From L. A. (as we old Californians like to put it) Charley moved back East, to Tulsa, Okla., where he became king-pin of the crack Diamond-X Oilers, National A. A. U. champions. It is with the Oilers he appears tonight, against the W. S. Willigs, crack district amateur quintet, in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion.

Charley was selected as all-America forward at the conclusion of the annual A. A. U. national tournament last year, and was rated the most valuable man of the competition. During his days at Pitt, he was named by any selector dizzy enough to attempt to pick an all-America basketball team.

He even won the admiration of the old pro players, about as great a compliment as can be paid a collegian.

WILLIGS FORMIDABLE

Although they'll enter the contest top-heavy favorites, the Oilers will be meeting no slouch of a ball club in the Willigs. Included on the Willigs' squad are five former district college captains, including Don Smith and Timmy Lawry at Pitt, Hyatt's successors; Mauno Siljander, of Westminster; Fred Brand, of Penn State, and Phil Rice, also of Westminster.

The Willigs likely will have to perform minus the services of Brand, who suffered a severe ankle injury in the game Monday night with Fintex, the Willigs' final appearance in the County League.

In a preliminary tussle, the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Bobcats will meet the Schenley Heights Falcons. The preliminary affair is slated to get under way at 8 o'clock, with the main game booked for an hour later.

Charley Hyatt has accepted an invitation to make the drawings for the Greater Pittsburgh basketball tournament at a downtown sporting goods store this evening at 7:30.

JACKETS MEET CHICAGO HERE TONIGHT

By CARL W. SHATTO

After a perilous trip through the West, where they not only were unable to win a game, but experienced great difficulty in finding their opponents, the Yellow Jackets return to Motor Square Garden for a North American Professional Lacrosse Association engagement against the Chicago Blue Ribbons tonight.

The game will mark the Jackets' first home appearance since January 16, when they had to travel two extra periods to nose out the Ribbons, 9-8, in the season's most sensational battle here.

In the last two weeks Chicago has been represented by two teams—the Blue Ribbons and the Milwaukee Brewers. Confusion resulted when the Chicago franchise changed hands, with the result that the Brewers were moved into the Windy City and Milwaukee was left without a representative.

After much futile traveling, the Jackets succeeded in losing two frays, one in Milwaukee and one in Chicago, and both of 'em to the Brewers. The locals' feat of losing to the same team in two different cities left the standing of the teams well scrambled, and also raised a question as to whether the Brewers or the Ribbons should represent Chicago here tonight. Larry Welch, the Jackets' manager, insisted that the Ribbons provide the opposition, with the result that when the teams square off tonight the lineups will be virtually the same as they were when Albert Vincent tallied to break up the Pittsburgh-Chicago overtime game here a little more than two weeks ago.

Aside from Claude Jennings, tricky forward, Coach Suds Sutherland's lads are in excellent condition for another hard fray. Jennings suffered a deep scalp wound as the Jackets lost in Chicago Sunday night, but he has been patched up and is to take his place in the lineup. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh. No.	Player.	Pos.	Chicago. Player.	No.
1	Cordick	g	MacArthur	1
2	P. Langevin	d	Sanderson	3
3	N. Langevin	d	Hatton	8
10	LaFrance	c	Kingdom	5
9	Vincent	f	Barron	10
8	Jennings	f	Baldwin	11

Layden Takes Over Notre Dame Post

SOUTH BEND, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Elmer Layden sat down at Knute Rockne's famous old desk under the golden dome today and began his active campaign to bring Notre Dame back to its former glory in the football world.

Back on the grounds, where he gained fame as the fullback of the immortal "Four Horsemen" eleven, Layden officially took charge of Notre Dame's athletic destinies as director of athletics and head football coach.

Layden brought one new assistant with him as he took over the offices, previously held by Jess Harper and Heartly (Hunk) Anderson. The newcomer was Joe Boland, who played on Notre Dame's football teams in 1925 and '26 and who will be Layden's chief gridiron assistant.

Baseball pops in unusual places. . . . Deacon Phillippe and Bill McKechnie sat in adjoining seats at the Harris testimonial dinner last night. . . . The air was charged with political palaver and social chatter as the 2,000 men and women mingled. . . . In the middle of the scene somebody escorted Honus Wagner to a seat and the guests sitting close to the Deacon and Skipper Bill could catch a dialogue in this vein:

"Say, Bill, did you get a chance to see that Dutchman when he starred in right field back around 1900? He was so far ahead of the present day outfielders I sometimes wish he would have remained in the outfield, although he became the game's greatest shortstop."

"Yes, Deac, I saw Honus quite a few times at Expo Park, and you are right in your comparison, even though Chuck Klein, Mel Ott, Paul Waner and one or two others are great players. Man alive, what an arm Wagner had for the outfield. . . . He's the fellow that invented those strikes that were thrown from the outfield, and none of the boys were racing from first to third on singles when he was out there."

"Bill, I wish you could have seen what happened one day in Boston. Cap Clarke was hurt and Honus had to go into left field. . . . A runner on third decided to try to score on a long fly. . . . The ordinary thrower probably would have given up on the play, but Honus from a spot near the fence let fly with both barrels, and the bird at the plate was out so far he did not even try to slide.

"He was a pretty fair third-sacker, too, wasn't he Deac?"

"Was he? and don't I know. . . . Honus played third for Louisville in 1899. . . . I was scared stiff on the mound any time he rushed in for a bunt. . . . On a couple of occasions his rifle throws almost knocked my hat off. . . . I got so I would fall on my face whenever he charged a bunt."

The baseball writers' entertainment committee will attempt to have Bill McKechnie sing a song or two at the Sports Roundup one week from Sunday night in the Schenley Hotel . . . Charley Hyatt, who shows in his favorite game on the Stadium floor tonight, became a great player because he puts everything he has into the sport . . . Although he is not quite as powerful he might be likened to Pie Traynor not only in physique but in his spirit . . . Lloyd Waner says he has charged this column with an error because it said his new car did not have knee action and the other late improvements . . . O. K. Lloyd.

BUTCH, LITFIN IN TUBE CITY STAR BOUTS

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Jackie Sharkey vs. Wayne Short, 6 rounds, Minneapolis.

Two 10-round bouts will top off Jim McGirr's boxing card in McKeesport next Monday night.

Mose Butch, local featherweight, meets Frankie Wolfram, of Winnipeg, in the main event, and Nat Litfin, Hill featherweight, opposes Harry Bauman, of New York, in another feature.

Another 10-rounder may be arranged.

Wolfram and Butch boxed in Youngstown some six months ago, with a dispute as to the winner at the finish. Wolfram also has boxed Bobby Leitham a 15-rounder for the Canadian bantamweight championship and has met Ernie Maurer and Art Giroux, among others.

Jimmy Smith and Danny Hasset, his stablemate, have returned to Philadelphia to finish their training for the Garden show. They will return Saturday of next week.

American Horses Win, Lose Abroad

SANDOWN, England, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Kellsboro Jack, owned by the American sportswoman, Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, and winner of the Grand National last spring, today was defeated by three lengths in the Mole handicap chase over two miles, four furlongs.

The winner was F. Furlong's Briscoe.

An American victory was scored in the Prince Albert handicap hurdle race, however, when G. H. (Pete) Bostwick's Flaming, ridden by D. Williams, galloped to an easy victory over the two-mile course to pay off at 100 to 7. F. V. Wilmot's Advancer and four others trailed Flaming.

Another American victory was scored in the Metropolitan maiden hurdle race at two miles as A. C. Bostwick, brother of Pete and nephew of Mrs. Clark, rode his aunt's horse Swift and True to a length triumph over A. Down's Scarpanto and 13 others.

Dan Taylor Signs Dodger Contract

Although many long hitters were bothered by the deadened ball of the National League last season, Danny was able to hit .285 for 104 games. Included among his hits were nine homers, nine triples and 21 doubles.

In announcing he had signed the contract, Taylor said:

"I am working out every day and will report at Orlando, Fla., about March 1 in fine condition. I am looking forward to a good year. I believe the new ball will help me as well as others on our club."

DEPEW TO GET PETITION OF CONVENTION

By TOM BIRKS

Delegates to the annual convention of the National Greenskeepers' Association of America, in session at the William Penn Hotel here, are expected to take action today toward inducing the U. S. G. A. to continue the experimental greens stations at Arlington, Va., and Chicago, which are slated to be discontinued.

Propaganda toward having the contemplated action rescinded is expected to come up at the annual banquet tonight, at which Gaston Depew, of Buffalo, chairman of both the greens and public links sections of the U. S. G. A., will be the honor guest. The banquet is the feature event of the second day of formal sessions of the convention.

DEPEW INFLUENTIAL

Depew carries much weight with the governing body, and President John MacGregor and his committee will seek to prevail upon the Buffalo executive to use his influence with the U. S. G. A. to carry on the stations, at least for another year. The list of speakers for the banquet includes J. D. O'Neill, local commissioner of public links golf; Judge R. M. Gibson, of the Oakmont Country Club; Charley Manning, vice president of the Tri-State Professional Golfers' Association and pro at the Shannopin Country Club, and President MacGregor. Charles Yon, former president of the West Penn Golf Association and members of the Montour Heights Country Club, will be the toastmaster.

Yesterday the Cardinal room of the hotel was jammed to capacity to hear discourses by Prof. J. W. White, of Penn State; John McNamara, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, and Charley Nuttall, of Fox Chapel, talk on course maintenance. Among the crowd were many golf club executives of the district.

MORE TALKS LISTED

This afternoon Dr. E. E. Evaul, of New Brunswick, N. J.; John Anderson, of West Orange, N. J.; Prof. L. B. Smith, of Penn State, and Oscar B. Fitts, of Chevy Chase, Md., are to address the convention.

Gossip around the convention rooms indicates that Toronto, Canada, is going to have a tough job landing the 1935 gathering. The Cincinnati delegation has swung into action and appears to have the inside track.

The exhibition in the lower lobby attracted a number of well-known golf men from this district yesterday. George Ormiston, secretary of the West Penn Golf Association; C. K. Brown and Sam Parks, Sr., of South Hills Country Club; Walter Loeffler and George Underwood, of North Park; George Lumsden, of Conneaut Lake; Ernie Jacobs and his father, Fred Jacobs, the grand old man of greenskeepers in this neck of the woods; Nelson Zimmerman, of Wildwood, and Chuck McDonald, of Guyasta, looked over the exhibition.

Practically all of the delegates attended a business meeting last night, held for the purpose of reviewing the committee work scheduled for tomorrow.

LOCAL BOARD MEETS

The first meeting of the committee appointed by Commissioner O'Neill was held at the Fort Pitt last night. W. S. Haddock was in the chair, with George Ormiston and J. D. O'Neill as the speakers. Carl Kauffmann acted as secretary pro-tem.

It was decided that one of the means to raise money to stage the public links championship here next July was by program. The committee will name the various committees in a few days. Attending the session were Al McBride, George Underwood, Walter Loeffler, Tom Barr, Marty Boschert, A. G. Wallerstedt, Dr. Harry Cantor, Walter Phillips, Ray Long, Bob Gumbert, J. F. Lally, A. G. Josephson, William Taylor, Pete O'Malley, John Burckey, Charley Stoner, Walter Messing, G. E. Coote, L. V. Vierheller, W. Fox, W. H.. Taylor and N. G. Williams.

Junior League Heads Hear P.I.A.A. Leader

Edmund Wicht, secretary of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League Board of Control at Harrisburg, was the principal speaker at a special meeting and banquet of the Junior Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League held in the Penn-McKee Hotel, McKeesport, last night.

R. E. Beaton, of Wilkinsburg Junior High School and president of the league, presided. Among the speakers were E. W. Davis, of North Braddock; D. W. Copeland, of Charleroi; T. G. McCleary, superintendent of Braddock schools; F. DeWitt Zuerner, superintendent of North Braddock schools; John S. Hart, supervising principal at Glassport; K. Fife Sterrett, of Monessen; Charles Kramer, sports writer of North Braddock, and Julius Levin, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Butler to Have New Sports Plant

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 1.—(AP.)—A big sports program for the coming summer is to be outlined by the Butler Athletic Club, which is planning a new athletic field.

W. G. Helsel, plant manager of the Standard Steel Company, has offered the club a 10-year lease on a tract of land which will give Butler its biggest athletic field in history. A baseball, boxing and general sports program will be outlined.

FINTEX AT Y. M. H. A.

The Y. M. H. A. passers will meet the Fintex Club in an Allegheny County League game at the Y. M. H. A. tonight. The Y. M. H. A. "B" team meets the Goldensons in the preliminary.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE SNAPPY DRESSER—In 1922, Dr. I. Honig, of Vienna, was the leader of the "Fresh Air Movement," holding that we needlessly squander time in dressing which might be better employed in outdoor activities. To prove his point, he dressed, bathed and shaved completely in 110 seconds, having this record certified by a State Notary of high repute. THE 54-MILE GOLF HOLE—In the summer of 1926, Joe Masters, then professional at the Municipal Golf Course of Columbus, O., and Bert Barnett, sports scribe for the Ohio State Journal, established a record for marathon golf and playing a "long hole." Teeing off at No. 1 tee of the Municipal course, they played through towns, along highways and through fields, ending at the No. 1 green of the Harbor Hills course at Buckeye Lake, O.—A distance of 54 miles. The time consumed was 16½ hours of continuous playing, made possible by the aid of auto headlights and spotlights, and they lost 114 balls!

Graphically and Truthfully Revealing the Toll of Death, Destruction and Misery of War

The Sun-Telegraph's Uncensored World War Pictures are all from the collections compiled by Floyd Gibbons, world-famed war correspondent and globe trotter (he lost an eye in "covering" the World War), and Laurence Stallings, author of "What Price Glory?" To assemble a collection of 500 representative pictures Mr. Stallings and a large staff worked nearly three years, appraised thousands and thousands of photographs from the collections of the United States and foreign governments, private individuals, war correspondents, commercial news picture services, and American and foreign newspapers and magazines. POND CHOSEN HEAD MENTOR

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 1.—(AP.)—The appointment of Raymond (Ducky) Pond as head coach of Yale football with a staff of outside assistants was commended today by the Yale News, undergraduate daily, as providing "the best coaching consistent with the preservation of Yale sportsmanship."

Named as chief aides to Pond were:

Earle (Greasy) Neale, of West Virginia, backfield coach.

Denny E. Myers, of West Virginia, line coach.

Ivan B. Williamson, of Michigan, end coach.

OLD STAFF DROPPED

A clean sweep of the old staff was effected, with every man dropped for the new appointees, named by the board of athletic control last night on the recommendation of Malcolm Farmer, chairman of athletics.

Reggie Root, head coach for a single season, Charley Comerford, Yale man and end coach for 15 years; Adam Walsh, Notre Dame man and line coach for five years; Buck O'Connor, Notre Dame man and backfield coach for one year, all were denied appointment.

Root was expected to be back to the position he held season before last as coach of the freshman team.

POND SCRUB COACH

Pond who made Yale football history in the mud battles of 1923 and 1924 against Harvard, has been chief scout and coach of the grey-jerseyed scrubs for five years.

His chief aide, Greasy Neale, one time major league baseball player coached the undefeated 1921 Washington and Jefferson team that tied the University of California, 0-0, in the Rose Bowl. Myers played football at the University of Iowa and has been Neale's chief assistant at West Virginia for the last two seasons.

W. VA. SPECULATES

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 1.—(AP.)—News of the appointment of Earle (Greasy) Neale as backfield coach at Yale fanned fires of speculation as to who will succeed him as head coach at West Virginia University.

The Dominion News said Charles C. (Trusty) Tallman, freshman coach of the Mountaineers since 1929, will be given the head coaching job.

Asked to comment on his appointment, Neale said:

"Naturally I am delighted."

BATTALINO SUSPENDED

WOOD TOPS 'CALIENTE FIELD

PARKS TRAILS LEADER BY SIX SHOTS

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Craig Wood, Deal (N. J.) pro, who hit a detour on the golfing trail of the Californias after gleaning most of the cash last season, was back on the road today.

A record-breaking 67 yesterday, four strokes under par, sent him into the lead at the end of the first round of the Agua Caliente open championship.

A year ago Wood wound up with $3,982.39 and three titles. This season he has collected no laurels and only $320.75.

Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, and Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., the defending champion, were in a strategic position as play started on the second round, with 69s.

Sam Parks, Jr., of the South Hills Country Club, Pittsburgh, former University of Pittsburgh captain, who has been playing good golf in California tournaments, finished six strokes behind the leaders with rounds of 37-36—73.

STAR DOUBLES DUEL SET

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Old net favorites will be seen in action here as an exhibition feature of the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association on Friday and Saturday of next week, according to announcement of Robert C. Schmertz, chairman of the local committee in charge of the program for the national conclave. Arrangements have been completed for Chuck Garland and R. Norris Williams II to pair up against Dr. Dave and Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. stars, in a special doubles affair in the Pittsburgh Golf Club Saturday evening.

Garland and Williams achieved a lofty position in the doubles firmament by bagging the world's crown at Wimbledon in 1919. A combine balanced perfectly by the steadiness of Chuck and the brilliance of Dick, they have ever proven formidable foes for the greatest of the topflighters. Williams held the national singles title in 1914 and 1916 and participated in Davis Cup battles without number. Garland, a native of Edgewood, was a member of the United States Davis Cup squad that brought the bowl back to these shores in 1919.

The meeting of Garland and Williams with the O'Loughlins will follow the dinner to be given U. S. L. T. A. delegates by the Pittsburgh Tennis Association at the Pittsburgh Golf Club. The business sessions of the pow-wow will be staged at the P. A. A.

The bell saved Henry Woods, Negro lightweight, of Yakima, Wash., in the tenth round of his bout with Cecil Payne at Seattle the other night, with Woods unconscious at the toll of five after he had been floored five other times . . . It was said to be Woods' first defeat in 56 bouts over a three-year span . . . When he got his, he got it will all of the fancy trimmings.

Harry Goller, of the Hill, who fought in the West for seven years under the name of Kid Dugan, has just received a letter from President Roosevelt's secretary thanking him for a letter in which the Kid expressed his appreciation of what the Chief Executive has done to ameliorate conditions. . . . Dugan, or Goller, heard the President speak over the radio and was so enthused that he sat down and wrote him immediately. . . . During his ring career, Dugan boxed Harry Dublinsky, Kid Pancho, Joey Schwartz, Newsboy Brown, Ernie Hood, Jackie Sharkey and Britt Gorman, among others. . . . He quit boxing about three years ago and returned to Pittsburgh, where he lived as a youngster.

Frank and open discussions marked the meeting of Dr. William D. McClelland with his referees, judges, timers, physicians and deputies in his office yesterday, as a result of which it is believed all will understand the commission's policy in all matters and there will be a fine co-ordination of effort. . . . Many involved situations were untangled with such excellent results that it is likely similar meetings will be held from time to time for the mutual benefit of all officials and the commission.—HARRY KECK.

TILDEN BEATS VINES

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, Jr., found his thirteenth match with Bill Tilden, national professional tennis champion, unlucky and lost last night in straight sets, 6-6, 2-6. The Pasadena youth was wild, continually slamming the balls into the net.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

Carnera & Co. are about to strike their first snag in America when Ace Clark, Negro heavy, boxes Primo at Philadelphia in March, 1930. There has been much mystery about that affair in which the green giant came so close to losing on a technical K. O. It still has some puzzling angles, according to the author who piloted "Preem" through that "biggest-black-eye-ever" experience . . .

CHAPTER XV

By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

Roy (Ace) Clark was a colored giant, taller than Carnera, and with an incredible reach. Negroes in general have long arms, but when one of them—6 feet 8 inches tall—combines an abnormally long reach with great strength and considerable boxing skill, it becomes extremely difficult to look like a champion against him.

Chuck Wiggins

The fact remains that in the fourth round, the black boxer gave Carnera a magnificent straight left which landed flush on the left eye of the Italian.

Primo was assured a black eye for the next day, at least. But that would not have been so annoying if Carnera, obeying a bad habit, had not blown his nose vigorously. Every competent handler of boxers knows that damaged eye swells greatly if its victim breathes violently through his nose with the mouth closed. That is because some of the air, passing through the canals which connect the nostril to the injured eye, is able to accumulate under the lower eyelid, producing a swelling more or less large. A big black eye.

Well, Carnera had to prove that everything connected with him must be gigantic even when it came to a black eye. Indeed my heart almost stopped beating when I saw his face. He had beneath his left eye a swelling which had nothing human about it. It was indescribable, it was the size of an orange and—growing!

His eye had the appearance of being out of its orbit. It was dreadful and terrifying. It protruded, I swear, like a lobster's!

It seemed that at the first blow this enormous Carnera-like "mouse" would burst.

And Primo three-quarters blind, continued to box, having lost precision and his sense of distance, but smiling, thus revealing again a quality which he has to a high degree—indomitable courage.

I was placed in a most painful situation; to let the bout continue was almost cruelty. To stop it would have been to accept defeat; it would have been registering a technical knockout in the record of the giant. That might ruin his first American tour soon after its beginning. I was thinking fast.

DOCTOR INTERFERES

It was hard to ask him:

"Shall we stop the fight, throw up the sponge?"

"No, everything's all right," he had the courage of responding . . . "you'll see me knock him out this round!"

Immediately I commenced to gently rub the enormously puffed eye in order to push the air out through the nose as I had done many times with boxers. But, to make matters worse, an official physician of the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission climbed to our corner, quickly examined the ugly eye and told me peremptorily:

"Do not touch it! It is a blood deposit, extremely dangerous. It is impossible to continue; the fight must be stopped."

I only had 30 seconds in which to explain to him that the swelling was nothing but an air pouch and not a blood deposit—to convince him in order to escape an imminent technical defeat; and to this day I do not know just why I succeeded.

"I'll allow you one more round," he said to me, "one only."

Primo rushed from his corner at the start of the sixth, fighting with all his might, and landed a very hard right to the body; suddenly Clark went down in a sitting position and remained that way until counted out.

A HUMOROUS SIDE

Was he hit hard? Was he reluctant to punch that awful eye any more? Was anything said to him in his corner? . . . I never knew.

The comic part of that black eye episode—even such close calls can have their humorous side—was that a doctor came to see us after the battle in our dressing room.

"I will prove to you that it is a blood deposit," he told me.

Taking a fine syringe, he made a slight puncture under Carnera's eye . . . the eye deflated as though it were a balloon. There was no blood clot. . . . The professional man must have been quite annoyed. . . .

Several months later, when Primo and I returned to Philadelphia, he sent us a bill for $100 for professional services.

STOPS CHUCK WIGGINS

The Carnera-Chuck Wiggins affair at St. Louis early in 1930 recalls an amusing trifle. When we went to the Missouri Boxing Commission offices to apply for our licenses, Wiggins was present. He seemed to be a good fellow, but his conduct, as it seems, had been a bit gay at times. The president of the commission asked us to fill out a printed blank listing among other things the boxer's last fights and their results. I happened to look over Chuck's shoulder as he filled out his blank. He wrote with a grin:

DATE: Oct., 1929—OPPONENT: Two policemen—RESULT: Three months.

The Wiggins first round K. O. was sensational; after a hook to the jaw from Carnera, Chuck fell over the upper rope to flop out of the ring, head down and with his feet up in the air . . .

Carnera then stopped Frank Zavita at Jacksonville in one round; George Trafton, some days later in Kansas City, also in the first; Jack McAuliffe, two days later, at Denver, in one; then Neil Clisby, the following week in Los Angeles, in the second stanza. Routine punch-and-K. O. shows all. . . .

AMUSING RADIO TALK

Before describing the much discussed affair with Leon (Bombo) Chevalier, at Oakland, Cal., my Ambling Alp made his radio debut in amusing fashion.

We were in Los Angeles and the Clisby bout was at hand, when one evening after the workouts, having returned to our hotel, we were visited by an amiable stranger.

He said:

"I am the announcer of the most important radio station in the city. I would like to have Carnera and his manager say a few words into the microphone, tomorrow evening, at 6 o'clock, about the fight."

At that time (March or April, 1930) Primo, who had been in the United States only a few months, spoke but little English.

"Your intention is altogether kind," I replied, "but I think that Carnera will be obliged to excuse himself. I personally am at your entire disposal if I can do anything for you, but Primo, if he must speak, could do it only in Italian or French."

"That's too bad," replied the announcer, "because the air audience will be listening for Carnera. Can't he pronounce a few words in English? Here is all I want: I will ask him three questions and to each he could reply in a few words."

"What questions do you count on asking him?"

CARNERA STUDIES LINES

"Here they are: I will ask him: 'Primo, how much do you weigh?' I suppose that he could easily answer me: 'Two hundred and seventy-five pounds.' I believe that this is his weight?"

"He will do his best," I finally conceded.

"Then I will ask him: How old are you?' It will be enough for him to answer: 'Twenty-three.'"

"He will try."

"Finally, I will say to him: 'What is your height?' All that he need reply is 'Six feet seven.'"

Then I remarked, "I will not guarantee Primo's English; but you can count on his willingness."

For a whole day I made the patient Italian rehearse those answers conscientiously. I asked him the questions and little by little his replies became intelligible.

"Primo, how much do you weigh?"

"Two hundred and seventy-five."

"Primo, how old are you?"

"Twenty-three."

"Primo, how tall are you?"

"Six feet seven."

THEN FORGETS THEM

The next evening the lesson was learned. The elevator at the station lifted us at a giddy speed to a thirty-sixth floor, which was even lower than the neighboring skyscrapers; we entered the studio, and, after a moment of waiting, the announcer began:

"My dear listeners, you are going to have the pleasure this evening of hearing the famous Italian giant, Primo Carnera, who is going to say a few words to you. He begs you in advance to excuse him, because he does not yet speak English very fluently. I am going to ask him some questions to which he will reply. Here he comes, he is near me, you are going to hear him.

"Primo, how old are you?"

"Two hundred and seventy-five. . . ."

Greenskeeping Theme of Seals' Bill Tonight

JOHN MAC GREGOR

The National Association of Greenskeepers, in convention here this week, will furnish the guest speakers for the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

John MacGregor, president, will speak on what the association is doing for the game of golf, while John Quaill, Highland Country Club greenskeeper and general manager of the convention, will tell the part the greenskeeper plays in golf. All golfers should be interested in both phases of the discussion.

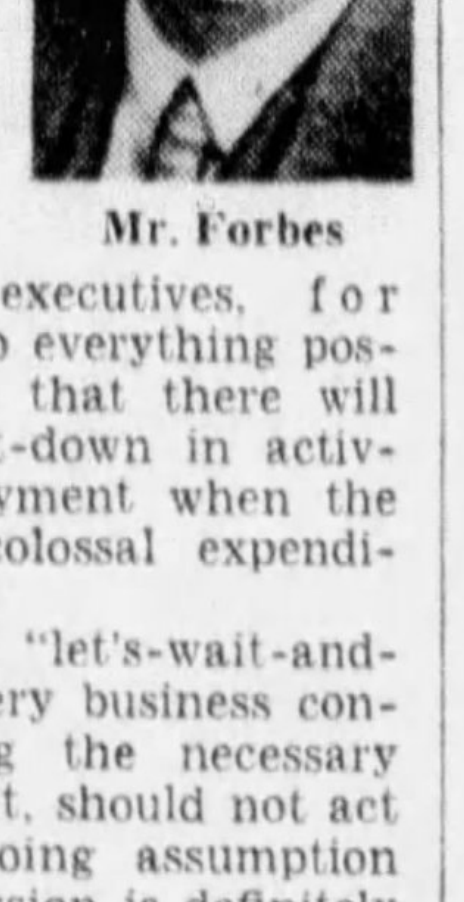
Victory Up To Business Leaders

By B. C. FORBES

THINGS ARE moving encouragingly. But ——.

I would like to make a profoundly earnest plea to employers, to executives, to all financial and business men exercising authority, not to conclude that everything will work out entirely satisfactorily without exertion on their part.



Mr. Forbes

Responsible men of affairs must not be lulled into a sense of smugness by current developments.

The need still exists, as I see it, for corporations, for employers, for executives, for everybody to do everything possible to insure that there will be no fatal let-down in activity and employment when the government's colossal expenditures diminish.

Instead of a "let's-wait-and-see" policy, every business concern possessing the necessary capital or credit, should not act on the easy-going assumption that the depression is definitely over and that there is no need for them to adopt and energetically execute constructive policies and programs.

It is perfectly proper to reason that the depression can be licked.

It would be dangerous, it would be fraught with very unpleasant possibilities, if most men of affairs were to conclude cocksurely that everything will turn out all right no matter how they may act, no matter how gingerly they may proceed, no matter how closely they hug the shore.

The biggest problem of all has not yet been solved, namely, the absorption of the great bulk of unemployed workers by private enterprises.

Happily, very genuine progress has been made. But this progress must not be permitted to create an unwarranted sense of security, of self-satisfaction on the part of men of affairs.

The battle has not been completely won. It could still be lost if leaders of industry were to conclude that no further effort, no further exertion, no further achievement on their part is necessary.

Unfortunately, there still are concerns disposed to hold back, to delay putting into active execution business-getting plans which they mean to launch when all uncertainty has been brushed away.

The thought-compelling fact is, of course, that if too many concerns persist in timidly holding back, uncertainty will not be swept away.

The battle is still on. Inspiring progress has been and is being made. But complete victory has not yet been won. The need for courage, for aggressiveness, for carrying on has not ended.

American business men would do well to recall at this stage Nelson's historic exhortation to his men:

"England expects every man this day to do his duty."

There is still duty to be done if victory is to be assured beyond peradventure.

CHATTING with T. K. Quinn of General Electric, I elicited these cheerful facts: Orders booked during January have run 80 per cent ahead of a year ago; orders last week were 100 per cent above the corresponding week in 1933, showing a progressive mounting improvement.

INSPIRING: The Philadelphia Business Progress Association announces that 355 industrial establishments either located new or expanded existing facilities in the Philadelphia area last year, the largest total for any of the four years during which it has kept records.

Still more significant: No fewer than 201 of the total occurred during the second half of the year. Even more impressive: The port of Philadelphia last year set an all-time record in traffic, exceeding a million tons a week.

A NOTE from Brooke, Smith & French, Detroit, to this column gives the encouraging news that the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, comprising nearly 7,000 of the world's leading flower retailers, has just decided definitely to launch "a large national advertising campaign," to "say it with flowers."

These florists "believe that the prospects for 1934 are brighter than they have been in four years" and that they "no longer can afford to refrain from advertising."

If every line of business and industry will similarly go after creating business, all will be well.

French Bank's Gold Holdings Decrease

PARIS, Feb. 1.—(INS.)—The weekly statement of the Bank of France today showed a 105,000,000 franc decrease in the gold holdings, believed due mainly to American purchases.

There was a decrease of 219,000,000 francs in the value of notes in circulation, while the percentage of gold coverage was off 1 point to 39 per cent.

Last week's decrease in gold holdings was 94,000,000 francs.

December Motor Exports at Peak

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—December foreign sales of American automotive products were shown by Department of Commerce figures today to have established a record for 1933.

Exports during December were valued at $9,651,000, compared with $7,717,000 for November, and $5,508,000 for December, 1932.

WALL ST. HAILS 'NEW DEAL' DOLLAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Stocks greeted the new American dollar with a jubilant cheer today and intermittent buying rushes sent prices of many issues hurtling upward to the best levels of the past year or more.

All categories drew some of their best followings since the 1933 spring-summer boom and gains of 1 to 3 or more points were scattered over a broad front. The ticker tape lagged frequently. Profit-taking flurries occasionally halted the pace, but realizing was quickly absorbed and the climb resumed.

Cotton and some other commodities improved, but grains were somewhat hesitant in the morning. The cereals later rallied, wheat getting up more than 1 cent a bushel. Secondary bonds were bid up vigorously, although other groups were mixed.

Foreign exchanges, buoyant late yesterday following the presidential proclamation, turned rather heavy. This was attributed partly to increasing buying of American securities abroad in addition to some capital repatriation.

Cutting of the dollar's gold content to 59.06 per cent of its former parity, and the setting of $35 an ounce as the rate at which the Treasury will both buy and sell gold, was somewhat of a surprise to the financial district. Expectation of a reduction to 60 per cent, as a preliminary to the nationalization of the country's gold, had been general.

The banking concensus was that the country is now back on the gold standard, but on a bullion instead of a coin basis. The inflationary forces, however, were encouraged by the fact that the President can continue to depreciate the dollar to as low as 50 per cent and, in the meantime, it will be possible to issue a huge amount of new currency, or non-interest bearing notes, and to expand credit to almost any degree desired.

The opinion was expressed that, with the two billion dollar stabilization fund, the Treasury would have little difficulty in holding down international dollar rates. It was thought, though, that any threatened currency war with Great Britain or France might be obviated by some sort of a temporary arrangement between Washington, London and Paris.

WHEAT REACTS AFTER SPURT

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—Higher prices for wheat and active trading early today accompanies advances in gold and sterling and buoyancy shown by the stock market. Besides, there was no moisture relief in drought districts of domestic winter wheat territory southwest.

Opening at ⅜ to 1⅛ cents up, wheat afterward reacted somewhat. Corn started ½ to ¾ higher, and subsequently lost some of the gains.

Failure of general buying to follow early upturns of wheat prices led soon to declines to about the same as yesterday's finish. It was noticeable the wheat market received ready support at slight declines. Corn and oats closely duplicated the course of wheat prices.

Provisions were responsive to a rise in the value of hogs.

REPEAL AIDS MOLASSES

The tank car market for blackstrap molasses is strong at 8½-9 cents a gallon, New York, Baltimore and Philadelphia. Distillers have been buying in good volume in connection with the government ruling permitting temporarily unlimited alcohol manufacture from molasses.

TOY TRADE ACTIVE

Current buying in the toy trade is said to be the heaviest in years, with retailers taking a wide variety of staple goods to replace stocks depleted by the holiday activity. Contracts for special merchandise for Easter and July Fourth are being placed.

WASH GOODS IN DEMAND

Wash goods markets are more active than at any time since spring offerings were brought out, in the opinion of trade interests. A shortage is reported in certain fabrics.

SUPERIOR OIL

Superior Oil Corporation has purchased and taken over the Mills-Bennett interest in the Barber leases in Barber's Hill oil fields, Texas Gulf Coast.

LOCAL MARKET ACTIVE AND HIGHER

Prices were higher and trading showed more activity on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today as the markets faced the actual devaluation of the dollar under President Roosevelt's monetary program. Gains here ranged from small fractions to around a point with the volume of business well distributed throughout the list. Heavy industrials moved up on small scales. Blaw-Knox reached the highest level of the current recovery and Pittsburgh Plate Glass again moved into the territory above 48.

The fuels were steady but there were no important changes in this section. Shamrock Oil scored a further gain, reaching $4 a share early in the session. This represents a rise of 100 per cent so far this week, the stock opening last Monday at $2 a share.

COTTON VALUES RULE HIGHER

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Cotton futures opened steady, 7 to 9 higher in response to better Liverpool cables and the monetary situation offset by quite heavy realizing. March, 11.45; May, 11.61; July, 11.78; October, 11.95; December, 12.06; January, 12.10.

The more or less general realizing encountered on the opening advance was quite readily absorbed by a broadening demand which seemed to be coming from both trade and speculative sources. This sent the market up to 11.70 for May, with the general list selling about 15 to 17 points above yesterday's closing quotations. Realizing increased at these figures and there were reactions of 6 or 7 points from the best by the end of the first half hour.

The market met further liquidation later in the morning and after the early advance to 11.70 for May prices slowly reacted. That delivery sold off to 11.57, or about 13 points from the best and within 4 points of yesterday's closing, but volume tapered off on the decline, and the market at midday was quiet with prices holding fairly steady at net advances of 6 to 7 points.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 1.—Cotton, 20,000 bales, including 4,800 American. Spot in fair demand; prices 8 points higher. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.83; good middling, 6.53; strict middling, 6.38; middling, 6.23; strict low middling, 6.08; low middling, 5.83; strict good ordinary, 5.63; good ordinary, 5.33. BRANDS FIGHT CARRIED ON IN NEW AREAS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—In the warfare between branded and unbranded merchandise, which has been going on for many years, codes under the NRA have altered the areas of conflict.

Mr. Rukeyser

Cohorts of the trade-marked army particularly resent the suggestion that unbranded merchandise be permitted to sell at a lower price than the advertised article. The issue was recently brought to a focus in the District of Columbia, when the larger oil companies, who are advertisers, were asked to increase their gasoline prices one-half cent per gallon above the prices charged for non-advertised gasoline. The Washington branch of one of the major companies refused to raise its price and may be disciplined.

ADVERTISING CUTS COSTS

In directing attention to the government intervention in the competition between branded and unbranded articles, H. K. McCann the adman, came to a defense of the economics underlying advertising. He said:

"My sincere belief is that the advertising-merchandising method of marketing has developed industry through widespread consumption of productions of various kinds. Through mass production it has lowered the cost of these products and brought them within the reach of the average consumer . . . Advertising builds up the prestige and reputation of the company and reduces the amount of selling effort necessary, and hence the merchandising expense."

ATTITUDE HARMFUL

When the great national need is to raise the gross volume of business, it is a poor time for young radicals in the government service to seek to discourage business' star salesman—effective advertising.

Advertising has been an essential force in making the American standard of living higher than prevails in any other country.

Advertising has educated the public to new needs, and has created a demand for new techniques for satisfying old needs.

Advertising in the large is economically necessary to effect the savings entailed in mass production and mass distribution, which get down the unit cost.

USEFUL ACTIVITY

If reformers want to do something useful, they should confine their efforts to the abuses of advertising, such as misstatements and inaccuracies. Such organizations as the Better Business bureaus and the American Medical Association have already done useful work in policing the ethics of advertisers. Consumers' research has set out to teach the public how to discriminate in selecting products.

Government owned power companies find themselves up against the same limiting factor as private companies, namely, the inability of consumers to furnish the capital necessary to buy additional electric equipment for the home. Some companies are finding ways to overcome this barrier by making equipment available at low rentals or on easy payment plans.

In connection with the Tennessee Valley experiment, the President has authorized the creation of the Electric Home and Farm Authority, for the purpose of stimulating the use of electric appliances in the home and on the farm.

Investment Bankers Work on Code

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

THE FAIR PRACTICE provisions of the investment banking code probably will go to greater length than does the securities act in requiring information from security sellers, Robert E. Christie, Jr., president of the Investment Banks Association of America, announced today.

This will apply to relations between investors and investment bankers, the relations between investment bankers themselves and their relations with issuers of securities, according to Mr. Christie, who stated that the purpose is to assure full information to investors and ethical dealings throughout the business.

The board of governors of the association will meet in Chicago on February 10 and 11 to consider the fair practice provisions of the code. Mr. Christie said that he hoped to invite the national code committee, members of which will be announced within a few days, to attend the meeting. The committee, which will consist of 21 members, will administer the code under supervision from the NRA.

Authority to Make Continued Study

A SPECIAL DRAFTING committee has been at work on the fair practice provisions of the code for more than two months. When approved, the fair practice provisions will become a part of the Investment Banking code. Even when the fair practice provisions are put into operation, the work will not be completed. The code authority will make a continuing study to perfect the operation and to add new provisions for furthering the ideals for which the organization is striving.

One proposal is that underwriters require issuers of securities that are publicly offered to provide adequate periodic financial statements. In doing this the committee is seeking to determine just what such financial statements should contain, in order that investors may have adequate and continuous information as well as practical ways of making such information available to investors. It is also proposed to insist that certain proved safeguards for investors be included in all security offerings.

Will Require Sinking Funds

SINKING FUNDS for future bond issues provide another important question that is receiving careful study. The objective is that whenever indebtedness shall be created in the form of obligations to be distributed to the investing public, an appropriate form of sinking fund or other suitable provision for debt retirement, in whole or in part, be established in order to safeguard the interests of investors.

The various questions relative to fair practice rules governing the customary machinery used in underwriting and distributing new securities, commonly referred to as the syndicate, have perhaps their greatest interest in the proposals to eliminate all concessions, and to make investment banking a one-price business. This would do away with discounts and any discrimination between large and small investors. Security dealers, who are actually dealers, may receive the customary trade discount for their services in distributing securities.

HIGHER LEVELS PROBABLE IN MARKET

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—On Monday I said that if the rise in stocks was not resumed immediately, a technical reaction would be likely. I also suggested that if the volume of trading held up and scattered bullish "operations" continued, another attempt at the Wednesday high might be made.

Well, Monday brought a rise, and Tuesday saw bullish operations on large volume which poked the averages through last Wednesday's high. So the logic of the situation indicates that the market is headed for still higher levels.

Of course, we must always remember that some unforeseeable change at Washington might occur. The usual "technical" dips in the market are also to be allowed for, and something of this sort is likely to follow such a spurt as Tuesday's.

But allowing for such considerations, the action of the market indicates a willingness and an ability to move still higher eventually.

REACTION DESIRABLE

Even the bulls should desire some reaction. Technical reactions tend to keep the supply of stocks adjusted to the demand, and to prevent weak "pyramiding." They allow cautious buyers to come in at better prices.

Such a reaction has been expected. I doubt that it will be very severe, and am inclined to think that there are enough people considering purchases of stocks to insure good buying.

1—The recent tendency to bull all sorts of minor speculative issues.

2—The widespread notion among the less thoughtful people that the passage of the "money bill" is the signal for an immediate inflation, or depreciation of the dollar.

GAMBLING INDICATED

The former indicates much speculative gambling and "pool operations," and is reminiscent of 1929. It is the sort of thing which makes the stock market unsafe for democracy.

The latter fails to recognize that the passage of the money bill has been "discounted" by all thoughtful persons, and that it is nothing new.

Furthermore, the passage of the bill has very little to do with "inflation." The factors which are making for inflation and a real depreciation of the paper dollar are government debt and the absence of any redeemability of paper dollars. These remain the same.

There is no stabilization of the dollar internally, and there can be none as long as the budget is so unbalanced by government spending and the administration clings to the policy of price-lifting by currency manipulation.

The point is that so many people misunderstand these things, that they are likely to rush into the stock market for unsound and inconsistent reasons. This might put the market out of line with actual conditions and require readjustments.

STOCK HOLDING ADVISED

So it is not clear whether the recent run-up is actually the beginning of a considerable advance, or a sort of "blow off," to be followed by a reaction.

But it now seems to be a reasonable inference that (subject to the limitations mentioned above) prices will move higher eventually. Thus there is reason to conclude that one should continue to hold sound stocks, and if able to do so intelligently and to run the risks of stock ownership, to buy sound stocks.

What do I mean by "sound" stocks? I mean reasonably priced stocks which are backed by conservatively financed companies showing fair earnings and earnings prospects.

The "average man" should not gamble on the chances that some company may get a large share of the liquor or the airplane business, nor that a "pool" may run still higher a stock which already sells for thirty times earnings.

Gold Production Up in December

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—World gold production in December amounted to 2,095,000 fine ounces, compared with 2,057,000 in November, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. United States production in December was 270,000 ounces against 256,000 in November.

Dollar Devaluation Seen as Providing Support for 80 Billion Dollars of Credit

Devaluation of the dollar to the extent of 40.94 per cent of its old gold parity, opens the way for tremendous credit expansion. Inasmuch as a dollar in gold will support 2½ dollars in currency and the latter will support 10 times its equivalent in bank credit, the increased gold base created by the stepping up of the metal price, would support credit expansion in the amount of $80,000,000.

The new value of the dollar brought a boost of about 69 per cent in the world's monetary gold, as reckoned in dollars, or made in more than $20,000,000,000, as against $12,000,000,000 previously. Of this, the American gold reserve constitutes roughly a third.

Dollar devaluation touched off a tremendous wave of demand for stocks and corporations bonds, the buying movements assuming proportions which literally swamped exchange facilities through the forenoon. The stock ticker at one stage was as much as seven minutes behind the market.

Fixing of the price of $35 an ounce for gold, as set forth in the devaluation proclamation, produces an indicated appreciation in the metal of 69.33 per cent from the old statutory price of $20.67 an ounce. With the Treasury having title to a total of $4,029,092,988 gold on the basis of the old price last night, the potential profit accruing to it by reason of the mark-up amounts to $2,793,370,169.

Bank clearings for the week ended January 31, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet from leading cities, totaled $4,829,113,000, an increase of 14.8 per cent over a year ago. New York City clearings were $3,478,848,000, compared with $2,989,593,000 a year ago, an increase of 16.4 per cent.

The aggregate this week was $443,274,000 above the total for the third week in January this year, an unusual showing, the agency said, against the comparable period of a year ago, when the increase between the same two weeks was $207,976,000.

STOCKS STRONG IN EUROPE

LONDON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Prices on the stock exchange rose smartly today on President Roosevelt's gold plan. Gold mining shares advanced under general buying prompted by the advance in the price of bar gold. Transatlantic issues were firm in sympathy with Wall street while gilt edged securities and industrials hardened on investment buying. Oil shares sagged. The market closed steady.

PARIS, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Stimulated by favorable advices from Wall street, prices on the bourse advanced. Gold mining shares particularly improved on President Roosevelt's gold proclamation. Rentes were stronger and the market closed steady.

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Stabilization of the American dollar stimulated prices on the boerse which were further favorably impressed by British and Italian disarmament proposals. The closing was firm.

Expect Canadian Gold to Flow Here

OTTAWA, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Observers here expressed the opinion today that the most important immediate effect upon Canada of President Roosevelt's new monetary policy will be that Canadian gold will probably now go to the United States, whereas for nearly a year it has been shipped principally to London.

Bank of England.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows these changes in pounds: total reserve decreased 2,365,000; circulation increased 2,449,000; bullion increased 74,000; other securities decreased 102,000; public deposits increased 12,339,000; other deposits decreased 16,566,000; notes reserves decreased 2,361,000; government securities decreased 1,735,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 52.05 per cent compared with 52.15 last week.

Rate of discount 2 per cent.

Gold Adjustment First Change in 100 Years

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Reduction of the gold content of the dollar to 15 5/21 grains marks the first change in the gold content in a century.

On June 28, 1834, the standard weight of the gold dollar was fixed at 25.8 grains 9/10ths fine with a fine weight of 23.2 of pure gold.

On February 12, 1873, the gold content was reiterated, and provision made that the gold dollar should be the unit of value of the United States.

U. S. ABANDONS OIL FIXING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes, oil administrator, today revoked his administrative order of October 16, proposing minimum prices for petroleum and its products. The schedule was to have become effective today, but the recently approved purchase and marketing agreements made it unnecessary.

In announcing revocation of the order, the secretary said, however, that should the public interest appear in the future to make necessary regulation of petroleum prices, a new schedule would be ordered by him as a substitute for that now being revoked.

The October 16 order was extended several times during the period in which representatives of the industry were seeking to arrive at purchase and marketing agreements satisfactory to them.

Year's Cigaret Tax Tops 335 Million

A revenue of $335,524,622 was clinked into Treasury coffers last year by cigaret smokers by way of the manufacturers. This was $25,000,000 more than in 1932. It accounted entirely for a gain of $22,534,652 in total tobacco taxes, which the Internal Revenue Bureau today placed at $409,,208,921 for 1933.

Hog Process Tax Advanced to $1.50

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP.)—The Farm Administration said the hog processing tax of $1 per hundredweight would be increased to $1.50 today.

The increase was to have been made on January 1, but was postponed for one month, supposedly because of low price conditions of the hog market.

DOLLAR SAGS AND RALLIES

Associated Press.

Domestic financial markets surged upward today in response to devaluation of the dollar to 59.06 per cent of its former parity.

The dollar quickly advanced in foreign exchange dealings after an early sag in Paris and London, and soon commanded a premium of more than 3 per cent over the French gold france and the rate indicated by the sterling gold price in London.

Wall street bankers were awaiting clarification of Treasury regulations before placing heavy orders to buy gold in London and Paris for shipment to New York, an operation made highly profitable to the premium commanded by the dollar.

The failure of the dollar to come down to the 59.06 per cent level was attributed to an active movement of funds to New York from abroad, representing repatriation of American capital, and foreign investment in American securities.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau made it clear later that the private banks could buy gold abroad and sell it to the Federal Reserve Bank at $35 an ounce, and immediate operations were expected.

At a 3 per cent premium for the dollar in the foreign exchange markets, $1 would buy $1.03 worth of gold abroad.

Corporate Earnings

National Steel Corporation reports for the year ending December 31, 1933, net profit of $2,812,406 after federal taxes, depreciation, depletion and interest, equivalent to $1.30 a share on 2,156,832 common shares. This compares with $1,662,919 or 77c a share in 1932. In April of 1933 the shares were changed from no-par status to $25.00 par value and at the close of the second quarter the stock was restored to an annual dividend basis of $1.00 per share, having been reduced in September, 1932, to a 50c basis. For the quarter ending December 31, 1933, net profit was $242,530 after taxes and charges, equal to 11c per share, comparing with $354,045 or 16c per share in the December quarter of the previous year.

Commercial Investment Trust Company net profits for 1933 amounted to $7,474,394 compared with $5,719,775 in 1932. After preferred stock dividends the balance available for the common shares was equal to $3.42 a share against $2.04 a share in the previous year. The company specializes in the financing of installment purchases of automobiles and other merchandise. The annual report, which gives effect to the acquisition of the Universal Credit Corporation on April 15, 1933, shows the heaviest volume of business and the largest earnings for the common stock since 1929.

Niagara Share Corporation of Maryland and subsidiary companies report net assets as of December 31, 1933, equivalent to $9.43 a share of class B common stock outstanding. This compares with net assets at the end of the preceding year equivalent to $15.44 a share. The consolidated balance sheet as of December 31 shows investments with an indicated value of $28,958,421 as compared with $37,075,574 at the end of 1932.

NOTICE

NOTICE is hereby given that an Ordinance, Bill No. 204, has been introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh, January 29, 1934, entitled:

"An Ordinance amending an Ordinance entitled, 'An Ordinance regulating and restricting the location of trades and industries and the location of buildings designed for specified uses and regulating and limiting the height and bulk of buildings hereafter erected or altered, and regulating and determining the area of yards, courts and other open spaces in connection with buildings hereafter erected or altered, and establishing the boundaries of districts for the said purposes; conferring certain powers upon the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection; providing for a Board of Appeals, and imposing penalties,' approved August 9, 1923, by changing the Zone Map, Sheet Z—O—O, so as to change from an "A" Residence Use District to a Commercial Use District all that certain property bounded on the south and west by Boggs avenue, on the north by a line parallel with and 30.00 feet southwardly from the line dividing the properties of A. Ferrato, et ux., and L. H. Roach and W. L. Cornell and on the east by property of the Pittsburgh Railways Company."

And that a public hearing will be held by the Council of the City of Pittsburgh to consider said Ordinance at the Council Chamber, fifth floor, City-County Building, Pittsburgh, Pa., at 1:30 p. m., on Wednesday, February 21, 1934.

Synopsis

Murder was suspected when Sonia Paige, wife of socially prominent Randolph Paige, was found hanging to a chandelier in her home. Paige and Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, fail to give the police any clues. Kirk Judson, a shady private detective, is engaged by Paige when police begin their investigation. Robert Cleveland, prominent attorney, says that he was in love with Mrs. Paige and told her so when he visited her home with Mrs. Phelps, a neighbor, on the night of the murder. The police ponder over the possible motives for the crime.

Now Go On

CHAPTER XXV.

"Let's act on the theory that she was a courageous little thing and ready to defend her property — didn't realize the danger of such a course perhaps. What would have happened then? Why your burglar would have drawn out his gun and given her a whack with the butt of it or stunned her with a blackjack and gone about his hunt unmolested, found the jewel and cleared out. Nothing can make me imagine that an ordinary thief would have stopped to gag her," said Anderson.

"Captain Andy," I asked directly, leaning across the table. "Do you honestly believe that Sunny Paige was murdered?"

"There you have me," answered Anderson frankly. "I don't know enough about strangling to answer. She may have caught up that tassel in her mouth in her death agony. Of course, I can't state that she committed suicide because I'd instantly be accused of whitewashing the police department. You remember the Clairmont case—the little girl who wandered into the woods and was found shot to death the next day? 'Murder,' shouted the public and your newspapers. But I'm convinced that that was an accident, pure and simple. She was shot by someone hunting there in the woods, some boy, probably, who didn't dare to come out and tell the truth—a stray shot. When I leave the department, the inside story of that case will be one of the first things I hand out—you can tuck that away in your memory for future reference, Kay, if you want. But I couldn't say so at the time because the city was howling for action and calling her death a murder. It's the same way now. If we try to claim that Mrs. Paige did commit suicide, people will simply believe that the police are offering an alibi to hide their inefficiency."

Fantastic Idea

"But what do you think yourself?" I persisted. "You must have some theory."

"I think it more likely that Mrs. Paige did kill herself. She had more than reason enough to, poor child. If we fail to solve her death, I shall always believe that that is what happened.

"And I have an idea—oh, it is a very strange and fantastic idea that something else may have happened——"

"What?" we both shouted.

But the Inspector contented himself with a grin.

"It's too soon to tell any secrets," he laughed. "Until these preliminary investigations have all been completed, I wouldn't like to offer an opinion—and, mind you, don't quote me to this effect. I'm talking to you boys personally now—just getting it off my chest. Now let's get down to my office. I don't imagine that Paige will tell us anything we don't already know, but then you never can tell."

Paige and the two officers were awaiting us in the Inspector's office. Anderson shook hands with him quite pleasantly.

"I think that I should warn you, Paige," he said, "that anything that you now may say may be used against you."

Gambling Disapproved

"I understand that," replied Paige nervously. But I've talked it over with both Cleveland and Judson and they both advise me to tell you the whole truth. I made a mistake in not doing that in the first place."

Anderson nodded approvingly. "Glad you see things that way. Would you like to have either of these gentlemen present? No? Well, now do try to give us the whole story. Sometimes apparently trivial things mean nothing at all to you but they are worth a lot to us."

"Well, you see it was this way," began Ranny Paige. "Dad—my old man—never approved of me playing the stock market. He had certain religious convictions against it. My wife didn't either. Dad also thought that a young man should earn his own way without any help from his relatives. I knew that he would cut me off without a penny if he ever found out the extent of my gambling, but lately he's been too old and feeble to understand what's going on. I think Sunny didn't like it much either.

"But, honestly, Inspector, you can't imagine how much money it takes for a man in my position. My salary has been small and Dad has given me no money at all. I haven't had much trouble in getting credit because everybody knows that I'll be rich within a fairly short time—as soon as Dad is gone, I mean. The stock market seemed a good way out, particularly because I made a couple of good investments and actually cleaned up a bit at the start.

Took Pendant

"Everything went all right until this last break in the market. I was in pretty heavy—carrying everything on a margin—and when the smash came and my brokers called on me for $50,000 I just didn't have it. And I couldn't get that much money from the banks or borrow it without running the risk of Dad finding it out.

"I went to Sunny and asked her to lend me the pearl. She did not have any money of her own or she would have given it to me gladly for she was the most generous person in the world. I wanted to raise money on the pendant, and then, when the market recovered, return it to her. But she refused. Said she didn't approve of gambling and thought I ought to be ashamed to take advantage of the old man.

"I told her what it would mean to me if she didn't—absolute financial ruin, but she said no, it didn't mean that at all, because I hadn't anything in the world to start with and I couldn't lose what I had never had.

"That kind of talk sets a man crazy and I didn't dare to tell her how heavily in debt I already was.

"I knew that Mrs. Brooks of Washington was crazy to get hold of the pearl. I had often told her about it and she has a very fine collection of unusual gems. I used to know her—before I was married"—here he paled a little—"and I was sure that she would help me out. She's one of those women who really understand a fellow. I knew I could turn the pearl over to her and trust her not to blab about it.

"When I left home on Saturday morning, I took the pendant, just picked it up and walked out. Sunny began to cry because she thought that I meant to take it away from her against her will. Downtown I knew a young fellow who used to be connected with the jewelry firm of Dorsey & Company and who now has a little place of his own. I told him to take out the real pearl and to put in another—not nearly so valuable but still a pearl. As a matter of fact, he did substitute a paste jewel, but it was so well done that I couldn't tell the difference myself. I told him what the circumstances were and I gave him two hundred and fifty bucks to shut his mouth.

"When I went home that night, I gave the pendant back to Sunny.

Loses Increased

"She grabbed it and looked at it but she didn't seem to notice anything.

"That was Saturday night. I almost prayed that the market would go up on Monday and I wouldn't have to use the pearl. But it didn't—it had an even worse break and I was told to put up the $50,000 or I'd be sold out. I got twenty-four hours' grace and that afternoon I drove over to see Mrs. Brooks. I expected to have dinner with her and to return home immediately afterward, but she didn't have the cash. I wanted ready money and not her check. She had to send out after it and that tied things up for a while.

"I came back just as I told you and found—well, the rest is absolutely true. I've told you all that before."

"Where's the pearl now?"

"Mrs. Brooks has it—or did have it. She paid me for it and I used the money to protect myself in the market. I sent her word by——"

"Go ahead. You sent her word by whom?" asked Anderson, just as if he did not already know.

"You've got a lot of trouble to get yourself out of," commented Anderson.

"Well, by Kirk Judson. I knew the fellow by reputation and I knew he'd take care of me for enough money."

Asked About Housekeeper

"You would probably have paid him blackmail the rest of your life," said Anderson quietly.

But Paige shook his head. "You do him an injustice, Inspector. He charged me practically nothing and said that all he'd ask in return would be an opportunity to get at the true facts surrounding my wife's death."

"I see," said Anderson, with a sly wink in my direction. "Mr. Judson is very open and honest in his pursuit of crime just now. Now here is another question, Mr. Paige: I want you to tell me fully and in great detail all that you know concerning the housekeeper, Mrs. Deane."

To my great surprise, Paige showed the greatest agitation.

"I can't do that, inspector," he protested.

"Why not?"

"Well, Mrs. Deane simply idolized my wife and Sunny loved her. I was not a good husband, but if Sunny could cry out from her grave now, I know that she would implore me not to answer your question."

He buried his head in his hands and began to sob.

Anderson was plainly puzzled.

"But, Paige, if she could possibly have been connected with your wife's death ——"

"She wasn't. I am certain of that. Besides I promised her that I would tell you nothing about her and I'd like to keep my word. Find it out for yourselves, if you want to."

"If that's your attitude," began Anderson, "then I'm sorry but I shall have to order your arrest."

Make This Decorative Doll

What woman has not always had a secret longing for such a gay and charming boudoir doll as this one? It is so much fun to dress that the pleasure of making it will repay any needlewoman. The doll can be dressed in silk, rayon or cotton, for her dress lends itself to any of these materials. The dress as illustrated, can be made with the waist in a material contrasting with the skirt or in the same material; yardage requirements are given for both arrangements.

Pattern 589 comes to you with a pattern of the dress and petticoat, designed for the regulation 26-inch doll and complete directions, yardages and color suggestions for making these.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

JUNIOR PATROL

We see the green of the trees and grass, the white of the snow, the blue of people's clothes, the red of cloth, the marvelous colors of the sunset and sunrise.

Nobody understands just exactly how we "see" the colors with our eyes, or what causes the colors. We know that white light, such as the light from the sun, is really all colors of light, and a ray of sunlight falling through a prism will break up into all the colors just like a rainbow. In fact, the reason we have a rainbow, they say, is because the moisture in the air after a rain acts just like a prism, and glows with all the colors of light.

Inside our eyes, we see colors, the scientists tell us, because there are tiny cells, many many thousands of them, which change the chemicals there when the light of a color strikes them. Some people don't have these cells, and we say they are "color blind" which means that they cannot see blue and red and yellow. The world to them is colored gray and black and white. Other people see green as red and red as green. That is one reason why it is so important for railroad engineers, airplane pilots or ship's officers to have a physical examination. The doctor finds out if they are "color blind." There might be a terrible accident if an engineer went through a red stop signal because he saw it green.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

"I'm myself and nothing can make me any different."

What an admission!

Do you realize how dumb that sounds?

Either you are really dumb or you are willing to admit that you do not care to change yourself.

Now a person who does not change is retrograding.

None stands still.

Why should you set your way up as far superior to any other way?

Why must your story be always the biggest tale?

Why is it that you cannot admit that it is your mistake or your lack that causes confusion or trouble?

Why must you get the credit for knowing just a little more about everything than the next one?

Isn't there anyone in this world that you would credit with good sense, knowledge, skill and fine points as great as what you claim for yourself?

Why that chip that you carry evidently expecting someone to knock it off? Usually someone does knock it off.

MEMOIRS OF MR. FISBY

John Greenleaf Whittier and myself were boys together and, with Ralph Waldo Emerson, Nathaniel Hawthorne, James Fenimore Cooper, Washington Irving, Alfred Tennyson and William Cullen Bryant in the same room at school, we had great times, I can assure you. Little did passers-by imagine, as they saw us scampering for the "old swimming hole," that in the coming years little Horace Frisby would make a name for himself as a statesman, diplomat, humanitarian, orator, pundit, psycho-analyst, epicurean, crustacean, philatelist, thespian, cubist, Wagnerian, sexologist, Puritan, Yosemite, train caller, poultry judge, Swiss bell ringer, crustularian, chiropodist, locksmith and lawn bowler.

But, my friends, I am getting ahead of my story. I do not wish to appear the mere braggart. I would rather cut off my right hand than have it said, "Oh! Horace Frisby is an old wind bag." Rather would I have it said, "Oh, yes—I think Congressman Frisby has fought his way from the bottom up until, today, he stands on the peak of success. But he is no swellhead." In fact, friends, I wear a 5 and 7-8 hat and a 17 collar.

And now let us pause until next week, when we will speak of how love came to yours truly.

Can't Head Off the Head Waiter

The head waiter is back in the hotel in all his rotund antebellum glory. He is among those presentable because the hotel can again serve wine with its thumbs.

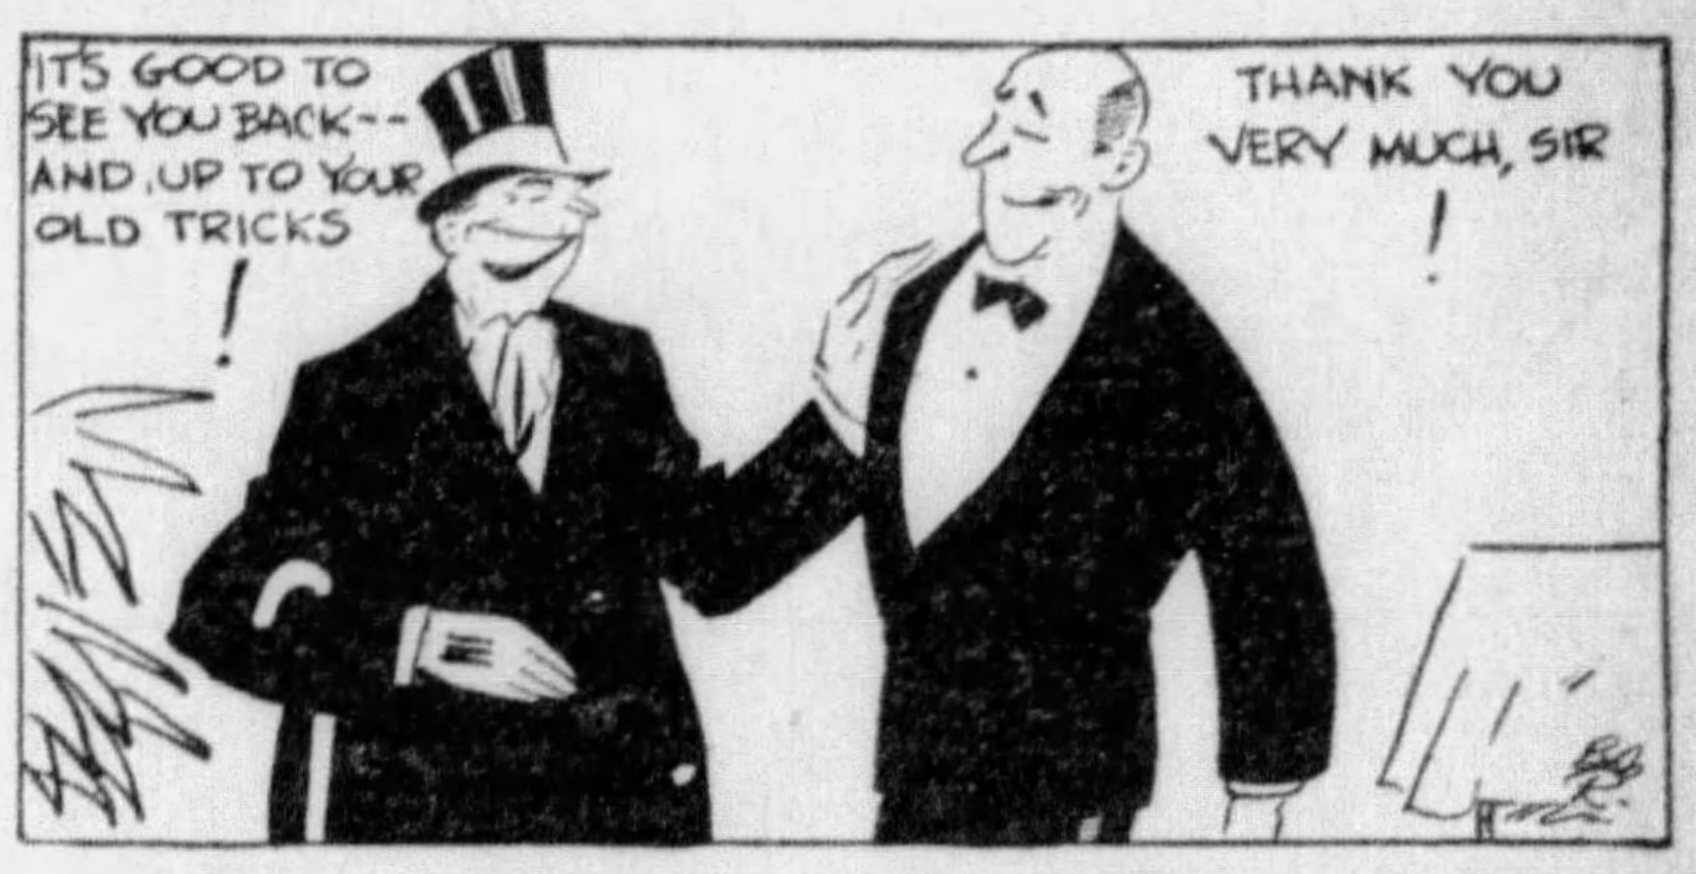
He disappeared from the haunts of men in the evaporating year of 1920. He came back out of the dehydrated night into which he went.

After a 14-year vacation it will take a little time for him to limber up. His smile is a trifle rusty. In his courtly bow there is a body squeak. The sweep of his arm is a little jerky. He no longer circumnavigates the globe with a wave of his welcoming hand. But he will get there yet.

Once again there are lights, laughter and the clinking of crystal in the wayside inn. For that we are thankful. Fortunately, for marital romance and dignified old folks the speakeasy only lasted 14 years.

The amendment was artichoked before it was too late. Eleven years more and us old folks would have been compelled to celebrate our silver wedding anniversary in the same speaky in which we spent our honeymoon.

That would have been tragic. Perish the thought and the thoughters too.



IT'S GOOD TO SEE YOU BACK-- AND UP TO YOUR OLD TRICKS !
THANK YOU VERY MUCH, SIR !

We like the way the head waiter meets you at the door of the hostelry breakfast alcove and escorts you to your gastronomical booth. There is the dignity of a military funeral as he marches sturdily ahead. There is the grace of an ibex as he leaps over a discarded matchstick. And when he bows from the waist he shows the back of his neck gleaming over his white collar. Too bad the rabbit punch is barred.

The aisles are wide in the hotel dining room. The lights are hospitable but subdued. The tables are purest damask and the orchestra supplies gentle and classical tremors from a protective hedge of palms. We like that arrangement. All musicians should be hidden behind palms. We can hear them, but don't have to look at them. They can see us, but can't get at us. Round even.

Looking backward over the aching void it is startling to remember that hotels were once raided and pinched for serving ginger ale and cracked ice. The law classified this non-chemical mixture as a set-up. Where there is a set-up there is smoke. Where there is smoke there is fire. Hence the nead waiter was guilty of aiding and abetting, an accessory before the fact and participus criminus in the guilty knowledge that somebody was going to toast the Army and the Navy forever.

Safety for Depositors

The Scope of the Postal Savings Service Should Be Enlarged.

The American people have always been urged to have faith in banks, and yet the post-war record of failures in epidemic quantities seriously upset confidence.

Presumably, the banks now functioning have shown survival qualities, and have indicated superiority through the natural process of selection.

The Federal government has benevolently stood behind most banks which were permitted to reopen after the national bank holiday. It liquefied the resources of those which were partly frozen by pouring in new capital through the benevolence of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

And further to reassure the skeptical and woo back their hoarded funds, the government has set up the temporary deposit insurance fund.

While this is in effect the unbelieving are foolish to prefer the sock and the mattress to banks subject to the insurance protection.

But many bankers, who acquiesce in the plan for temporary insurance, are strongly opposed to permanent guaranty of deposits.

Nevertheless, there possibly should be government insurance of deposits for those who most desire it and most require it.

Some even threaten to leave the Federal Reserve System to escape the obligatory insurance requirement.

The government can and should raise the limits on postal savings from $2,500 to at least $10,000—and at the same time offer the checking privilege to those depositors who choose this service in lieu of the 2 per cent interest paid on non-checking deposits.

Such enlarged postal savings deposits could be returned to the financing of economic activity either by being re-deposited in commercial banks or invested in government bonds.

In ultimately working out an organic, unified banking system, which will meet social requirements, the government must recognize the importance of giving special consideration to the non-borrowing depositor.

The non-borrowing depositor seeks only safety and the routine services of banking.

On the other hand, the borrowing depositor, benefiting directly from the venturesomeness of the banker, is in a somewhat different position.

As an immediate reform, the enlargement of the scope of postal savings offers a suitable mechanism for extending the federal guaranty of deposits to those who feel the need of such protection.

McNair's Wild Proposal

Thanks to the Good Sense of the Council It Causes No Harm.

We remarked recently that the members of City Council were sensible men and would not let Mayor McNair get the city into serious trouble.

An illustration of this was furnished in the action taken on the Mayor's wild proposal that an ordinance be passed exempting from taxation homes costing no more than $6,000.

Such a measure would be in direct violation of the constitutional provision that all taxation must be uniform.

When the measure came up in Council's finance committee Councilman W. A. Magee quietly remarked that it would be a waste of time to refer it to the legal department, as "we all know it is illegal." His colleagues agreed, and the proposal was killed there and then.

Thanks to the good sense of the Council and City Solicitor C. D. Scully, the city is being saved from the litigation and vain expectations that would be raised by the Mayor's half-baked ideas if these officials yielded servilely to his judgment.

Preventing Blindness

Much more desirable, of course, is the prevention of blindness.

There is some encouraging news on this subject.

As the result of an increase in the attentiveness of physicians attending new-born babies, the number of cases of "ophthalmia neonatorum" admitted to the Pittsburgh Eye and Ear Hospital dropped from 30 in 1928 to nine in 1932, the State Council for the Blind reports. (The number admitted last year is not given.)

"Ophthalmia neonatorum" is an eye disease in new-born babies which may cause blindness; but blindness can be prevented by administering a diluted solution of nitrate of silver to the eyes.

The State Health Department requires physicians and midwives to give the treatment to the eyes of all new-born babies and announces it is conducting a vigorous campaign to secure complete enforcement of the regulation.

Simultaneously the State Council for the Blind announces that the work done by the Pittsburgh Eye and Ear Hospital, which for several years has been the only institution in the state offering isolation care for "ophthalmia neonatorum" patients, will be supplemented by a Philadelphia hospital, which has arranged to establish adequate isolation facilities and special treatment for cases of this type.

As a delay of 24 hours in administering the treatment may mean permanent blindness for the victim, the public can be counted upon to hail with satisfaction the new measures to insure prompt treatment.

Candy Is Absolved

Scientists Refute Old Myth That Sugar Hurts the Teeth.

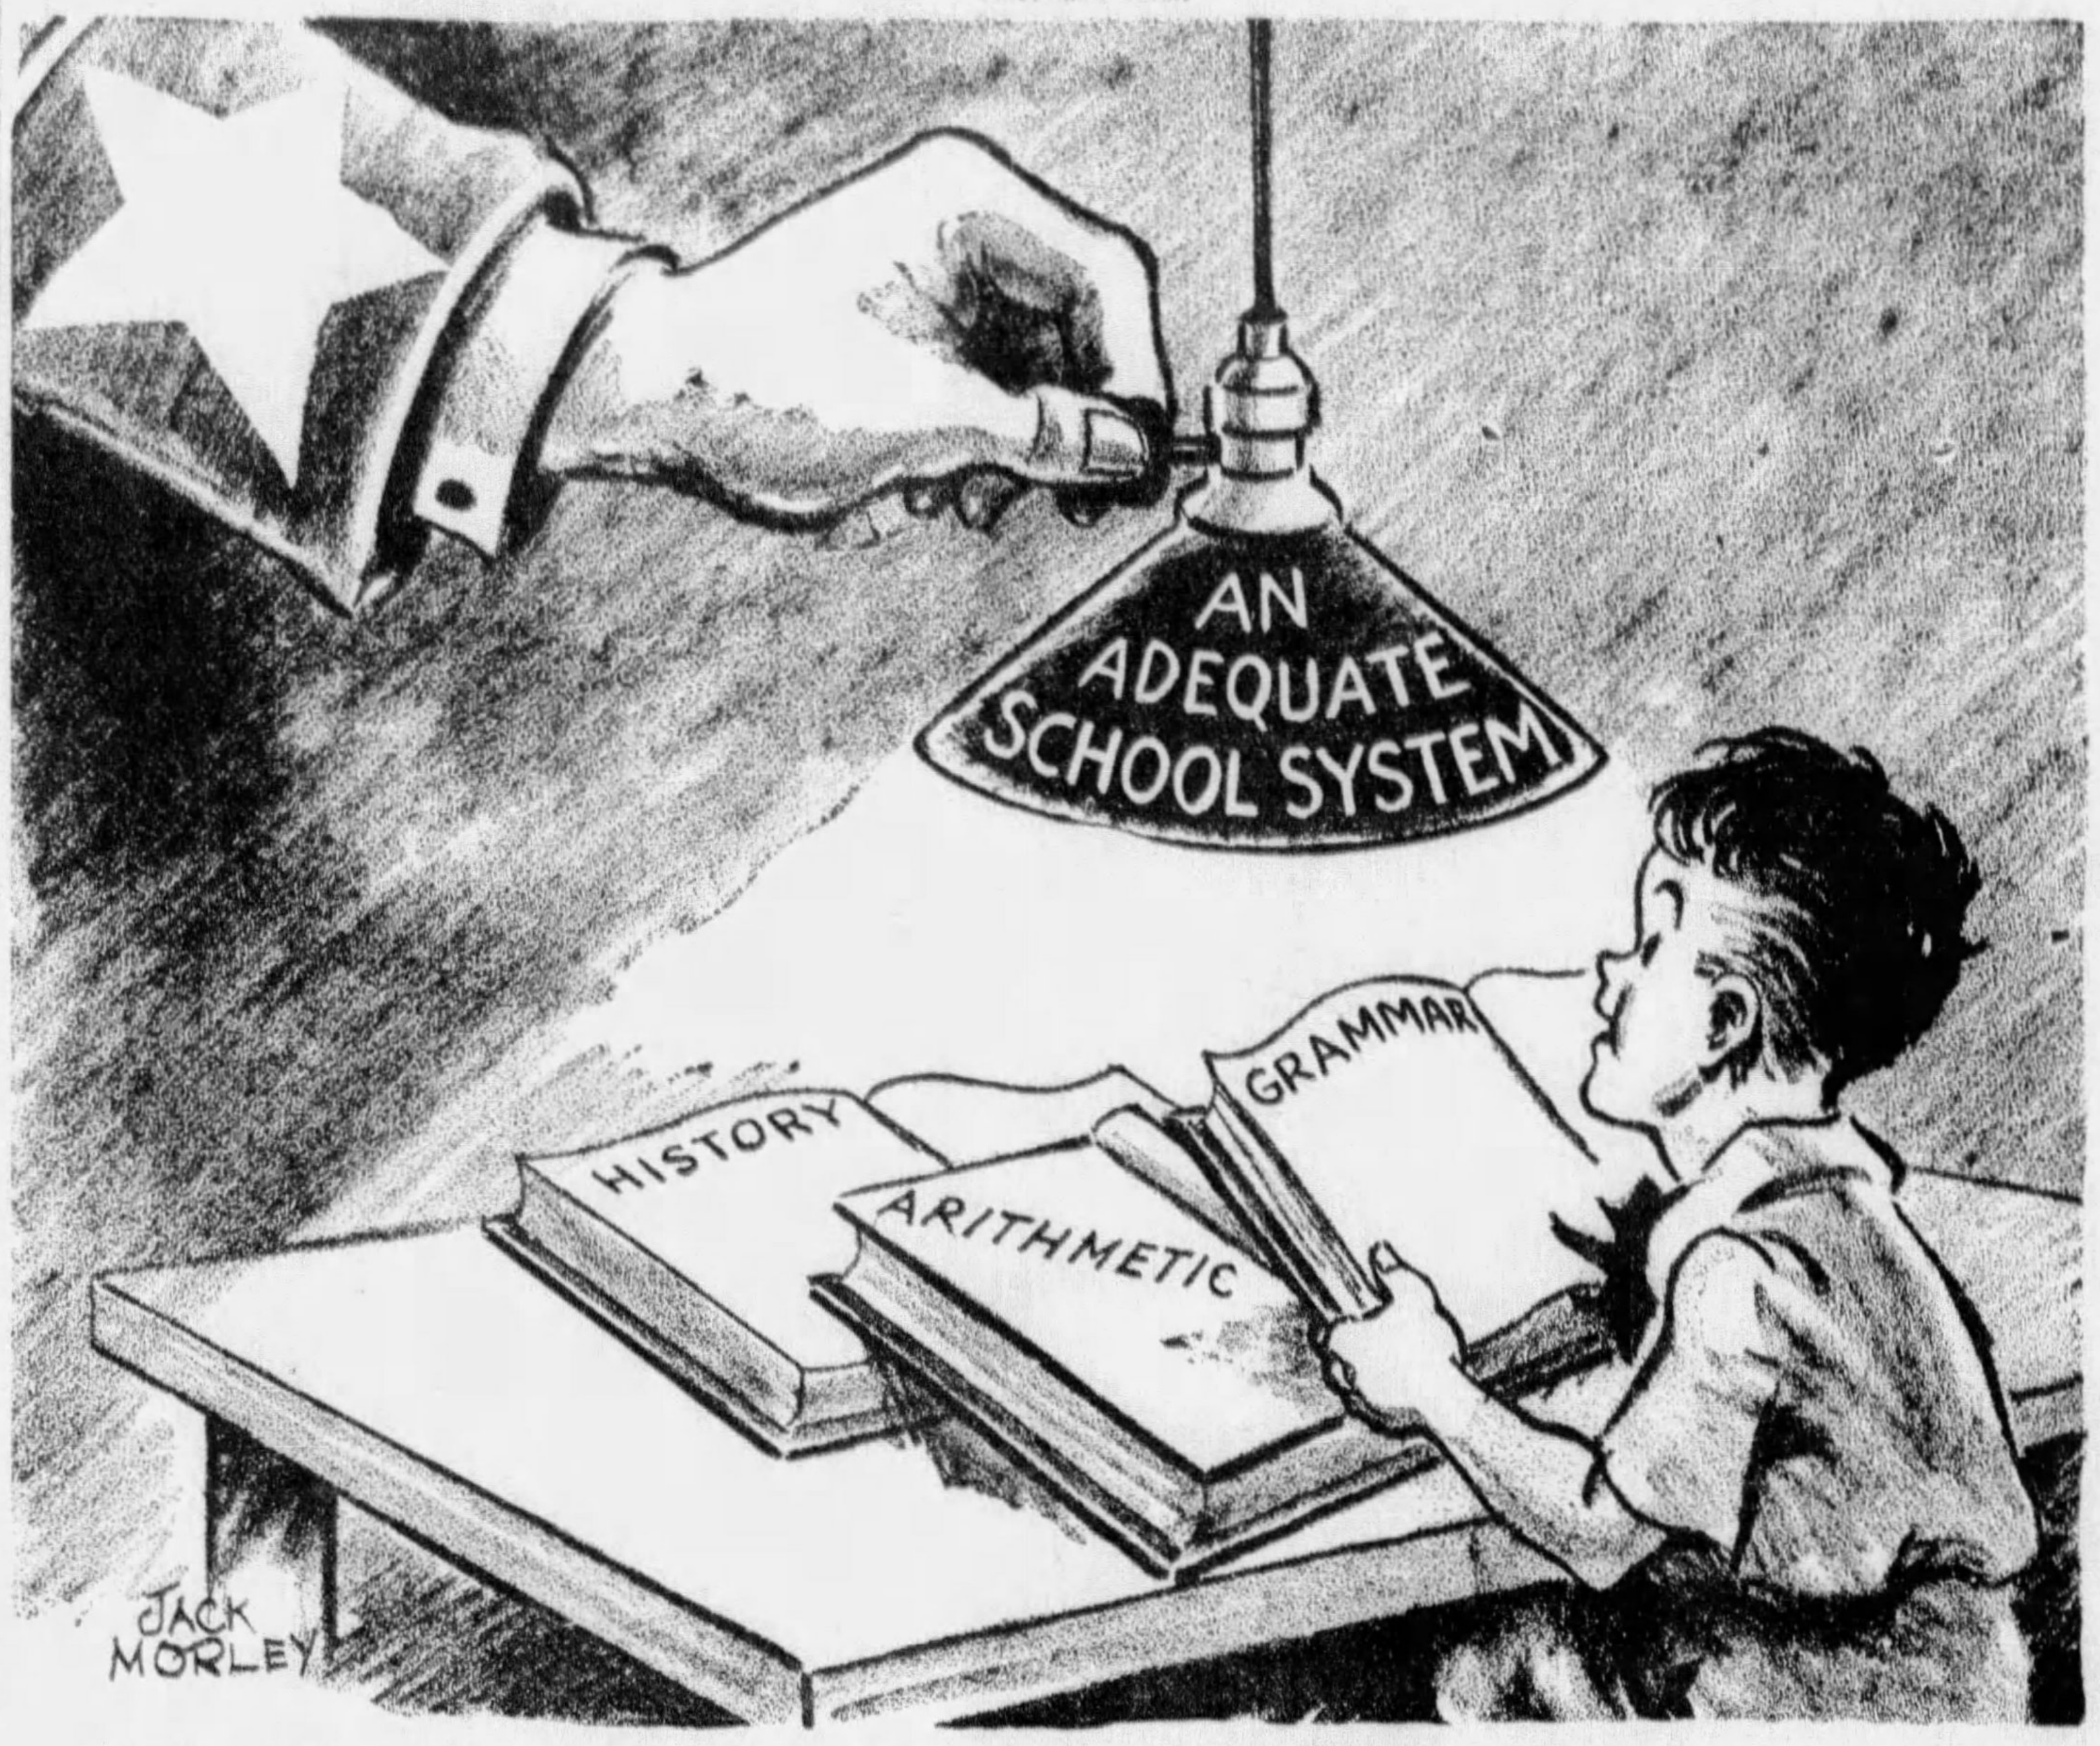
Many popular beliefs are only 500 years behind the times. Sugar, in the seventeenth century, was regarded as sinful as wine, tobacco and bathing. It was only in 1845 that Boston repealed the law forbidding bathtubs as wicked and prejudicial to health.

Candy is fairly respectable now, but the myth that it spoils the teeth dies hard. Savants at the University of Michigan and at Johns Hopkins have worked it out that candy—even large quantities of it—can't hurt the teeth. Tooth decay is due to lack of phosphorus, calcium and vitamin D. In short, to the child not taking enough milk and greens.

The tidings that the path to the dentist chair is not paved with all-day suckers and gumdrops is good tidings to everyone, from infants to ancients. Science may yet give us the low-down on alcohol, and that also will be hailed with jubilation—except by those who prefer to view these things with an emotional slant.

Turn On the Light, Uncle!

(Copyright, 1934.)



Dr. Paul R. Mort, Director of the School of Education at Teachers' College, Columbia University, has made an intensive study of the public school problem in this country in the course of his work with the Joint Committee on the Emergency in Education.

And Dr. Mort has reached this conclusion—unless the Federal Government comes to the rescue thousands and thousands of boys and girls will be denied their only opportunity of becoming competent citizens.

Pointing out that proper machinery does not exist for meeting the school crisis, Dr. Mort said in an article in the magazine "Progressive Education":

"Federal support for education is essential because of the extreme limitations placed on public education by economic conditions in the poor States.

"The issue of COMPLETE FEDERAL AID IN ALL STATES will be a live issue in the not distant future."

Congress and the Roosevelt Administration can perform no more patriotic service than by IMMEDIATELY acting to rescue education.

And the first action that should be taken is to establish a Federal Department of Education, headed by a Secretary who shall be a member of the President's Cabinet.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—In the jostling tumult of Cherry street is niched a picturesque slice of Spain. Every upstairs window seems to feature a squawking parrot and now and then a hard-bitten character with a peg leg, a ring in his ear and a vocabulary suggesting the Spanish main.

Restaurants are all the same kind. Almost bare dining rooms with low ceilings and oil cloth covered tables. The kitchen is in full view with fat and perspiring cooks bending over the heat. And always the inevitable overfed cafe cat and a picture of Alfonso turned to the wall.

Each cafe has a fixed price, which includes hors d'oeuvres, bouillabaisse, shrimp bisque and little neck clams floating in a thick garlic sauce. Also those hitch-post lengths of crusty Spanish bread. Wine is gratis and the patron may drink all he can hold without frowns by the management.

In the Spanish shops nearby are earthenware pots and jugs straight from Valencia. Wine rooms feature guitarists, castanet dancers and frequently a retired bull fighter sitting alone to muse over vanquished glory. Anchovies in the section may be purchased for a dime a can.

The re-opened bar at the Metropolitan opera is likely the most crowded drinking salon in the metropolis during intermission. Here one sees, too, the most magnificently dressed group of thirsty. Otto Kahn in the swirl of his Inverness cape. The diamond tiaraed Mrs. Frank Storrs. Society's best dressed man, William Goadby Loew. And so on. The most popular tipple is the champagne cocktail and a thimble of cognac.

Few newspapermen are steady opera goers. The most consistent in New York is Karl K. Kitchen, with Lucius Beebe a runner-up. Kitchen also never misses a symphony. Among the novelists who love opera are Rupert Hughes, Julian Street, Joseph Hergsheimer and Kathleen Norris.

Incidentally, a recently bereaved novelist sent this reply to a message of condolence from a friend: "Your sympathy is tenderly expressed. But, after all, it would not matter much what you said. When one is wandering in the dark looking for a way back to the sunshine, he is not so much concerned in the words that hail him—it's the friendly voice he wants to hear."

The Rialto's dean of press agents is Claude P. Greneker, who has three-sheeted for the Shubert's nearly 20 years. A soft-spoken gentleman of sedate dress, he has none of the gaudy qualities of the average theatrical press agent. Away from his desk he is a devotee of the classics and a student of period furnishings. Although he has been the spokesman in several disbarments of critics, they all like him. He is one of the few press agents who, seated well down front, attends all his own first nights.

Katharine Brush is likely plushed in the greatest magnificence of any American novelist. Her wealthy husband, Bob Winans, recently presented her with an octagonal study that is a triumph of modernistic decor. But he is constantly carrying her off to the Riviera, Egypt, Palm Springs and other watering places. Despite these pleasant interruptions, "Kay" keeps up with her contracts. And in touch with friends of her struggling up days. Something rare in the New York typhoon.

Mention of Miss Brush was inspired by catching sight of her while pushing through a revolving door in the Graybar Building this afternoon. I turned to wave, en route, and had to go clear around again. After I get the hang of just which is the salad fork I'm going to learn how to bow in a revolving door even if my neck gets caught and yanked out . . . to here.

LATE ARRIVALS

By Winifred Black

Kittie and Cathleen are both so mad at William that they will hardly speak to him.

Oh, of course, Cathleen does speak in a little mimsey timsey, oh-how-could-you voice, she really has to, don't you know, but Kittie won't even do that.

I'm all for William myself.

Let's see what you think about it.

Cathleen, you see, has come on a visit to Aunt Kittie, and Uncle Billy.

Cathleen is pretty as a pink, and she can dance like a wave of the ocean. She can ride, she can play tennis and she's not such a bad hand at bridge if she doesn't have to sit still too long. And she's so eager to see everything there is in the world, go everywhere, know everybody, hear all the songs, listen to all the music, see all the pictures, read all the new books and meet, oh, everybody, just everybody, rich and poor, and old and young and dull and gay.

She's really a sweet thing, is Cathleen, and you can't blame dear old William for being crazy about her. Isn't she his dead brother's daughter, too? He's William to the outside world, but to little Cathleen he's just Uncle Billy, and glad of it.

Cathleen is no blood kin to her, but she makes a niece of her just the same and when she knew Cathleen was coming for that visit she laid plans and she "made arrangements," and she bought new clothes for herself, and a glorious new evening wrap for Cathleen. She had the house cleaned from top to toe and once, just before Cathleen arrived, she took out the little picture of her own daughter who didn't live to grow up and she laid her cheek upon the photograph and cried a little—that was before William came home, and she and William went to the station to meet Cathleen and they were all there as happy as larks.

She asked the sons and daughters of all her old friends to come to the party—they were to dine at seven-thirty the whole crowd of them, with Uncle Billy at the head of the table and Aunt Kittie at the foot of the table in the good, old-fashioned way and then the young people were to go dancing at a smart hotel.

Aunt Kittie and Cathleen decorated the big table and the little tables themselves, pink roses for the most part, and everything pink and white and silver—lovely to see.

William had a turkish bath, and a shave and a hair cut, and came home an hour early to dress for dinner, he really does look handsome even yet when he is dressed for dinner, does good old William and at 25 minutes past seven, Aunt Kittie and Cathleen were downstairs—waiting. They waited until eight, they waited until eight-thirty, the cook fumed, and William fidgeted.

At a quarter of nine William sat down to dinner and he made Kittie and Cathleen sit down to dinner, too.

At nine thirty-five the guests began to arrive. But there was no dinner for them—William had ordered it all cleared away.

"Nobody can insult my wife and my niece like that," said William, "and get away with it." All the girls giggled and all the boys stared and they went down town and danced—and that was that.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Life Is Only What You Feel

All you get out of life is your own feeling about it.

A strange statement? Perhaps you don't believe it. Maybe you're young—excited about those years ahead. You have certain definite ideas about life. You are sure that you can make a success of it, even if others haven't—if you can only get the breaks.

If only you can do what you want to do—if only the right things will happen to you—then everything will be jake. For life, you are sure, is the sum total of one's experiences and achievements, and if you have lucky experiences and successful achievements, life is bound to be a happy affair.

Is that what you think? Then you're due for a surprise.

Or maybe you're not so young. Perhaps you have already advanced far into those waiting years, and have had the experiences and achievements you once thought were so essential. But you're bewildered. In spite of fortunate experiences, lucky achievements, happiness hasn't come.

But why should that be? You have some fine possessions, a pleasant home, loved relations, kindly friends—all these good things at a time when others are living shabbily, desperately. Then why aren't you content?

WHY DOES LIFE SEEM STRANGELY EMPTY—UNREAL—LIKE A DREAM WHICH SLIPS THROUGH YOUR FINGERS AS YOU TRY TO GRASP IT?

"Why, I was actually happier when I was poor and struggling," you say to yourself. "When I was young and didn't know where my next meal was coming from, life seemed much more glorious than it does now."

That is true. You WERE happier then. Life WAS more colorful then, BECAUSE YOUR OWN FEELINGS WERE MORE COLORFUL.

WE GET OUT OF LIFE WHAT WE PUT INTO IT.

Life is as vast or as petty, as exciting or monotonous, as beautiful or ugly, as noble or wretched, as our own feelings about it.

It isn't what happens to you that counts—for the thing that happens to you isn't really you at all.

Nor is it what you achieve that counts—for the thing you achieve is shaped by outward circumstances over which you have no control. And so the thing you achieve isn't really you, either, but it, too, is like a gesture and a dream.

The only thing that counts in life—the only thing that has meaning or reality—the only thing that you really own or can bank on—IS YOUR OWN FEELING ABOUT LIFE.

You can buy countless beautiful articles if you have enough money—BUT YOU CAN ONLY EXPERIENCE BEAUTY IF YOU FEEL BEAUTY.

You can become popular and beloved if you have what it takes—BUT YOU CAN ONLY EXPERIENCE LOVE IF YOU FEEL LOVE, IF YOU GIVE LOVE.

You can acquaint yourself with the brave and splendid, mysterious and exciting phases of life by reading about them, traveling, meeting adventurous people—YET LIFE WILL STILL REMAIN DRAB AND DREARY, UNLESS THERE ARE COURAGE AND CURIOSITY IN YOUR OWN HEART.

Life isn't what you do or what you have. LIFE IS ONLY WHAT YOU FEEL. AND YOU CAN FEEL WHAT YOU CHOOSE TO FEEL.

But nobody else can help you with that feeling or enter into it. Even your nearest and dearest cannot become a part of it. Life is your own inner secret "stream of consciousness" for which you alone are responsible—which you alone enjoy or despise.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Of Dreams

Only when you touch it
Is the dream destroyed,
Only when it shatters,
Falling in the void.

Many dreams have lasted
All a lifetime through,
Still with colors shining
Brightly as when new.

Eager fingers never Clutched their fragile wings,
Never cruel questions

Could a dream come, ever,
Floating back at last,
If one wooed it gently
From the shadowed past?

Let a dream go drifting
Once, beyond your ken,
You will find it never,
Nevermore, again!

Ogden Mills' Speech

Herewith are the salient points in the speech of Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury in the last part of the Hoover administration, on "Where Do We Go From Here," delivered in Topeka, Kan., Monday night.

AS THE minority and opposition party, not now responsible for the conduct of the government, our immediate function is to see that all important policies are subjected to such scrutiny, discussion and consideration as will permit the people to form a just appreciation of their wisdom and desirability.

Open discussion and honest criticism are essential to the functioning of democratic institutions. In our country up to the present time this commonplace saying has been taken for granted.

Lately, however, it has assumed a new and all-important meaning. First, because, as we shall shortly see, free discussion and an informed public opinion are incompatible with the planned and managed national life which seems to be the ultimate object of the present administration, and secondly, because it is apparent that even now there is a willingness to adopt the most sweeping measures without that consideration which would permit the forming and expression of public opinion and an obvious impatience with any criticism.

We are witnessing revolutionary changes in our governmental and economic structures without popular mandate. We are being presented with a series of accomplished acts, the consequence of which in the future life of the nation are incalculable, and in the name of national solidarity in time of stress the voice of the people is afforded no opportunity to become audible.

POPULAR government means faithful performance of the public will. The public will find temporary expression in legislative and executive acts intended to deal with immediate problems, but the permanent will of the American people is embodied in the constitution.

They, and they alone, can change it. Until amended—and we have recently seen how promptly it can be amended in response to popular demand—any infraction or suspension of the fundamental law is a challenge to popular sovereignty.

In all of its long history, no provision has ever been made for the suspension of the Constitution in time of emergency. This must unquestionably be due to the recognition that one of its most precious values is that it stands as a safeguard of our rights and liberties in times of stress.

If, then, the Congress and the President, by a mere declaration of an emergency, can in effect suspend the limitations of the fundamental law, it must be apparent that constitutional government as understood throughout our history ceases to exist, and that the federal government may be transformed over night from a government of limited powers to one of unlimited authority over the life of every individual citizen.

Not only have we witnessed what I believe is an unconstitutional attempt to extend the powers of the federal government beyond the limits contemplated by the basic law, but the exercise of the enormously expanded authority itself has been vested in the hands of a single individual, so that the protection of the fundamental law, but is subjected to arbitrary executive action freed from the restrictions of legislative control.

The abdication by the Congress and the delegation of powers to the executive are in effect creating a government of men without any practical limitations of law.

IT IS daily becoming more apparent that through the system of codes the federal executive is attempting to establish detailed bureaucratic control over all business and industry, large and small, and over the economic activities of the individual citizen.

When you sweep aside the glittering tinsel, the fact is that the federal government is today in effect telling the mechanic in California how many hours he may work, and what he may earn; the producer in Texas at which price he may sell his product, the manufacturer in New England what additions and improvements he may make to his factory, and the storekeeper in Kansas on what basis he may conduct his business.

If the planners have their way, how long will it be before each farmer has to take out a license before cultivating his own farm and be compelled to operate under the regulation and supervision of federal inspectors?

These actions definitely violate the letter and spirit of the Constitution. They abolish the sovereignties of the states. They make of a government of limited powers one of unlimited authority over the lives of us all. They destroy America's greatest contribution to the cause of human freedom—the guarantee of individual rights against the arbitrary power of the government.

This government was founded on the principle that the individual has the inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. "Inalienable" means that these cannot be taken from him by any power of government.

Liberty as we have understood it in this country has been the liberty of the individual to pursue the common callings of mankind, whether in farm, factory, mine or mercantile establishment, as he saw fit, so long as he didn't transgress the rights of others, and the police power vested in the state has been, and is, adequate to prevent transgression.

But if the federal government, acting through a centralized bureaucracy, may reach out to the furthest corners of this immense land and regulate the daily life and occupations of the individual, liberty as we have understood it is dead, and a nation of free men will have become an aggregation of regimented subjects.

THE whole conception of a planned and directed national economy is destructive of the most fundamental principles upon which the American system rests. It cannot be carried out unless the central government be vested with complete and arbitrary authority over the actions of individuals and the right to regiment them.

I would not have you infer that I am opposed to the National Recovery Act and all its works. I am not. I am only opposed to its extension far beyond what I believe its original conception was, or, at least, ought to have been.

The idea that where industries are genuinely national in scope, they might through trade associations, subject to the approval by the federal government, regulations for their own guidance, intended to eliminate unfair and unsound practices and to promote progress and sound development, has much to commend it.

But this is something very different from the wholesale attempt to reorganize business and industry of the country by substituting detailed bureaucratic control in the place of regulated individual control.

It is perfectly possible to preserve a free economic system based on the maintenance of competition, and at the same time provide that business and industry may check abuses and promote progress through the formulation of policies for their own guidance, subject to government regulation based upon law.

Surely some way can be found of harmonizing the self-expression and liberty of the individual with the welfare of all.

Certain features of the NRA are definite obstacles to recovery. Under a normal process of recovery, we would have expected to witness first increased production, distribution and employment, followed by the reappearance of profits, an expansion of short-term credit, the rebirth of a capital market and of capital expenditures, and a gradual rise in prices, costs and wages.

The essential features of this process are that increased volume of production and employment are attained before the increase in wages, costs and prices takes place. Under the NRA, wages, costs and prices rise first, and increased volume of production is expected to follow.

Unless the increased production does come, failure is inevitable, and to date the evidence indicates that the National Recovery Act itself has failed to stimulate greater volume.

For instance, one of the conclusions reached by the National Industrial Conference Board as a result of a survey of New England industries conducted in conjunction with the New England council was that "the consensus of opinion is that increased labor costs have increased sales prices, diminished production and increased inventory."

AGAIN, there is no reason why the Public Works Administration and the Civil Works Administration, whose primary duty is to take care of the unemployed, should pay wages so high as to give serious competition to private industry, or so to stimulate the prices of materials as to discourage private construction. After all, we cannot afford to create a situation where it will be impossible gradually to transfer men from the government emergency payroll to normal private payrolls.

While, from the standpoint of the federal budget, the amounts to be devoted to public works is large, these expenditures contrasted with the sums normally expended by the nation in the way of capital improvements of all kinds are not.

Here, again, while government expenditures may in the first instance prime the engine, unless they are followed by a genuine flow of private capital into permanent improvements of all kinds general recovery may be indefinitely delayed.

After four years of the most severe restrictions, there is every reason to believe that a genuine need exists for all manner of capital expenditures, including replacements, improvements and new construction. Nor can there be much doubt that, given favorable conditions for a capital market, credit will be available.

(Mr. Mills advocated the lowering of the tariff and critizized the monetary program particularly, because it did not establish a fixed value of the dollar.)
